I am so exciiiiteeed! I am going next week to the world's largest technology festival: Campus Party 2013 in London [3]!

I will hear from the Startup Europe Forum [4], where the new Startup Europe [5] Leaders Club – with members such as Spotify founder Daniel Ek, Seedcamp partner Reshma Sohoni and serial entrepreneur-turned-VC Niklas Zennström – will present a manifesto outlining key areas that need to be addressed for tech entrepreneurship to get to the next level in Europe.

What would you do if you had the amazing opportunity to intermingle with the thousands of campuseros and experience first-hand the creative energy of this unique festival?

I can't wait to visit the several Hackatons and App competitions will be organised during this intense week of dedicated to entrepreneurship, innovation, digital entertainment and creativity.

Aaaaaand I will also see FIRST-HAND the launch of the open innovation lab of the industry-driven Future Internet Public-Private Partnership [6] programme where I put so much effort everyday on! It will open the gates to all Internet innovators to develop innovative applications nobody thought about and inviting them for competitions not to be missed!

Viva Campus Party London 2013! :-)
