The Digital Agenda's actions are grouped in seven thematic "pillars". You can choose the policy area you are interested in to find out more about progress made.

Also have a look at the seven new digital priorities adopted in December 2012 [1], our digital to-do list.

- Pillar 1: A vibrant digital single market [2]

Too many barriers still block the free flow of online services and entertainment across national borders.... (read more) [3]

- Pillar 2: Interoperability and standards [4]

The internet is a great example of interoperability – numerous devices and applications working together anywhere in the world. (read more) [5]

- Pillar 3: Trust and security [6]

Security concerns remain of utmost importance for EU Internet users. (read more) [7]

- Pillar 4: Fast and ultra-fast Internet access [8]

New services such as high definition television or videoconferencing need much faster internet access than generally available in Europe. (read more) [9]

- Pillar 5: Research and innovation [10]

To attract Europe's best minds to research, world class infrastructure and adequate funding are crucial. (read more) [11]

- Pillar 6: Enhancing digital literacy, skills and inclusion [12]

In 2010 over 50% of Europeans used the internet daily – but 30% have never used it at all! (read more) [13]

- Pillar 7: ICT-enabled benefits for EU society [14]

Digital technologies have enormous potential to benefit our everyday lives and tackle social challenges. (read more) [15]
