    b. target group: drug addicted and otherwise addicted (adults and children)
    c. benefit supporting social inclusion: improvement and extension of care provided in resocialisation centres, with a direct impact on increasing probability of success of the clients' inclusion in social structures. The project's outcomes to date include:

        ii. Experience with social reintegration of drug addicted persons from 11 countries of the European Union,

    d. introduce into good practice: yes – reasons for introduction:
        i. the project target group involves drug addicted and otherwise addicted clients that rank among groups of population most at risk of social exclusion,
        ii. within a short time, successful project outputs have been achieved (under section b.) that will have a fundamental impact on future direction of social and legal measures for children's protection and social curatorship implemented in resocialisation centres, iii. The project outputs have been achieved on the basis of cooperation of a number of interested entities, with the drug addicted and otherwise addicted clients being represented in this process by non-state organisations - resocialisation centres - that have good understanding of their current needs and problems,
        iv. the cooperation had a positive impact on strengthening the exiting links and mutual information (on the nature of activities carried out) between the relevant stakeholders (state administration, territorial self-government, and non-state entities), which had a supporting effect on the introduction of other qualitative elements of care of drug addicted and otherwise addicted clients in practice.
