

Media pluralism and democracy

The UK welcomes the issues paper on this subject. It offers an excellent overview of the different measures in place at both national and European level to protect media pluralism.

2. This analysis identifies a number of areas of activity in which Member States individually or collectively can, do and should continue to act to safeguard media pluralism. However, the analysis does not suggest that any specific action is necessary to protect media pluralism which it would be appropriate to examine in the context of the revision of the TVWF.

3. The UK strongly shares that view.