00:00:16	Soundbite by José Manuel Barroso (in ENGLISH): Slovenia is facing a very demanding task: not only setting up and launching the necessary reforms but also building the indispensable national consensus regarding the need for these reforms. What is true for Slovenia is also true for the whole EU: the deepest ever economic crisis requires the deepest ever reforms which will deliver growth, jobs and prosperity.	00:00:33

00:00:52	Soundbite by José Manuel Barroso (in ENGLISH): In Slovenia, like in any other Member State, it is crucial to make a distinction between the crisis management, on one hand and the steady process of building the new financial architecture and laying the sound foundations of our economy on the other. We need both. We need immediate, urgent measures to prevent a future crisis; we also need a rapid consolidation of public finances that will not create difficulties for sustainable economic growth.	00:00:35
00:01:27	Soundbite by José Manuel Barroso (in ENGLISH): I want to tell you that the Slovenian Prime Minister also expressed her clear commitment to structural reforms that address macro-economic imbalances and improve the growth potential of the Slovenian economy, addressing also some difficulties that have been identified in the banking sector. We are looking forward to see the concrete proposals already in the national reform program and the stability program to be submitted in the context of this year's European semester. I am confident that an ambitious reform	00:00:44

	that an ambitious reform agenda if agreed and implemented quickly will pave the way to a rapid and sustainable economic recovery and that is for this objective that we are working with the Slovenian authorities.
00:02:12	Soundbite by Alenka Bratušek (in SLOVENIAN) saying that she would like to stress that lately in the recent months, Slovenia took many important measures; They have achieved broad support for 2 key reforms: The pension reform and the labour reform; They are also trying to decrease their budget deficit, they have adopted a law to help their banking system and to manage state assets.	00:00:36
