

Europa Diary

Each year, the European Commission publishes a European school diary for teenagers containing accessible information on consumer and other issues. It covers a range of topics which can be of interest or help to this age group. This is the seventh year of publication of the diary which is distributed at the request of teachers<sup>1</sup>.

The current version of the Europa Diary includes a number of religious events and other special days in relation to culture and history. It has come to my attention that the current edition of the Diary does not refer to those religious holidays and events, such as Christmas, that are of European heritage.

I very much regret this incoherence and am taking immediate action.

John DALLI

---

<sup>1</sup> The Diary is the result of a partnership between Directorate General for Health and Consumers and 19 other Directorates General as well as the Economic and Social Committee. It is meant to be used in the classroom under the guidance of the teacher.