

Albena VUTSOVA

Albena Vutsova, born 1950, Masters Degree (1974) with specialisation in semiconductors and electronic components, PhD (2008) from the University of World and National Economy (Bulgaria), Thesis "Integration of Bulgarian Science to the European Research Area". Diploma in Financial Management from the Institute of Chemical Technology (Bulgaria) (1996).

As Director of the Scientific Research Directorate at Bulgaria's Ministry of Education and Science since 1996, Albena Vutsova is responsible for the management of scientific project activities and the development of state policy for the financing of science and research. She is also National Coordinator for the EU Framework Programmes, for COST, and for the EU Young Scientists Foundation.

From February 1991 to January 2008, Albena Vutsova was Executive Manager of the National Science Foundation. Her earlier career included the posts of Senior Expert at the State Committee for Research and Technology (1987-1991), Manager of "Progress" at the Innovation Center (1981-1987) and Research Associate at the Institute of Instrument Design (1975-1981).

Her international experience includes several Phare, FP7 and NATO projects, both as partner and coordinator, as well as organising and speaking at global conferences.