Digital Life - chapter image

Computers, mobile phones and other digital technologies are a central part of our daily lives, and can address many of the challenges we face.

Through the Digital Agenda, the European Union is committed to making the most of these opportunities.

Under 'Living online', you will find policies and projects in areas including:

- Environment [2]: using ICTs to build an environmentally sustainable, low-carbon economy;
- Mobility [3]: ICTs to make transport safer and greener;
- Health [4]: making European healthcare both more effective and more efficient;
- Public Services [5]: providing better online public services to citizens and businesses;
- Trust & Reliance [6]: tackling the problems of social exclusion, fraud and abuse in the online world.
- In Smart Cities [7], digital technologies translate into better public services for citizens, better use of resources and less impact on the environment
