Their role

They advise the Vice President on different aspects relevant to the Digital Agenda for Europe \(DAE\) [27] and the future of digital society seen through their young eyes. In particular, the Young Advisors:

- Contribute to implementation of the Digital Agenda by offering their views on various initiatives, particularly with regards to aspects where there is a generational difference in perspective and aspirations.
- Promote the Digital Agenda for Europe in their own networks, especially by using on-line communication and social media.
- Participate the various events related to the Digital Agenda by bringing their own experience, such as the Digital Agenda Assembly [28], ICT Competitiveness Week [29] and Codeweek [30].

The Young Advisors were chosen to represent young people from different sectors and countries in Europe. Some of them were nominated by Vice-President Kroes, others were suggested by European networks of young people (e.g. European Youth Forum) and the Digital Champions. One-third of the group's members will be replaced every year.
