

Sir Tony Atkinson is a Fellow of Nuffield College of which he was warden from 1994-2005. He is currently Centennial Professor at the London School of Economics. He has been President of the Royal Economic Society, of the Econometric Society, of the European Economic Association, and of the International Economic Association. He has served in the UK on the Royal Commission on the Distribution of Income and Wealth, the Pension Law Review Committee, and the Commission on Social Justice. He has been a member of the Conseil d'Analyse Economique, advising the French Prime Minister, and of the European Statistics Governance Advisory Board, appointed by the EU Council of Ministers. He was knighted in 2001 for services to economics, and is a Chevalier de la Légion d'Honneur. His most recent books are The Changing Distribution of Earnings in OECD Countries, Top incomes: A global perspective (edited with T Piketty), and Income and living conditions in Europe (edited with E Marlier).

Anne Bucher has been Director in charge of "Structural reforms and competitiveness" in the European Commission's Directorate General for Economic and Financial Affairs since March 2011. Bucher trained as an economist and a statistician in Paris, and joined the Commission in 1983, working in various fields of EU policies. Over the last seven years, she has headed teams responsible for the evaluation of employment policies and economic analysis of EU tax policy. She was appointed Director for Resources at DG INFSO in October 2008.

Marco Buti has been Director General of the European Commission's Directorate General for Economic and Financial Affairs since 2008. After studies at the Universities of Florence and Oxford, Buti joined the European Commission in 1987. He held various posts as an economist in DG ECFIN and the Commissioner's cabinet (private office) before taking up a post as an economic adviser to the Commission President in 2002-03. In 2003 he returned to DG ECFIN as Director for the Directorate for economies of the Member States, and in September 2006 was appointed Deputy Director-General. Buti has also been a visiting professor at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, the University of Florence and the European University Institute

Lorenzo Codogno is currently the Chairman of the Economic Policy Committee of the European Union. In 2006 joined the Italian Ministry of the Economy and Finance, where he serves as Director General in the Treasury Department and head of the Economic and Financial Analysis and Planning Directorate. From 1995 to 2006, he worked for Bank of America, first in Milan and from 1998 in London, where he held the position of managing director, senior economist and the co-head of economic analysis in Europe.

Nick Crafts is Professor of Economics and Economic History at the University of Warwick, a post he has held since 2005. Previously he was a Professor of Economic History at London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) from 1995-2005. He also teaches for the TRIUM Global Executive MBA Program, an alliance of NYU Stern, the LSE and HEC School of Management. His main fields of interest are the British economy in the last 200 years, European economic growth, and historical data on the British economy, the Industrial Revolution and international income distribution, especially with reference to the Human Development Index. He has produced a substantial body of papers for academic journals, the British government and international institutions such as the International Monetary Fund.

Servaas Deroose has been Deputy Director-General at the European Commission's Directorate-General for Economic and Financial Affairs since 2010. In this capacity, he co-ordinates the DG's work on EU governance, integrated macroeconomic surveillance, EU2020, competitiveness and fiscal policy. After graduating in economics from the University of Ghent, Servaas Deroose worked as a researcher at the Economics Faculty of the University of Ghent. He joined the European Commission in 1985 and has worked mainly in the fields of macroeconomic surveillance (economic forecasts, economic policy co-ordination, budgetary policy) and EMU-related issues (economic convergence, euro adoption, imbalances).

Juan Dolado is Professor of Economics at Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. He has published many articles and books on subjects ranging from labour economics and applied macroeconomics to econometric theory. He was Programme Director of CEPR's Labour Economics Programme from 1998 to 2004, President of the Asociación Española de Economía in 2001, and has been a member of the Executive Committee of the European Economic Association since 2005. He earned his PhD from Oxford in 1988, after having done a Masters in Mathematical Economics at the London School of Economics in 1981, and a BSc in Economics and a Diploma in Mathematics at Universidad Complutense de Madrid in 1978 and 1979, respectively.

Luc D. Everaert is the Assistant Director of the European Department of the IMF and Division Chief for Euro area policies. Prior to this position he worked on advanced industrial countries (France, Belgium, and Netherlands) and transition economies in Central and Eastern Europe. Current research interests include Economic Growth, in particular the role of financial markets, tax policy, and product and labour market reforms. He earned his Ph. D. in International Economics at the University of Geneva, Graduate Institute of International Studies (IUHEI), Switzerland in 1987; in 1988 he was a Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Chicago (Department of Economics).

Carolyn Fischer is Senior Fellow at RFF, Resources for the Future. Fischer works primarily on policy mechanisms and modelling tools that cut across environmental issues. In the areas of climate change and energy policy, she has published articles on designing cap-and-trade programs, fuel economy standards, renewable portfolio standards, energy efficiency programs, technology policies, the Clean Development Mechanism, and the evaluation of international climate policy commitments. A current focus of her research is the interplay between international trade and climate policy, options for avoiding carbon leakage, and the implications for energy-intensive, trade-exposed sectors. In areas of natural resources management, her research addresses issues of wildlife conservation, invasive species, and biotechnology, with particular emphasis on the opportunities and challenges posed by international trade.

John FitzGerald is Research Professor at ESRI, The Economic and Social Research Institute, in Dublin. In the ESRI, FitzGerald is responsible for research on Macroeconomics, Energy and Environment and for the Institute's Energy Policy Research Centre. FitzGerald is the president of the Irish Economic Association; he is also a member of the Irish Energy Research Council and of the High Level Group on Green Enterprise. FitzGerald studied history and economics at University College Dublin where he took masters degrees successively in History and in Economics. He began his career in the Irish Department of Finance in 1972 where he was the Department's macro-economic "fire brigade" - responsible for economic modelling and policy analysis, as well as applied economic research. FitzGerald was a TK Whitaker Research fellow in the Economic and Social Research Institute in 1982/83, and joined the ESRI in 1984.

Indermit Gill is the Chief Economist of the Europe and Central Asia Region of the World Bank. He joined the World Bank in 1993 and has held various positions; his most recent being the sector manager in the Poverty Reduction and Economic Management Unit in the East Asia and Pacific Regional Office, where he was also economic adviser to the chief economist. Previously, he had been the economic adviser to the vice president of the Poverty Reduction and Economic Management Unit, as well as head of the network. During 1997-99, he worked as a senior country economist in the Brazil Country Management Unit. Upon his return to Washington and between 2000 and 2002, he served as lead economist of human development in the Latin America and the Caribbean Regional Office. His research has been published in several books and academic journals. Indermit Gill has an M.A. in Economics from the Delhi School of Economics, and a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Chicago.

Michael Landesmann is Scientific Director of the Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw) and Professor of Economics at the Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria where he is also department head of economic theory and quantitative economics. His research focuses on international economics, economic growth and structural change. Apart from his participation in and co-ordination of a large number of international research projects (European Commission, ILO, UNCTAD, World Bank), Landesmann is a member of the Coordinating Committee of the European Trade Study Group (ETSG), a main European academic forum on international economics.

Karl Pichelmann is Senior Adviser in the European Commission's Directorate General for Economic and Financial Affairs, acting as the Chair of the Programme Committee for ECFIN's Annual Research Conference in the past two years. He is also a Professor Adjoint at the Institute d'Etudes Europeennes of the Universite Libre de Bruxelles. Before joining the European Commission in 1998, Pichelmann was a Senior Fellow at the Department of Economics of the Vienna Institute for Advanced Studies, and he taught courses at the University of Business and Economics at both the undergraduate and graduate level.

Jean Pisani-Ferry has been director of Bruegel, the Brussels-based think-tank, since January 2005. He is also a professor of economics with Université Paris-Dauphine. Pisani-Ferry has made his career in research and policy. After having held positions in research and government in France, he joined the European Commission in 1989 as economic adviser to the Director-General of DG ECFIN. From 1992 to 1997 he was the director of CEPIL, the main French research centre in international economics. In 1997, he became senior economic adviser to the French minister of Finance and was later appointed executive president of the French prime minister's Council of Economic Analysis (2001-2002). From 2002 to 2004, he was senior adviser to the director of the French Treasury.

Olli Rehn is the European Commissioner responsible for Economic and Monetary Affairs. His present mandate took effect on 11 February 2010. In November 2004, Mr. Rehn was appointed as European Commissioner responsible for the Enlargement, after having briefly served as European Commissioner with the Enterprise and Information Society portfolio. Before joining the European Commission, he was an economic policy adviser to the Prime Minister of Finland, and Head of Cabinet of former Finnish Commissioner Erkki Liikanen. Rehn has had a long and outstanding political career at national and European level. He joined the European Parliament in 1995, where he was appointed Vice-President of the Liberal Group. Elected to the Finnish Parliament in 1991, Rehn led the Finnish Delegation to the Council of Europe (1991-1995) and was a special adviser to the Prime Minister of Finland from 1992 to 1993. Previously, Rehn was Member of the City Council of Helsinki and Deputy Chairman of the Centre Party of Finland (1988-1994), having been president of its youth wing from 1987. Rehn holds a doctoral degree in international political economy from the University of Oxford. From 2002 to 2003 he was professor and director of research programmes at the University of Helsinki.

André Sapir is a Professor of Economics at Université Libre de Bruxelles (ULB), a Senior Fellow at Bruegel, and a former economic adviser to the president of the European Commission. In 2004, he published 'An Agenda for a Growing Europe', a report to the president of the Commission by a group of independent experts that is known as the Sapir report. Sapir holds a PhD in Economics from The Johns Hopkins University, 1977. At ULB, he holds a chair in international economics and European integration. He is also a Research Fellow of the Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR). In addition, he is a member of European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso's Economic Policy Analysis Group. Sapir is a founding Editorial Board Member of the World Trade Review, published by Cambridge University Press and the World Trade Organisation.

Stefano Scarpetta is deputy director for Employment, Labour and Social Affairs at the O.E.C.D; his brief also covers OECD work on health and international migration. He joined the OECD in 1991 where he worked on a number of key projects of the organization. He moved to the World Bank in 2002 where he took over the responsibility of labour market advisor and lead economist. He returned to the Economics Department of the OECD in November 2006 where he became the head of the Country Studies Division in charge of Japan, Korea, China, India, Mexico, Portugal, Denmark and Sweden. From March 2008 to June 2010, he was the editor of the OECD Employment Outlook and the head of the Employment Analysis and Policy division of the Directorate of Employment, Labour and Social Affairs. His current research interests include comparative economic systems, the analysis of labour market policies and institutions, the role of regulations and institutions for productivity growth, creative destruction and job reallocation.

Hans-Werner Sinn has been President of IFO Institute and CEO of CESifo Inc. since 1999. At the University of Munich he has been a Professor of Economics and Public Finance since 1984. Sinn entertains widespread professional activities and affiliations, e.g. President, International Institute of Public Finance (presidency 2006-2009), Council of Economic Advisors, Ministry of Economics, Germany, and National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER), Cambridge, Mass. (since 1989) to name just a few. He has also held numerous research and teaching positions, including inter alia at Univ. of Western Ontario/Canada (1978/79, 1984/85), Univ. of Bergen (1987), London School of Economics (1989), Stanford Univ. (1990), Princeton Univ. (1990, 1998), Univ. of Utrecht (1991), International Monetary Fund (1991), Hebrew Univ. (Bogen professor, 1997), Univ. of Oslo (1997), Univ. of Groningen (2000), Netherland Institute for Advanced Studies (2006). Sinn has published extensively in various areas and he received a multitude of prizes and awards in the economics profession.

Frank Smets is Director General of the Directorate General Research of the European Central Bank. He is a Research Fellow of the Centre for Economic Policy Research in London and a managing editor of the International Journal of Central Banking. He has written and published extensively on monetary, macroeconomic, financial and international issues mostly related to central banking. Before joining the European Central Bank in 1998, he was a research economist at the Bank for International Settlements in Basel, Switzerland. He holds a PhD in Economics from Yale University.

Luc Soete is Director of the United Nations University research and training institute: UNU-MERIT located in Maastricht, The Netherlands and Professor of Internal Economic Relations and Director-Dean of the Maastricht Graduate School of Governance (MGSoG) at Maastricht University. He is a member of the Advisory Council for Science and Technology Policy (AWT) and the Royal Dutch Academy of Science (KNAW). Soete graduated in economics from Ghent University, Belgium. He obtained a DPhil in economics from Sussex University where he worked as senior research fellow at the Science Policy Research Unit in the late 70's and 80's. From 1984 till 1985 he was visiting associate professor at the Department of Economics at Stanford University, USA. In 1986 he joined the new Faculty of Economics and Business Administration (now called the School of Business and Economics) at Maastricht University as professor of International Economics Relations. In 1988 he set up the research institute MERIT (Maastricht Economic Research centre on Innovation and Technology) which merged under his direction in 2005 with UNU-INTECH to become UNU-MERIT. In 2010 he became Director-Dean of the Maastricht Graduate School of Governance of Maastricht University. He is a member of the Board of the Maastricht School of Management (MSM) and the Belgian media company Concentra.

Reinhilde Veugelers is professor of Managerial Economics, Strategy and Innovation at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven. She was a visiting scholar at Northwestern University's Kellogg Graduate School of Management, at Sloan School of Management (MIT), Stern Business School (NYU), ECARES/Université Libre de Bruxelles, Université de Paris I (Panthéon-Sorbonne), Universitat Pompeu Fabra & Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Universiteit Maastricht. With her research concentrated in the fields of industrial organisation, international economics and strategy and innovation, she has authored numerous publications on multinationals, R&D cooperation and alliances, industry-science links and market integration in leading international journals. She obtained research grants from the Belgian Science Policy Office, the European Commission (DG Research and DG ECFIN) and the Flemish Government (VRWB-IWT). From 2004-2008, she was on academic leave, as advisor at the European Commission (BEPA). She is currently a Senior Fellow at Bruegel, a CEPR Research Fellow and a member of Commissioner Potocnik's Knowledge for Growth expert group. She is also co-promotor for the Flemish Government "Steunpunt" on R&D Statistics.

Andrew Watt is Senior Researcher in the field of economic and employment policy at ETUI, the European Trade Union Institute. Watt has published widely in the areas of macroeconomic policy making and of labour market issues. Recently, he edited a book (together with Andreas Botsch) entitled "After the crisis: towards a sustainable growth model". Andrew Watt has obtained a MA in Advanced European Studies at the University of Basle, Switzerland and a BA in Economics and modern languages at the University of Surrey, UK. He has also studied Political science at the Free University of Berlin.