Your career

An academic education in literature and communication led my career to functions such as teacher, consultant in communication or communication manager. Afterwards I worked as an editor-in-chief for a generalist magazine for about ten years. At the same time I began some new studies and obtained a diploma in business management. I finally had the chance to be dismissed and took this opportunity to built up my own company.

Your motivations

I would like to share my experience and make it profitable for those who are starting the adventure of launching a business. I think I am able to help them avoid the mistakes I made and to drive them to what helped me.

Moreover I would like to transmit my deep conviction that, in order to manage a company and make it last, ethic, honesty and creativity are essential.

Creating “Femmes Magazine” -the first monthly French-speaking feminine magazine in Luxembourg, she answered to the need of many borderers and residents with the assets of success that are: “respect, seriousness, honesty and creativity”.
