Sharon is the inspiration and driving force behind Morphious. As Chief Executive she is dedicated to reaching some of the most disadvantaged groups in our society.

A serial entrepreneur, she established Morphious when she identified a gap in the provision of enterprise training. Her research revealed that whilst there was ample provision for people who already knew that they wanted to set up their own business, there was nothing to encourage those who had the ability but had never even considered this option.

Sharon brings Morphious her passion, energy and experience as an entrepreneur, enterprise service provider and a facilitator working with non-traditional groups. She regularly attends Resettlement Fairs at prisons in the south West of England and in Wales and has built up a considerable network of associates from the private, public and third sector. A dedicated networker on a local, regional and national level, Sharon actively develops and builds partnerships to enhance and extend the value of all involved.

In 2006 she was named "Women of Enterprise for Wales" by the DTI Small Business Service and participated in their national campaign to raise awareness of female entrepreneurship.

Morphious

Morphious is a social enterprise working with disadvantaged, hard-to-reach and marginalised client groups across South Wales to help them move from economic inactivity and enable them to contribute to society.
