Sue Stockdale is a role model who inspires others to achieve more than they imagined was possible. Her career began in Corporate Training and Development and she worked for a period with the United Nations in the former Yugoslavia. In 1997, she founded Mission Possible which she sold in 2009. She is now in demand as a motivational speaker, executive coach and consultant, working with clients globally.

Sue has an MSc. in Quality Management and Improvement, an MBA in Entrepreneurship and Business Venturing. She is also author of Kickstart your Motivation and Secrets of Successful Women Entrepreneurs and is currently working on her third book.

In addition, Sue is an accomplished athlete, representing Scotland in 3000m and cross country events. Sue was runner-up in Channel 4's Superhuman where she undertook some of the toughest tests ever seen on TV including escaping from a crashed helicopter submerged under water.

She has appeared on BBC's Ready, Steady, Cook and Test the Nation as part of the winning Explorers team.
