

Overview of REACH guidance

Joachim Kreysa (ECHA)
Brussels, 14 April 2008

Starting point

1. Guidance should be helpful – if you follow it you should be on the safe side.

Therefore:

2. Guidance needs to be acceptable and workable for all stakeholders that

- prepare dossiers (Industry, MSCA, ECHA)
- assess dossiers (MSCA, ECHA–staff/C'ttees)
- enforce REACH (enforcement authorities)

Guidance

- Shall be helpful - but is not law
 - As long as you are within REACH, you may deviate from the guidance – but -
- Guidance shows you the safe way to implementing REACH
 - because the important players agreed
 - they participated in the development of the guidance
 - and have accepted the text

Published guidance

- 1. Registration (Intermediates, Polymers, PPORD); updates published Feb – March 2008
- 2. Data sharing (incl. pre-registration)
- 3. Downstream users
- 4. Substance ID
- 5. Dossier & Substance evaluation
- 6. Annex XV dossiers for identification of SVHC, proposals for harmonised C&L, Restrictions

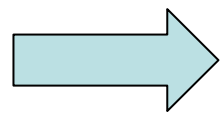

Forthcoming guidance

- 7. Exposure scenarios and CSA/CSR – May 08
- 8. Info on substance properties – May 08
- 9. Substances in Articles – May 08
- 10. Application for authorisation – Summer 08
- 11. Socio-economic analysis – Summer 08
- 12. Inclusion into Annex XIV – Summer 08
- 13. Priority setting – Summer 08
- 14. C&L based on GHS – Summer 09

Navigator

The Navigator helps industry to determine its obligations under REACH and find the appropriate guidance on how to fulfil these obligations. Under REACH, each actor in the supply chain has specific obligations and tasks for industry when dealing with preparations or articles, most of the REACH obligations relate to the substances that are contained in those preparations or articles.

- Therefore the use of the Navigator (in a Navigator session) applies to a specific actor in the supply chain.
- If you are dealing with preparations, the first step before running the navigator is to identify the substances in the preparations.
- If you are a producer, importer or supplier of articles and you have doubts on how to proceed, you should start by running a brief Pre-Navigator session. To do this, click first on "information for producer, importer or supplier of articles".

More explanations on the Navigator, including how to prepare before running a session, are available in the Guidance Documents section.

Use the Navigator
