

CURRICULUM VITAE

- Name: Bridges, James
- Nationality: British
- Education: BSc in Physiology and Chemistry
1960, London University
PhD in Biochemistry
1963, London University
DSc in Toxicology
1992, London University
- Current Position: Professor of Toxicology and Environmental Health,
University of Surrey, Guildford, UK. Also Dean for International Strategy
- Former Positions: 1962 - Lecturer in Biochemistry,
St Mary's Hospital Medical School, London University, UK
1968 – Reader in Biochemistry,
University of Surrey
1978 – Professor of Toxicology and Founding Director of the Robens Institute of Industrial and Environmental Health and Safety, University of Surrey
1988 – Dean of Science, University of Surrey
1992 – Head of the European Institute of Health and Medical Sciences, University of Surrey
2000 – Dean for International Strategy, University of Surrey

Previous and current areas of research:

Drug metabolism and kinetics, in vitro methods for toxicity assessment, luminescence analysis, mechanisms of toxicity, risk assessment methodology, human and environmental risks from waste management practices. Author or co-author of over 300 research papers and reviews.

Other activities

Government EU: Member of the Scientific Steering Committee (1997 -), Chair of the Committee for Toxicology, Ecotoxicology and the Environment (1997 -), Chair of the SSC Harmonisation of Risk Assessment Procedures Task Force (1998 -). Formerly a member of SCAN.

Government UK: Chairman of the Veterinary Residues Committee (2000 -), member of the WATCH Committee (1982 -). Previously member of various other UK Committees.

Professional Societies, etc: Member of the Board of Directors of ILSI Europe. Previously President of the British Society of Toxicology and of the Federation of European Societies of Toxicology.