Preface This brochure, produced annually since 2005, is the result of a combined effort between the European Forum for Responsible Drinking (EFRD) and the European Spirits Organisation – CEPS.

- + EFRD is an alliance of leading European alcoholic beverages producers supporting targeted initiatives to promote responsible drinking. These initiatives focus on attitudinal and awareness programmes, responsible marketing and self-regulation as well as the promotion of a better understanding of the evidence base. EFRD endorses the partnership approach with interested stakeholders to tackle alcohol-related harm. EFRD members include: Bacardi-Martini, Brown-Forman, Diageo, Moët-Hennessy, Pernod-Ricard, Rémy Cointreau and V&S Group.
- + The European Spirits Organisation – CEPS acts as the European representative body for producers of spirit drinks. Its membership comprises 37 national associations representing the industry in 29 European countries, as well as a group of leading spirits producing companies. The European Spirits Organisation – CEPS aims to raise and promote the understanding of the EU spirits industry to decision makers in the EU institutions, international organisations and other key stakeholders. Its role is to secure, promote and advance the freedom to produce and market spirits in a responsible way, to support the needs of its members and to be the leading voice of the European spirits industry.

Introduction

Treated responsibly, alcohol is a source of enjoyment for many people as recognised by the Commission’s “Communication on an EU Strategy to reduce alcohol-related harm”, adopted in October 2006, and supported by the Council of Ministers and the European Parliament. However, excessive or inappropriate consumption can cause health and social problems for individuals and for wider society.

This is why the spirits industry is committed to addressing alcohol-related harm, as illustrated by the European Spirits Organisation - CEPS “Charter on Responsible Alcohol Consumption”, adopted in 2005. The Charter includes the commitment to annually report back on progress made in reaching the goals the industry has set for itself by 2010.

To understand the full extent of the commitments of spirits producing companies, it is important to know that these companies do not simply invest in activities individually, but that they are also supporting the actions undertaken by the trade associations across the EU-27 and by the Social Aspects Organisations (SAOs) that they fund, typically in partnership with other alcohol beverage producers.

This brochure, which provides a non-exhaustive overview of existing prevention programmes undertaken in public/private partnership, serves two purposes: (i) to demonstrate to national and European stakeholders that industry is active in meeting its commitments, but also (ii) to serve as an exchange of practice manual to further improve the level and quality of initiatives being carried out.

This year’s brochure, in particular, presents results not only in terms of impact (i.e. how many people are reached by a given targeted intervention), but also an evaluation on the objectives set.

The conclusion highlights that a growing number of initiatives are being evaluated but that room for improvement remains in a number of areas. These will be addressed by the European Spirits Organisation – CEPS and EFRD by offering additional support to the industry on evaluation methodologies in the future.

Practical information

This brochure is also available online on the EFRD and the European Spirits Organisation – CEPS websites¹.

The recommended actions and industry initiatives are divided into a number of areas that are summarised and presented in the table as follows:

- + Initiatives targeting underage drinking that seek to discourage underage drinking and enforce legal purchasing age, in particular, awareness campaigns on legal purchasing age and sanctions for infringements. These initiatives also include education programmes at school, support for parents, campaigns at youth clubs, sports clubs, and special actions during nightlife, etc.
- + Initiatives targeting consumers to promote responsible drinking. In particular, information campaigns and initiatives to raise consumer awareness on sensible drinking levels (including campaigns targeting specific “at-risk” groups, such as pregnant women).
- + Initiatives to raise awareness about the dangers of drink-driving: for example, designated driver campaigns or any other actions promoting alternatives to drink-driving.
- + Initiatives to promote the responsible service/selling of alcohol: for example, training of bar staff and cashiers to serve/sell alcohol responsibly.
- + Initiatives to raise awareness in the workplace: for example, adoption of a specific alcohol policy, initiatives to inform employees or to support those having alcohol-related problems.

As a responsible industry, we are proud of our contribution to tackling alcohol misuse.

Every workshop accompanied by press releases to create better awareness about the important role of parents in alcohol prevention. On 15 March 2006, a press conference "Länder cooperation", Sachsen-Anhalt Magdeburg, was launched. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> More than 25,000 website users in 2006. More than 40,000 website users until May 2007. 17 parents' workshops involving altogether 273 participants. More than 55 workshops until Summer 2007. 25,000 brochures distributed. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 20 September 2006: press conference to present evaluation results in Berlin (published in Summer 2007: Ursachen jugendlichen Alkoholkonsums: Die Rolle der Eltern – Das Präventionskonzept "Klartext reden" – S. Roderer Verlag, Regensburg, 2007) Evaluation by Dr. Stefan Poppelreuter and Prof. Dr. Reinhold Bergler. 238 workshop visitors took part in the first evaluation step (answering a questionnaire directly after the workshop). 110 participants commented during the second evaluation step (telephone interviews or processing an online questionnaire 6-8 weeks after the workshop). Directly after the workshop: 90 % of the participants commented that the workshop has fulfilled their expectations (content, suggestions, knowledge, material) and 89 % of the parents felt better equipped for a talk with their children on alcohol (and particular for entering in a dialogue and setting rules and limits). Six to eight weeks after the workshop: 85 % of the participants actually carried out a conversation with their children on alcohol (eased by the information received during the workshop). They stated that the conversation met their expectations (47 % fully and 44 % partially).

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • It proves that the central messages of the workshop (“no alcohol for children under 14 years old”; “parents play a central role during the alcohol socialisation of children and adolescents”; “children and adolescents should first experience alcohol as late as possible”) are shared by the overwhelming majority of parents who also try to implement them. • Not only cooperation with the Federation of Parents’ Council is assessed positively but also cooperation with the “Working Group on Alcohol and Responsibility” of the BSI. • Parents felt encouraged and supported to approach the subject of alcohol and go into it more deeply. They are also strengthened in fulfilling their role as central agents of socialisation. • The concept can be rated as successful due to its high level of practicability.

Many liked the design and content of the worksheets and website also. A significant proportion claimed to have discussed alcohol either with a friend, parent or a family member as a result of the programme. Teachers positively rated the resources and the website in terms of user-friendliness and the active engagement of students. They considered the lessons successful in increasing awareness about the risks for young people associated with alcohol. They also considered the programme to be, on balance, either better or at least as good as other alcohol resources. Finally, most also would recommend the programme to other teaching colleagues. Parents were positive in their views about the website. A majority considered it to be a valuable asset in facilitating discussion around alcohol issues.
