

Even the title “a Europe free from tobacco smoke” indicates total patronisation of the – in your opinion – immature citizens.

In no bakery will you find the sales assistant smoking behind the counter. That shows consideration for the clientele, whether or not they are smoking.

I agree with protection for non-smokers, but I would deny any politician the right to impose a total smoking ban.

If such restrictions of freedom must be spread through “Europe”, then its ideas must be not be implemented, but a constitution for everyone will be a catastrophe.

Smokers have the right to get together in a building out of the wind and rain and to smoke in the process. Non-smokers have the right not to go there.

Yours sincerely,

Wolfgang Kampmann.

This paper represents the views of its author on the subject. These views have not been adopted or in any way approved by the Commission and should not be relied upon as a statement of the Commission's or Health & Consumer Protection DG's views. The European Commission does not guarantee the accuracy of the data included in this paper, nor does it accept responsibility for any use made thereof.