

A statement from European healthcare regulators on the European Commission's Green Paper on the EU Workforce for Health

Healthcare Professionals Crossing Borders is an informal partnership of healthcare regulatory authorities (competent authorities) in Europe with a focus on patient safety. It exists to develop and promote proactive cooperation and collaboration in information exchange between regulators of health professionals in Europe.

With a high level of professional mobility around Europe and potentially more patients seeking treatment abroad, regulators are keen to work cooperatively and collaboratively to contribute to safe healthcare in Europe.

We see the Commission's current consultation on the EU health workforce as a valuable opportunity to bring legal clarity to issues of professional and patient mobility in Europe and enhance patient safety.

We believe that:

- assurance of patient safety and professional competence should be paramount in any European Commission initiative on the EU workforce for health.
- all regulators must exchange information about healthcare professionals that has a bearing on patient safety in Europe and on professional competence.
- the European Commission should facilitate the easy identification of all healthcare competent authorities in Europe.
- competent authorities should be required to request a Certificate of Current Professional Status for every healthcare professional seeking registration within their regulatory jurisdiction.
- there should be legal clarity about regulatory responsibility in instances of cross-border provision of services, such as telemedicine and remote diagnosis.
- competent authorities should make their standards, codes and guidance publicly available.
- competent authorities should, where possible, work to develop appropriate competence assurance mechanisms.

We would like to avoid:

- provisions that enable practice in another member state without the host state being able to require, at least, temporary registration or pro forma registration in that member state.
- additional restrictions on competent authorities to sharing information that is in the patient and public interest, while acknowledging existing legal constraints.
- confusion for patients and the public as to where regulatory responsibility for health professionals lies.
