

Dr. Antonio Ghio graduated as a lawyer from the University of Malta in 2001. In the same year he also obtained an LL.M with Distinction in Information Technology and Communications Law from the University of Strathclyde.

He has been practicing as a lawyer for the past 11 years handling exclusively technology related matters including intellectual property, internet security, data protection and computer contracting amongst others. Ghio is a partner at Fenech & Fenech Advocates and heads its ICT Law Department.

He also lectures ICT Law and Cyber Crime at the University of Malta and has been a member of the board of the Malta Communications Authority for the past four years. Ghio is a member of the Chamber of Advocates of Malta, the International Bar Association as well as the International Technology Law Association.