The list presented below contains some references of empirical studies on ACT applied to sexual problems (i.e., exhibitionist) as well as in other psychological disorders in which the destructive experiential avoidance is the central functional component.

Spanish books on Internet addiction

Other articles, paper, etc, on sexuality, Internet and paedophilia.

With regard to follow-up studies, very few variables have been clearly shown to predict recidivism in child molesters. In spite of the process of Cybersex assessment remains in its formative stages, it is very important to examine the relationship between compulsive Internet use and adult sexual interest in children, in order to increasing shift toward efficacy relapse prevention strategies.

Listed here are a number of articles and studies on risk assessment and recidivism in sexual offenders and child molesters.

