There is some overlap between sections, please consult other related headings also. For instance, projects may be included under child-friendly justice or children in migration or capacity-building in child protection systems or support to victims. On occasion, projects are included under two headings. Where we are aware of them, we have added links to project outputs.

CHILD-FRIENDLY JUSTICE

2013 selected projects

Academy of European Law (ERA) – the rights of the child in practice: furthering child-friendly justice in European law – grant €213.000 – 7 MS (ES, IE, PL, FR, DE, LT, HR) - JUST/2013/FRC/AG

Recognising the stated aim of the European Union to provide an increased grant of training in European law, aware of the commitment to contribute to making the justice systems of the EU more child-friendly, bearing in mind international and EU law obligations to promote child rights and in answer to the current call for proposals (JUST/2013/FRC/AG), the Academy of European Law (ERA) proposes to implement a training series on the rights of the child in practice: furthering child-friendly justice in European law.

The project consists of the development of training materials designed to aid professionals who interact with children in the context of judicial proceedings and a pan-European series of 8 seminars with a duration of 1.5 days each. The overarching aim of the series is to improve the knowledge and understanding of participants of principles and concepts associated with ensuring child-friendly justice and sensitising them towards the challenges associated with children’s rights, including practical soft skills such as age-appropriate communication, establishing a child-friendly environment etc.

Since the European Commission adopted the EU Agenda for the Rights of the Child, identifying making the justice system more child-friendly as a key action item, and undertook to promote the use of the Council of Europe Guidelines on child-friendly justice, promoting child rights through EU legislative measures has become a reality. Recently adopted legislation contains specific provisions relating to children, e.g. Victim’s Rights Directive (2012/29/EU). It is essential that legal practitioners and other professional groups who interact with children in the context of judicial proceedings are familiar with the EU acquis in this area and in a position to apply it properly and consistently in practice.

1. Objectives

- The first objective is to develop training materials consisting of introductory presentations and practical case studies on three aspects: 1) General principles: international and European instruments protecting children’s rights in justice settings; 2) The right to be heard (Art. 12 CRC) in legal proceedings involving children; 3) Best practice guidelines for interacting with children in legal situations. Recognised EU experts have already signalled their intention to participate in the development of training materials and the ERA project team will be further strengthened by the recruitment of a key expert for the implementation of this project.

- The second objective is to organise a series of 8 training seminars using the aforementioned materials for a total of 290 participants (157 judges and 133 other participants with diverse professional backgrounds). The seminars will be organised across the EU in cooperation with national partners in Barcelona, Bucharest, Dublin, Krakow, Paris, Trier, Vilnius and Zagreb. A broad language regime has been chosen to ensure that participants from all across the EU can be reached. In addition to the national partners, the project is strengthened by other leading actors in the area of training and child rights (EJTN, Council of Europe and CRIN).

2. Activities

To ensure the sustainability of the project, presentations from each seminar will be made available to participants on paper and electronically. Online access to seminar documentation will be given to the project partners to enable further distribution at national level and for use in subsequent domestic trainings. In addition, a dedicated homepage integrated within the ERA website will ensure that information on the training seminars as well as the relevant materials can be easily accessed. Finally, to reach not only the direct participants of the training, but also indirect beneficiaries, ERA will record, and make freely available, downloadable audio-podcasts of selected presentations. This ensures that participants unable to attend can still benefit from the project, thus increasing its impact.

Defence for children international (IT) (DCI) Twelve: promoting the implementation of UNCRC Article 12 in the juvenile justice system – grant €173.400 – 6 MS (IT, BE, ES, GR, BG, LV) – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

In accordance with the main international and EU standards on children's rights and with the Child Friendly Justice Guidelines (CFJG) of the Council of Europe, children should have access to an adequate treatment in justice. Listening to children, hearing their views and recommendations, understanding their aspirations and concerns and taking them into account for decision making processes is key for policy and practice to become more appropriate and effective. It is also a human rights imperative under article 12 of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and a prerequisite for achieving compliance with international standards. International and European bodies have repeatedly encouraged states to adapt their legal systems to the specific needs of children. However national juvenile justice systems do not take CRC into consideration on a permanent basis, which often leads to not considering the real needs of children and adapting the system to them.

Including participation and listening (art. 12 CRC) as core elements of actions concerning children is conducive to more efficient practices and improved communication. Consequently, properly trained professionals working in the context of Juvenile Justice (JJ) on this is one of the first required actions for the purpose of a child-friendly system compliant with children's rights.

1. Objectives

The main goal of the project TWELVE is to contribute to the implementation of article 12 of the CRC, in line with the General Comment No. 14 (2013) of the CRC, in the field of JJ at the European level by developing a multidisciplinary training process aimed at strengthening and harmonising the skills and capacities of professionals in addressing children's rights and specific needs as a key element of an appropriate, efficient and inclusive action. The project will focus on the context of criminal proceedings.

2. Activities

To achieve this goal the project will be structured around three interlinked pillars: analytical national activities to properly assess the real needs both of children in conflict with the law and professionals working with them in 3 EU countries (IT, BE, ES); training activities to develop and replicate a multidisciplinary training programme aimed at improving the understanding of the CRC and informing professionals about how to implement its provisions in their daily practice in 6 countries (IT, BE, ES, BG, GR, LV); dissemination activities to ensure a European dimension as well as to share information and exchange ideas among professionals involved in JJ within the EU. The core partnership composed of 3 sections of Defence for Children International will ensure the connection with international bodies actively involved in JJ, such as the International Juvenile Justice Observatory and the UN interagency Panel on Juvenile Justice that are likely to support and spread the project's results. The process will be oriented and qualified by a group of advisors from different disciplines (juvenile justice, children's rights, transcultural communication) in order to ensure sufficient backing and expertise.

3. Type & number of outputs

The main outcome of this project will be a multidisciplinary training programme addressed to professionals working with children in conflict with the law in the context of judicial proceedings. The training programme will be based on the consultations with children and professionals as well as on relevant international and European standards.

Based on a human-rights approach, the initiative itself will consider the participation of children as a core element that will inform all the other components and outcomes of the project. A participatory, multidisciplinary and holistic methodology will be adopted in order to contribute to the implementation of a comprehensive JJ in Europe.
The TWELVE initiatives will last 18 months and will involve the following partners: DCI Italy, DCI Belgium, DCI Spain, ARSIS Greece, Pulse Foundation Bulgaria and Children’s Forum Latvia.

International Juvenile Justice Observatory – Improving Juvenile Justice Systems in Europe: training for professionals”– grant €279.500 — 13 MS (BE, LV, AT, CY, CZ, FR, EL, IT, PT, ES, UK, FI, IE) - JUST/2013/FRC/AG

Project outputs:

Participation of children in juvenile justice: A manual on how to make European juvenile justice systems child-friendly

This Manual has the purpose of providing training to professionals working with children in conflict with the law and is specifically geared towards improving their communication with children. In this publication, topics relating to children’s legal rights, interviewing techniques, communication, child psychology and pedagogical skills are touched upon in the various chapters.

The Manual aims to provide information and to give further guidance on the implementation of the provisions of the new Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on procedural safeguards for children who are suspects or accused persons in criminal proceedings. Information is provided with regard to the content of the Directive and how to implement the Directive in congruence with other relevant international and European standards in juvenile justice. This publication can also be used for the training of professionals in the field of restorative justice and mediation, in or around the juvenile justice system. The Manual has been prepared by the Department of Child Law of Leiden University and is part of the project ‘Improving Juvenile Justice Systems in Europe: Training for Professionals’, led by the International Juvenile Justice Observatory. Structure of the Manual: The Manual focuses on promising practices and techniques related to child-friendly justice. The aim of this publication is to disseminate knowledge on, and promote respect for, the rights of the child in conflict with the law. It covers the following topics: International and European standards in juvenile justice and adolescent development. General requirements: specific proceedings for children in conflict with the law, the role of legal or other assistance and the role of parents in juvenile justice. Effective participation: the right to information and the right to be heard. Communication skills: how to communicate effectively with children in conflict with the law. Follow-up and support: incorporating the views of children in conflict with the law in decisions and clarifying decisions.

In every chapter the implementation of the relevant international and European standards in practice is attended to. Basic requirements are given as to how to implement the standards in the different phases of the juvenile justice process. The phases that will be distinguished are: the phase of arrest and police interrogation; the phase of court proceedings and trial; the phase of disposition; and the phase of pre- and post-trial detention. Good practices are presented in the Manual that relate to the topics discussed in that particular chapter. These practices serve as illustrations of how certain principles or legal provisions can be implemented in practice and were provided by the partner organisations. Therefore, these examples come from the countries of the partner organisations taking part in this project. These countries are: Austria, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Finland, France, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Portugal and Spain. The partner organisations participating in this project are all members of the European Council for Juvenile Justice.

Improving juvenile justice systems in Europe: A toolkit for the training of professionals

The Toolkit ‘Can anyone hear me? Improving juvenile justice systems in Europe: A toolkit for the training of professionals’ focuses on promising practices and techniques related to child-friendly justice. The Toolkit and Manual aim to contribute to the dissemination of knowledge on and respect for the rights of the child in conflict with the law, both in informal and restorative justice procedures, as well as in formal procedures, such as court proceedings.
This publication has been prepared by the Department of Child Law of Leiden University and published by the International Juvenile Justice Observatory, as part of the project ‘Improving Juvenile Justice Systems in Europe: Training for Professionals’ led by the IJJO.

The Toolkit acts as a practical guide for the trainer in shaping and executing the training programme. The structure of the Toolkit and Manual is largely the same, but in the Toolkit extra information is added for the trainers. Every chapter in the Toolkit starts with the following topics:

- Learning objectives of the chapter.
- Preparation: the kind of substantive and practical preparation that is needed from the trainer.
- Summary of the chapter.
- Time schedule of the training session covering the chapter.

The Toolkit presents questions and exercises in each section of the different chapters focusing on the most important substantive and procedural issues addressed in that particular section. The questions are accompanied by model answers. The questions can be discussed with the participants during the training session or they can be worked on individually, for example as part of homework assignments. The exercises include interactive components requiring active involvement of the participants.

In 1978, the Council of Europe published a resolution on ‘the prevention of juvenile delinquency and the social integration of the young’. Since then, despite over ten recommendations relating to youth justice by the CoE, few concerted attempts have been made to meet them. Many EU countries do not fully implement the youth justice standards, the situation becomes all the more concerning during a time of economic turmoil. The UNCRC frequently expresses its concern that international standards on youth justice have not been fully implemented at EU level. Indications exist suggesting that the majority of European countries do not have a clear picture of the extent to which they are training their staff on juvenile justice standards and communication with children.

1. Objectives and activities

The project "Improving juvenile justice in Europe: training for professionals" intends to provide, at a EU level, information, knowledge and training to juvenile justice national authorities and staff working with juvenile offenders, to promote a better implementation of international standards concerning children in conflict with the law. The project is based on the recommendations of the IJJO White Paper on "Improving youth justice systems during a time of economic crisis".

The project will consist of the creation of training modules on Child Friendly justice and will follow a two part approach with a multiplier effect:

- training of trainers (partners and national Juvenile Justice stakeholders),
- national interdisciplinary workshops on child-friendly justice (defender, social, health, care professionals, penitentiary staff, staff of centre for children deprived of liberty etc).

One of the main objectives of this project will be to improve the EU youth justice systems and to understand where they can be made more efficient and more child-friendly, focusing on a better implementation of the Guidelines of the Council of Europe on Child Friendly Justice and international standards.

To achieve this goal the project will be structured as follow:

- Creation of a training toolkit and a manual drafted by a group of experts on juvenile justice and children's rights. A focus-group will be organised with children in conflict with the law in order to identify their needs and create case-management stories (communication with children, and gender perspective, etc).
- National workshops organised by project partners for practitioners and professionals dealing with children in residential care or detention. These workshops will focus on the priorities developed in the IJJO White paper (prevention, diversion, community sanctions and detention as last resort) respecting the principles of interdisciplinarity and child participation.
- Evaluation of the training sessions and adaptation of the toolkit and the manual on an online course through the IJJO e-learning Platform (International School of Juvenile Justice).
Final conference in Brussels to present the results of the project.

The training of trainers will focus on capacity building for partners and juvenile justice stakeholders and the content of national workshops will follow the IJJO White Paper ‘Improving youth justice systems during a time of economic crisis’ recommendations (2013), in particular how and why assess the need of children in conflict with the law deprived of liberty with a special interest in promoting restorative approaches. The accent will be given to the importance of developing individualised programs for children in conflict with the law, and specific knowledge for professionals concerning children rights, International and European standards, communication with children in order to foster their social re-integration.

Unlocking Children’s Rights enables professionals and practitioners working with children to:

- Strengthen their skills and knowledge of children’s rights
- Enable children and young people to express their views
- Communicate effectively and sensitively with children and young people in a professional context
- Ensure children participate meaningfully in decisions affecting them

The modules are all available for download:

- Module 1: Introduction to child rights
- Module 2: Introduction to child development and communication
- Module 3: Communication skills
- Module 4: The child-friendly justice guidelines

1. Objectives

Our project aims to increase the knowledge, skills and capacity of professionals who work with vulnerable children, to ensure that their rights are respected, protected and fulfilled and that these children are able to participate in decisions affecting them. The project will result in the development of a comprehensive learning system, including face-to-face training modules, e-learning packages and an online knowledge-sharing resource for professionals who work with children in residential care facilities, detention centres and justice systems across the EU.

2. Activities

The project will work with partners in 10 diverse EU countries (Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Estonia, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Poland, Slovakia and the UK) to create an innovative system and resources for professionals that are replicable and capable of being easily adapted across all of the EU Member States. An accompanying advocacy and dissemination guide will be developed to identify how training can be integrated into existing sector training, registration and accreditation systems. Training modules will be developed according to international and European rights standards and current understandings of good practice following a desk review and data collection in the 10 countries.

It is expected that modules will be developed on the following inter-disciplinary topics: 1. Understanding child development; 2. Communication skills with children and young people; 3. Understanding rights and issues faced by children in the relevant context (residential care; detention; justice systems); 4. How to explain rights to children in an age-appropriate manner; 5. Understanding the needs of particularly vulnerable groups of children (Roma children; migrant children; children with mental health conditions; children with disabilities); and 6. Skills on how to be child-led, including how to understand a child's wishes and feelings and how to create a process that takes these views and feelings into account. An additional module will be developed for justice professionals (police, prosecutors, counsel, judges/magistrates, probation officers, advocates and social workers) on how to make justice processes child-friendly, in accordance with the Guidelines on Child Friendly Justice. The training modules will be developed by an inter-disciplinary team of key experts, including lawyers, sociologists, psychologists, pedagogues and social welfare specialists, and will be developed through a participatory process with groups of young people in the 10 countries.

Training modules will be delivered by key experts to 1,000 professionals who work with children in residential care and detention and those involved in justice processes across the 10 partner countries. The modules will undergo a two-stage piloting and review process in these countries, in order to ensure that the modules are replicable across the EU and able to be used in the diverse contexts of all Member States. The project will work with sector training, registration and accreditation systems and organisations in each country so that the training can be integrated into existing State structures to ensure its sustainability. The project will also undertake an EU-wide analysis of training and accreditation structures to identify the best ways to integrate the training into existing structures across the EU. Training modules will include standardised skills-based content, as well as tailored content relevant to professions in each of the 3 sectors (residential care; detention; justice systems). They will include facilitators' guides, participants' handbooks, PowerPoint slides and sample tools that professionals can adapt for use in their work with children. They will involve participatory and interactive delivery methods. Training modules will be disseminated through an innovative web-based tool, which will also include e-learning courses with certifications, and a guide on how to integrate the training into existing systems.

1. Objectives
   • As underlined by the Guidelines on child friendly justice of the CoE (November 2010), lawyers representing children should be trained in and knowledgeable on children's rights and related issues. The need for specific training for lawyers has been underlined by the results of the European Commission’s study on children in civil, criminal and administrative judicial proceedings and also recently recalled by the Council of the European Union Conclusions on the Rights of the Child (15559/14).
   • The project TALE wants therefore to offer training to lawyers representing children in judicial proceedings on the international instruments to promote and protect children’s rights and the correct implementation of the CoE CFJ Guidelines principles at national level. This training will contain both theoretical and practical elements from a distinctly children’s rights perspective. Through a consultation activity with children involved in legal proceedings the project wants to ensure that lawyers' training includes children's voices.
   • The project wants also to produce and disseminate online training materials, developed and tested in the training workshops.

2. Activities
The main activities foreseen are the following ones:
   • Three one day training workshops will be held in all the countries involved. 20 legal professionals will participate at each training workshop.
   • A children’s consultation activity with group of approximately 10 children will be set up and facilitated by all the partners.
   • A specific online package of training materials will ultimately be produced and it will be disseminated through the network established by the project and the participants of the training sessions, representing wider networks of practitioners.
   • A newsletter will be produced and a Summer school will be held in order to promote and strengthen the exchange of information and good practices among the legal professionals in this field at EU level

3. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project
   • The direct beneficiaries of the TALE project are lawyers representing children in judicial proceedings in the member states represented in the TALE partnership.
• A group of 100 selected lawyers of wider organizations will participate in the training sessions while 1000 lawyers in the MS represented in the TALE partnership will be reached through the online training materials.
• Moreover a group of 50 Children will be involved in the consultation activity.
• Indirect beneficiaries will be children involved in judicial proceedings in the MS represented in the TALE project.

4. Expected results
• The in depth training will ensure lawyers improve their approach to the children they represent, and use their new knowledge of the national and international instruments to protect the rights of the child in their day-to-day practice.
• The active participation of children involved in judicial proceedings in the training workshops and in the creation of the training modules will guarantee that their views will directly inform the content, ensuring that the training materials are both relevant and responsive to children’s interests and needs.
• Finally the production of high quality training materials online will ensure that they are disseminated and accessible to a very large number of indirect beneficiaries.

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced
• A specific online package of training materials will ultimately be produced punchy, audio-visual materials that could be easily adapted to any jurisdictional context and integrated into the training programmes of justice professionals. It will include key tips/pointers for achieving child friendly approach, and be self-contained so that the materials can be used well beyond the life of the project.
• The package will also include a self-assessment tool with 34 simple indicators that will enable the lawyers and practitioners to chart their progress in achieving a child-rights-based approach to their work.

Advice on Individual Rights in Europe (UK) - Separated Children in Judicial Proceedings: Promoting a joined up child-centered approach by judicial and legal professionals to separated in children in judicial proceedings - grant €210.013,87 - Professionals in child protection – 4 MS (UK, BE, IE, HR) – JUST/2014/RCHI/AP/PROF

1. Objectives
The objective of the project is to build the capacity for legal professionals (including judges) to become more aware of the need for child centred justice in all judicial proceedings involving separated children and to benefit from the knowledge and tools provided so as to ensure that the conduct and outcomes of such proceedings always take full account of the best interests of the child as a primary consideration.

2. Activities:
A. Plan and host a series of events in the UK, Belgium, Ireland and Croatia (see work streams) at which legal professionals will:
   (i) share experiences of the situation of separated children in different kinds of judicial proceedings;
   (ii) learn how to use, for the benefit of separated children, remedies at the European Court of Human Rights, the European Committee of Social Rights and UN Committee on the Rights of the Child under the 3rd OP;
   (iii) expand their familiarity with the EU acquis (legislative and jurisprudential), the ECHR jurisprudence and the case law of the ESC relevant for developing child centred justice for children in situations where they and their parents are separated or being separated by relocation;
   (iv) expand their familiarity with the EU acquis, ECHR and ESC jurisprudence relevant for developing child centred justice of separated children in situations arising from seeking international protection as asylum seekers or victims of trafficking and assimilated situations.
B. Design and produce training templates and modules, drawing on the work of the events described above to assist legal professionals to use the knowledge and skills.

3. Type and number of person benefitting from the project:
- The target groups are legal professionals working with separated children. A maximum of 60 persons will be able to attend each event. Different people will attend in the four different jurisdictions – with some overlap, so that it is anticipated that between 280 and 340 individuals will benefit directly from attending the events.
A wider group of stakeholders will be assembled, including those from tangential fields and those responsible for judicial training and continuous professional development for practitioners. The templates and training modules will enable a much wider group of persons to benefit from training developed based on the knowledge of shared and experience gained from the other activities.

The ultimate beneficiaries will of course be the children themselves.

4. Expected results:
An increase in the incidence of child centred justice for separated children as a consequence of the heightened awareness of its importance, and a familiarity with the relevant tools brought about by the project activities.

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced:
- 6 mutual learning events (sharing of good practice)
- 6 training events (transfer of information)
- Production of material packages for each event
- Professionals trained (legal professionals, judges, NGOs, child protection professionals and multiplier effect)
- Training templates and modules
- Final report

CAPACITY-BUILDING IN CHILD PROTECTION SYSTEMS

2013 selected projects

Coram Children’s Legal Centre – unlocking children’s rights: strengthening the capacity of professionals in the EU to fulfil the rights of vulnerable children – grant €386,000.00 - 10 MS (UK, BG, CZ, EE, GR, HU, IT, IE, PL, SK) – residential care and detention – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

1. Objectives
Our project aims to increase the knowledge, skills and capacity of professionals who work with vulnerable children, to ensure that their rights are respected, protected and fulfilled and that these children are able to participate in decisions affecting them. The project will result in the development of a comprehensive learning system, including face-to-face training modules, e-learning packages and an online knowledge-sharing resource for professionals who work with children in residential care facilities, detention centres and justice systems across the EU.

2. Activities
The project will work with partners in 10 diverse EU countries (Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Estonia, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Poland, Slovakia and the UK) to create an innovative system and resources for professionals that are replicable and capable of being easily adapted across all of the EU Member States. An accompanying advocacy and dissemination guide will be developed to identify how training can be integrated into existing sector training, registration and accreditation systems. Training modules will be developed according to international and European rights standards and current understandings of good practice following a desk review and data collection in the 10 countries.

It is expected that modules will be developed on the following inter-disciplinary topics: 1. Understanding child development; 2. Communication skills with children and young people; 3. Understanding rights and issues faced by children in the relevant context (residential care; detention; justice systems); 4. How to explain rights to children in an age-appropriate manner; 5. Understanding the needs of particularly vulnerable groups of children (Roma children; migrant children; children with mental health conditions; children with disabilities); and 6. Skills on how to be child-led, including how to understand a child's wishes and feelings and how to create a process that takes these views and feelings into account. An additional module will be developed for justice professionals (police, prosecutors, counsel, judges/magistrates, probation officers, advocates and social workers) on how to make justice processes child-friendly, in accordance with the Guidelines on Child Friendly Justice. The training modules will be developed by an inter-disciplinary team of key experts, including lawyers, sociologists, psychologists, pedagogues and social welfare specialists, and will be developed through a participatory process with groups of young people in the 10 countries.

Training modules will be delivered by key experts to 1,000 professionals who work in residential care and detention and those involved in justice processes across the 10 partner countries. The modules will undergo a two-stage piloting and review process in these countries, in order to ensure that the modules are replicable across the EU and able to be used in the diverse contexts of all Member States. The project will work with sector training, registration and accreditation systems and organisations in each country so that the training can be integrated into existing State structures to ensure its sustainability. The project will also undertake an EU-wide analysis of training and accreditation structures to identify the best ways to integrate the training into existing structures across the EU. Training modules will include standardised skills-based content, as well as tailored content relevant to professions in each of the 3 sectors (residential care; detention; justice systems). They will include facilitators' guides, participants' handbooks, PowerPoint slides and sample tools that professionals can adapt for use in their work with children. They will involve participatory and interactive delivery methods. Training modules will be disseminated through an innovative web-based tool, which will also

SOS Children's villages – training professionals working with children in care – grant €801.800 – 8MS (BG, HR, EE, FR, IT, LV, HU, RO) – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

The proposed project is a two year partnership between SOS Childen’s Villages International, the Council of Europe, Eurochild, and national partners in 8 EU countries: Bulgaria, Croatia, Estonia, France, Italy, Latvia, Hungary & Romania.

1. Objectives

   The aim of the project is to ensure that the rights of children and young people living in care are met. Its objective 1 is to build capacity of Care Professionals (CPs) to adopt a child rights approach to their practice. The objective 2 of the project is to engage with key national and European stakeholders and to raise awareness on the need to sustain such trainings in the long run. Particular emphasis is placed on mainstreaming the participation of children and young people with care experience throughout the project.

   The project builds on the successful development of the Guide for care professional working with children living in care, “Securing Children's Rights”, hereafter referred to as “the Guide”. It was developed by the applicant and its partners through a 2-year process, including consultations in 3 countries and throughout different European networks. Problems and needs identified throughout this process have contributed to define the present project objectives and key activities.

2. Development of Training materials and Training of Trainers

   A European Expert Group (EEG) consisting of experts on child rights, child social care, child social work & residential care on the European and national level and young people with care experience will develop training modules, a handbook and supporting material. The core material for the development of the training modules will come from the Guide Securing Children's Rights and the Handbook Discover Your Rights, which map out the importance of the rights of children and young people in care and illustrate the key actions necessary for care professionals to undertake. Feedback from the national partnerships will ensure that the modules are responsive to identified needs on the national levels.

   The purpose of the International Training of Trainers meeting will be to ensure that the different national trainers will be empowered to deliver the trainings at national level.

3. National preparation and implementation of trainings

   To oversee activities on the national level, National Steering Groups (NSG) will be created in each partner country. They will consist of key national stakeholders, including but not limited to child ombudspersons, public and private child social service providers, youth groups with care experience and social work associations. Each NSG will organise the delivery of 4-8 trainings, reaching out to around 800 care professionals in total. These trainings will challenge CPs to rethink their work practices, to incorporate a child rights approach to their work & to ensure that all children & young people in care have their rights met as a fundamental basis of all care processes.

4. Awareness Raising and promotion at national and European level

   One of the key tasks of the NSG will also be to promote the trainings as a practical way to secure the rights of children in care and to identify how to ensure the sustainability of the project at national level. National recommendations will be set, as basis to develop national roadmaps to sustain the trainings after the project lifecycle ends.

   A European Steering Group will work on the European dimension of the project, linking it to key European processes and priorities related to children in care. This will lead to a final conference which will be held in Paris. The French Social Affairs Ministry has expressed written interest to support the project. This event will mark the launch of the European recommendations which will highlight all national recommendations, roadmaps for sustainability, good practices, outcomes and key findings of the core project activities.

Uisp Ciriè Settimo Chivasso - IRISES International Roma Integration through Stakeholders Exchange of Successful practices – grant €261.050,00 – 6 MS (IT, BG, RO, HU, SK, PT, GR) – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

Central and Eastern Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States (CEE/CIS) has the highest rate in the world of children growing up in formal alternative care settings. The number of children in residential care in the 22 countries in this region is extraordinary more than 625 000, the worst in the world. Despite strenuous efforts to bring these numbers down, residential care remains the first resort, rather than the last, for many children at risk. There is an overrepresentation of children from ethnic minorities. A recent European Roma Rights Centre study across six EU member States illustrates the dramatic overrepresentation of Roma children: in Slovakia – 82.5% of Roma children are in institutions compared to 9% in the general population; in Hungary 65.9% compared to 7%, in Bulgaria – 63% compared to 10%, in Romania 28% to 9%.

Large scale institutions are unable to provide the one-to-one support and caring environment needed for children to develop properly. Children living there are vulnerable to violence because they are separated from society. Ethnic discrimination adds further harm to these children. Procedures in large-scale institutions are not adapted to the age and maturity of children, and professionals are not trained to interact in a child friendly manner.

European societies should not neglect their youngest citizens. Europe's children, no matter their ethnic origin and family background are Europe's future.

1. Activities

Seven EU partner countries: Bulgaria, Romania, Slovakia and Hungary with the highest numbers of Roma children in residential care, and three other EU countries: Italy, Portugal and Greece, having increasing levels of children abandoned, will address the problem of inadequate support and discrimination of children in residential care in a joint project IRISES project (International Roma Integration through Stakeholders Exchange of Successful Practices). IRISES partners will contribute to the protection of the rights of the children by providing concrete practical support to practitioners/professionals and a majority of Roma children in residential care. They will exchange successful practices and provide training to practitioners/professionals and children in residential care.

2. Type and number of person benefiting from the project

More than 70 practitioners/professionals will be trained to have an age specific, child friendly approach. 700 children of age 10-18 will be involved in interactive, stimulating trainings on European citizenship and the rights related to it. Roma children will be supported to understand and accept their ethnic identity and empowered to participate actively at local, regional and national levels. Antidiscrimination and tolerance will be taught both to Roma and non Roma children in an attractive way using sports as a strong inclusive tool.

3. Type and number of outputs of the project

Partners will develop a practitioners’ guide in 8 European languages and video manuals on how to work with children in residential care and provide information on their rights. IRISES corners will be established in partners’ countries and large scale public awareness campaign with posters, events and media reviews. Three transnational roundtables (IT, HU, BG), 7 local press conferences and a final transnational conference (BG), involving large scale stakeholders and media will be organised to raise awareness of the problems of hundreds of thousands young Europeans whose rights are heavily infringed every day. Training modules and material developed during the project will be disseminated across Europe through the partners’ networks and the IRISES corners in each partner country. Partners will continue to provide trainings after the project ends mobilising volunteers and raising new funds. Media and social network reflecting IRISES project will reach European citizens in their everyday life to remind of Europe’s forgotten children and call for action.

Mental Disability Advocacy Centre – identifying and preventing abuse of children with mental disabilities in institutions – grant €334.744,79 – 4 MS (HU, UK, BG, CZ) – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

Project outputs:
This project will directly target some of the most vulnerable groups in Europe, children with mental disabilities in institutions. Through a combination of developing tested, peer-reviewed materials and training modules, and the direct application of those materials and methodology in training sessions for practitioners and visits to institutions, the project will ensure develop both theory and practice, having a real impact on the lives of many children, professionals who work with children, and the broader child rights context in Europe.

1. Type and number of outputs of the project

Key deliverables will be as follows:

- A toolkit, based on existing good practice, to identify the abuse of children in institutions (peer and expert reviewed and tested)
- A legal template, also based on existing good practice, to identify legal abuses and remedies (peer and expert reviewed and tested)
- A communication tool, to explain rights to children with mental disabilities (peer and expert reviewed and tested)
- Interdisciplinary training modules for professionals who work with children utilising the above materials
- 144 individuals, drawn from the legal, social and healthcare professions trained in how to use materials
- The same 144 individuals gaining direct experience of applying the materials/methods directly in institutions
- 36 institutions in four countries (UK, Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Hungary) visited, data collected, and synthesis report on findings regarding treatment of children with mental disabilities published

All findings and materials disseminated widely to maximise awareness, and ensure materials/methodology are utilised in future interventions. The direct monitoring activities of this project will provide policy-makers and lawyers with rigorous data on forms of abuses that occur in institutions. The active dissemination of the materials, in addition to the findings of the synthesis report, will apply pressure on EU member states to use the methodologies and tools to put in place safeguarding mechanisms and ultimately to remove children from institutions.

2. Activities

Training for practitioners/professionals dealing with children in residential care on the rights of the child and on how to communicate with children in an age- and context-appropriate manner. Development and delivery of training modules on access to justice for legal, social and health workers, who interact with children in the context of judicial proceedings. Training modules to be made available and be easily adaptable for use in all EU Member States. Training modules piloted in each country and adapted where necessary as a result of piloting Interdisciplinary training on the rights and needs of children of different age groups and on proceedings that are adapted to them in the context of implementation of Article 12 of the UN Convention on the rights of the child (UNCRC). Concrete policy recommendations for structural improvements to the provision of information to children on their rights by piloting good practice.

3. Type and number of person benefiting from the project

This project does not seek to directly address the needs of Roma children; however there is a direct correlation between the treatment of children with mental disabilities and the treatment of Roma. Children from the Roma community are disproportionately institutionalised often on the suggestion that they have mental disabilities. As such it will be important for this project to identify the multiple forms of discrimination that this group faces and ensure that access to justice for children in institutions is guaranteed regardless of race, ethnicity, and disability. The concept note for the project was developed by MDAC and the designated partners. The MDAC Senior Management Team initially met to identify key issues from our current Access to Justice project where we have identified that children experience the greatest level of abuse. Partners were identified strategically based on the need present, our established relationship with them, monitoring mechanisms being established under the CRPD, and geographic spread. This project presents pioneering work in that there is currently no established practice or approach for collecting data on abuse of children in institutions, communicating with children in institutions, and providing lawyers with the skills to seek redress in individual cases of abuse. The inter-disciplinary approach, engaging both lawyers and social/health care workers in sessions is also innovative.

Babes Bolyai University, Faculty of Sociology and Social Work - Participation, Experiences and Empowerment for Roma youth (PEER) – grant €693,608,60 – 9 MS (RO, UK, CY, IT, ES, FR, LT, IE, BG) – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

PEER will enable Roma children aged 12-18 in nine countries to actively engage as co-participants in action research processes. The goal is to explore and develop how they might become more empowered to participate in decisions and actions that shape their lives and bring about positive change at local, regional or national levels. This will be achieved by: 1) Supporting Roma children to develop and deliver training to build capacity; 2) Engaging Roma children as co-inquirers sharing and critically reflecting on learning from existing practice in schools and organisations working with Roma; and 3) Developing follow on action research initiatives.

Experienced action researchers and Roma children with participation experience will create initial training materials and deliver training to staff and children through NGOs and schools who have made a commitment to try to increase young Roma participation (WS1 Output). Piloting the effectiveness of this training, young Roma will evaluate existing participation activities or explore further action research activities, to reflect and learn from their personal experience. These activities will involve at least 3 groups of Roma children in each country and will give the participants greater knowledge and understanding about how to help bring about change on issues that are important to them (WS2 Output). The learning from these activities will be integrated into a finalised training manual on peer led action research and reflective inquiry with Roma children (WS2 Output). A report on the activities in each country, plus two deliverables that draw together these findings and outline implications for policy and practice at local, national and possibly European levels will consolidate and disseminate learning (WS2 Output). The development of training materials, exchange of learning and dissemination of outputs and deliverables will be facilitated by literature searching, social networking and information gathering about existing Roma participation activities, and integrated into an online information hub and networking site (WS3 Output). Children will share their learning with each other through coordinated quarterly online conferences (WS3 Output). Learning from these will be embedded through renewed action and learning cycles, to involve at least 3 groups of Roma children in each country, a total of at least 270 children in at least 12 meetings over a nine month period. Some children or groups may drop out and others may be recruited during this time so up to an estimated 540 children will be involved in robust peer participation activities (WS4 Output). At least 70% of these will be young Roma, but some groups may be mixed where this promotes inclusion and sustainability. We cannot define detailed actions in advance, as this will be led by Roma children, but in each country action will be taken on at least three matters that concern the children at either local, regional or national level (WS4 Output).

Evaluation of the impact of participation (on participants, practice, policy and structures) will be fully integrated into all stages of the project. To address barriers to effective participation and to train staff, we will provide up to two additional capacity building interventions. This may include training of policy makers (WS2 Output). The consolidation and dissemination of the working papers will be guided by the children involved and our evaluation of effective means of ensuring that Roma children’s voices are heard. The outputs will include: A revised advocacy guide aimed at young Roma; A guide to participatory practice with Roma children aimed at practitioners and policy makers (WS4 Output). These would be available online and would involve video and mobile aps as well as print versions. In addition, the learning will be disseminated through 9 national and one European celebration event (WS0 Outputs). Coordinated ethical reporting will ensure quality and safety in this work.

JUST/2014/RCHI/AP/PROF

1. Objectives
- Overall: the project aims to improve reception and care for unaccompanied and separated children, by structurally increasing the quality and quantity of family reception (alternative family care) for unaccompanied and separated children
- Specific: the project provides existing actors as well as actors developing alternative family care with tools for the training of professionals and practitioners that are counselling families providing alternative (family) care for unaccompanied and separated children

2. Activities
- Develop the training “Alternative Family Care”, the training for professionals and practitioners that are counselling families providing alternative (family) care for unaccompanied and separated children
- Create an e-learning supportive train the trainer package and supportive materials for the training
- Make the training available in 8 languages (EN, DE, FR, CZ, DK, SE, IT, NL)
- Implement the training – offered directly in the participating Member States (NL, BE, DK, DE, CZ and made available through a subcontracting partner in IT, UK and SE) and in two sessions to non-project partner actors from other Member States in a central train the trainer session
- Disseminate the training methodology, make the training materials accessible through website and online support

3. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project
- The target group consists of professionals and practitioners who support, train, assist and empower families that provide alternative care to unaccompanied and separated children. • The beneficiaries are unaccompanied and separated children living in alternative family care. The countries the project will reach represent the majority of unaccompanied and separated children living in reception and care in the EU. The total potential number of beneficiaries must be several 10,000s. To reach a significant part of the target group, the training will have to be offered by bodies with national reach into local and regional youth care, or specialized national bodies. The project partners and stakeholders suitable for subcontracting have access to the networks to provide such reach. As the project trains trainers, professionals and practitioners, who in their turn guide a number of families (between several up to 20 per professional), there is a multiplier.

4. Expected results
The project will directly:
• collect and spread practical knowledge about providing alternative family care for the specific target group of unaccompanied and separated children
• Improve alternative family care in Member States where it is currently already (scattered) practice throughout the country (NL, UK, SE, DK, UK, BE)
• Give an incentive to further use within countries where local good practices exist (IT, DE)
• Provide the possibility to set up alternative family care as a reasonable alternative to institutional care where it hardly exists, but opportunities and will for development are there (AT, CZ)
• As a spinoff, reach added value in non-EU states that have an interest (NO, SWI)

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced
• Training handbook “Alternative Family Care”, 8 languages, and training assistance tools (tip sheets, a board game and/or psychoeducational materials) and used in 9 or more member states

• E-learning supportive package
• Dissemination brochures
• Recommendation report “further developing Alternative Family Care”
• The training is included in the yearly programme of certified training institutions

Project website: http://ideachildrights.ucc.ie/about/

1. Objectives

- Develop networks of professionals to facilitate consultation, delivery of training and ongoing learning through collaboration and information exchange.
- Deliver interdisciplinary training on legal developments, child development, child participation and staff welfare.
- Engage in ongoing dissemination activities that will allow the benefits of the training events to continue after the conclusion of the project.

2. Activities

- Work-stream 1 (Literature Review): Identification of the existing state of knowledge on the implementation of children’s rights.
- Work-stream 2 (Network Building and Consultation): Development of a network of practitioners specialising in child protection. Practitioners will be consulted in relation to their specific training needs.
- Work-stream 3 (Training): Development and delivery of training modules and materials using a mixture of media, including in-person seminars and workshops, online delivery and practice tools. Training content will include (A) Legal Knowledge, (B) Theories of Child Development, (C) Child Participation and (D) Staff Welfare.

3. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project

- Lawyers representing children or children’s interests will be the primary target group. However, the representation of children is not primarily a task of lawyers in some partner countries, and is carried out by multiple other professionals, including guardians ad litem and social workers. Accordingly, other professionals will be included as appropriate.
- Across the five partner countries, training will be directly delivered to a total of 970 professionals. Ongoing dissemination activities after the conclusion of the project will facilitate a multiplier effect whereby the number of professionals exposed to the training and the materials will continue to grow over time.

4. Expected results

- Enhancement of the capacity of lawyers and other professionals who represent children in the child protection system in five EU Member States to adopt a children’s rights based approach to their practice.
- Embedding of knowledge on voluminous and complex recent legal developments in the area of child law and children’s rights.
- Ensuring that the right to be heard is translated into effective child participation in practice by complementing legal knowledge with the necessary interdisciplinary skills in communicating with children and models of child participation.
- Equipping lawyers to engage with and interrogate evidence presented by social workers, psychologists and other professionals in child protection proceedings by providing further interdisciplinary training in theories of child development.
- Giving legal professionals the tools to think strategically about how litigation might affect systemic change, thus extending the benefit of a successful action beyond the case immediately at hand.
- Equipping lawyers to pursue remedies using international mechanisms such as the European Court of Human Rights or Optional Protocol No. 3 in cases where domestic law cannot fully vindicate the rights of the child that they represent.
- Developing networks among professionals representing children in child protection proceedings in each country that will provide a framework for identifying and implementing best practice through ongoing development and training, collaboration and information exchange.

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced

- 22 in-person training events
- 8 online seminars
- 1 website with archived training events and materials
- 3 practice tools
- 18 conference presentations
- 5 academic journal publications

ABSTRACT:
Authorities, providers and youngsters in youth care all over Europe are struggling with aftercare strategies. A more efficient preparation of life after the care is needed, and a better understanding of the specific needs of the youngsters by social institutions and public services, once they have left care.

This project tackles those 2 aspects:

- After Care Protocol: a set of quality standards and actions, that are imposed by the regulating youth care authority to all professional actors with responsibility to youth care users in the phase of leaving care. A toolbox and train-the-trainer package are developed.
- A Way Home Hub: a structural approach to fight youth exclusion (as homelessness). This approach brings local community actors together to build a common understanding of the challenges faced by the young people leaving care. A toolkit and training package are developed.

Both strands are piloted in 2 regions: after care policies at regional level in Flanders and Carinthia, the ‘A Way Home’ model at city level in cities of Antwerp and Villach. 56 Child protection professionals, 40 community leaders, 300 young care leavers (direct beneficiaries) / 2510 young care leavers (indirect beneficiaries) will benefit from the project.

The combination of the Aftercare Protocol with the A Way Home Hub assures on different levels, and during several phases of the young person’s life, a guaranteed support. Young care leavers are better prepared in several life domains to have a better chance on successful transition and those who have a difficult transition decrease drastically.

Deliverables:

- After care Protocol with Toolbox and Train-the-training package, A Way Home Model with Community Planning Institute toolkit, Recommendations on Impact and Transferability
  - 4 Training activities
  - Awareness-raising activities: 1 Dissemination seminar, 1 Final conference, 3 press conferences
  - Materials: 1000 leaflets, 3 newsletters, 5 articles, social network profile, 1 website

ABSTRACT:

The RIGHT AFTER CARE project aims at the development and delivery of an integrated approach in dealing with the preparedness of care leavers to face the challenges of living an independent life, in compliance with the UN Recommendation in the Guidelines for the Alternative Care of Children, which underscores the need to “prepare children to assume self-reliance and to integrate fully in the community, notably through the acquisition of social and life skills”.

Leaving home and starting life as an independent adult can be one of the most challenging steps in any young person’s life; becoming independent after leaving care can be especially daunting. In Greece, young people leaving care are expected to become independent at a very early age, considerably younger than peers who grow up in their families. These young people face challenges without the usual safety nets on which to fall back. For young persons leaving the highly structured institutional care settings in Greece, becoming an independent and socially integrated adult is especially challenging and raises the risk of social exclusion.

The RIGHT AFTER CARE project is premised on the idea that investing in, and adequately resourcing, the acquisition of basic life skills for prospective care leavers is the single most important component for after care success and independence. The RIGHT AFTER CARE project will develop and undertake a comprehensive strategy to better enable care-experienced children in Greece to achieve their potential and deliver improvements in their educational, social and economic outcomes.

The RIGHT AFTER CARE project is comprised of the following two (2) distinct components:
- Life Skills Workshops
- After Care Plans
and is expected to contribute to the capacity building of:

- six hundred (600) care leavers in Greece
- one hundred (100) care professionals
- twenty five (25) mentors who will assist care leavers develop their after care plans.

2011-2012 selected projects

Bulgarian Helsinki Committee - Children deprived of liberty in Central and Eastern Europe: between legality and reform – 4 MS (BG, RO, PL, HU) - grant € 422,934,08 - JUST/ 2011-2012/FRC/AG

Project output:

1. Objectives
The project addresses priority 4.2 Promoting the rights of the Child with the aim to assess the compliance of domestic legislation and practice with European and international standards in the field of children deprived of liberty in the following countries: Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Poland. As a result of a common communist legacy, all the mentioned countries face similar problems in the living and placement conditions of children in closed establishments. International organizations consistently note the need for reform in institutional care and juvenile justice in Central and Eastern Europe and note that depriving children of liberty continues to be the norm. Yet at the same time, there is considerable lack of reliable and comparable data in the EU to provide a stepping stone for evidence-based policies on children’s rights nation-wide or on a EU level. There is also very little jurisprudence of international bodies capable to guide the reforms. Thus, this project aims to fill the gap and provide a systematic overview of the closed establishments where children are deprived of liberty, including those for children undergoing criminal sanctions, as well as children place in institutions for other purposes (educational supervision, medical treatment, deportation etc.). Thus, the project will help not only in the national reform processes but for the creation of a Europe-wide children’s policy.

2. Activities
- Firstly, the legal research phase will assess national legislation compliance with European and international standards. The research will serve to systematically identify significant gaps in the legal framework and malpractices and will propose adequate legislation change and alternatives.
- Secondly, the monitoring phase will evaluate different institutions where children are deprived of liberty. To accomplish this the project will adopt non-traditional approach, broadening the frequently used juvenile justice approach. This means that BHC and its partners will monitor not only institutions formally and informally part of the criminal justice system but also other closed establishments. The present approach better suits the project’s aim since recent judgements by the ECtHR ruled that certain institutions falling outside the juvenile justice system can be deemed as closed institutions depriving children of their liberty.
- The project directly addresses the call’s priority for projects covering access to justice, legal representation and assistance, participation, protection in judicial proceedings, privacy, mediation, detention - as it will evaluate and monitor the placement and living conditions in terms of material base and rights/opportunities. Having experience in conducting similar monitoring studies, BHC and its partners will use a tested research methodology in its legal research and monitoring.
- The media and advocacy phase will target law enforcement officials, civil society actors and society by raising awareness about children deprived of liberty and calling for reform in the sphere of childcare in the region. The beneficiaries of the project are children, falling within such conditions. The end result should encourage an approach centered on the child and its individual needs. This phase will continue throughout the whole period of the project so that any findings by the monitoring team will be publicized at the right time through traditional and social media work, campaigns, press conferences and roundtables, depending on the national context.
The project will aim to spread best practices among partnering countries through workshops and trainings as well as among other EU and non-EU countries by making available the findings to civil society actors. The project will end with a closing conference in Budapest, Hungary, where the organizations will jointly present their findings in the form of a book containing national chapters.

Practical guide: monitoring places where children are detained

Several international human rights institutions conduct monitoring visits to places of detention with the aim of supervising conditions of detention and preventing torture and other human rights violations. At the European and UN levels: the CPT, the SPT, the NP M under the OPCAT and the CAT. These monitoring bodies, in particular the CPT and the SPT, implement regular visits to detention centres to verify living and procedural conditions of detainees, including juvenile detention facilities and police cells. Practical guidelines do exist and are used by these organisations, when visiting detention centres for adults. They establish the procedures for the visits to detention centres. According to the UNCRC “a child has the right to special protection given her/his vulnerability and special needs” (art. 37 and 40).

Across Europe there are many children in closed centres deprived of their liberty. However, there are no – contrary to the situation for adults - guidelines to properly monitor living and detention conditions of these children. Children are not adults and have particular needs and rights. Thus, when it comes to visit closed centres, special criteria must be taken into account. For example, different techniques apply when interviewing children; special multidisciplinary procedures (pedagogical, psychological, etc.) must be applied in order to properly assess the situation of the child. A the ultimate aim of the detention is rehabilitation: one must therefore work towards the child’s reinsertion into society. Based on this, international human rights law includes specific standards for children in detention. Monitoring juvenile detentions also requires specialization, with precise methodology and trained monitors. Currently there are not harmonised criteria in Europe for the assessment of the situation of these children. Lack of basic criteria jeopardises adequate coordination and harmonisation of practices between the monitoring bodies, and also hampers the obtainment of comparable information on the actual situation of these children and the strength of these mechanisms. This leads to a misuse of existing resources in the plight to prevent human rights violations. The ultimate goal of this project is the respect of human rights of children deprived of liberty. To achieve this goal it is essential that monitoring bodies work in a cooperative, mutual trust and harmonised way at international level but also between international and national level, and that they have practical tools to do so.

1. Type of outputs

The main outcome of this project will be a practical Guide to be used by professionals when visiting centres where children are being deprived of their liberty, particularly juvenile detention facilities. The Guide will be based among others on: national researches conducted by each partners; the expertise of several professionals: lawyers and academics, experts working for the monitoring bodies (SPT, CPT...), active NGOs at international level as well as in the field; relevant European and international legal standards; results and inputs from the 3 European meetings. Other deliverables, besides the Guide, will be a website and an explanatory brochure.
2. Expected results

Expected results of the project are: cooperation between EU member States; a common assessment criteria that will take into account special needs of children deprived of liberty; more effective methods to identify and react to the human rights violations of children in the framework of detention; better coordination and harmonised practices between existing monitoring bodies, fostering synergies and complementarities; regional impact: the Guide is to be used and applied by professionals throughout all MS. It will be presented at a final conference where representatives of MS will be invited and it will be presented to the experts of the monitoring bodies. For the follow-up of the project several activities using this Guide will be undertaken at the national and international level.

Mental Disability Advocacy Centre (MDAC) – Identifying and preventing abuse of children with mental disabilities in institutions (4 Member States: BG, CZ, HU, UK) – grant €334,744,79 – JUST/2013/FRAC/AG/6348

Project outputs:

Findings from monitoring visits in BG, CZ, HU, UK (published 2017):
CHARM Toolkit: http://mdac.info/en/charm-toolkit (available in BG, CZ, EN, HU): Link to EN version:

The methodology has been closely aligned with European and international human rights standards and is comprised of seven parts, with extensive cross-referencing:

1. An introduction - Describing how to use the overall methodology
2. Legal Handbook - Setting out key human rights standards and international norms on monitoring places of detention
4. Communication Handbook - On how to effectively communicate with children with a variety of communication methods
5. Training Guide - A specialist guide on training inter-disciplinary teams of monitors
6. Toolbox for Monitors - Made up of numerous practical tools to assist in conducting monitoring visits
7. Model Child Protection Policy - Setting out practical advice on dealing with child protection issues, which can be adapted in different contexts.

Summary This project will directly target some of the most vulnerable groups in Europe, children with mental disabilities in institutions. Through a combination of developing tested, peer-reviewed materials and training modules, and the direct application of those materials and methodology in training sessions for practitioners and visits to institutions, the project will ensure develop both theory and practice, having a real impact on the lives of many children, professionals who work with children, and the broader child rights context in Europe.

Key deliverables will be as follows:

A toolkit, based on existing good practice, to identify the abuse of children in institutions (peer and expert reviewed and tested)
A legal template, also based on existing good practice, to identify legal abuses and remedies (peer and expert reviewed and tested)
A communication tool, to explain rights to children with mental disabilities (peer and expert reviewed and tested)
Interdisciplinary training modules for professionals who work with children utilising the above materials 144 individuals, drawn from the legal, social and healthcare professions trained in how to use materials The same 144 individuals gaining direct experience of applying the materials/methods directly in institutions
36 institutions in four countries (UK, Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Hungary) visited, data collected, and synthesis report on findings regarding treatment of children with mental disabilities published.

All findings and materials disseminated widely to maximise awareness, and ensure materials/methodology are utilised in future interventions.

The direct monitoring activities of this project will provide policymakers and lawyers with rigorous data on forms of abuses that occur in institutions. The active dissemination of the materials, in addition to the findings of the synthesis report, will apply pressure on EU member states to use the methodologies and tools to put in place safeguarding mechanisms and ultimately to remove children from institutions.

International Juvenile Justice Observatory – Improving Juvenile Justice Systems in Europe: training for professionals – grant €279.500 — 13 MS (BE, LV, AT, CY, CZ, FR, EL, IT, PT, ES, UK, FI, IE) - JUST/2013/FRC/AG

Project outputs:

Participation of children in juvenile justice: A manual on how to make European juvenile justice systems child-friendly

This Manual has the purpose of providing training to professionals working with children in conflict with the law and is specifically geared towards improving their communication with children. In this publication, topics relating to children’s legal rights, interviewing techniques, communication, child psychology and pedagogical skills are touched upon in the various chapters.

The Manual aims to provide information and to give further guidance on the implementation of the provisions of the new Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on procedural safeguards for children who are suspects or accused persons in criminal proceedings. Information is provided with regard to the content of the Directive and how to implement the Directive in congruence with other relevant international and European standards in juvenile justice. This publication can also be used for the training of professionals in the field of restorative justice and mediation, in or around the juvenile justice system.

The Manual has been prepared by the Department of Child Law of Leiden University and is part of the project ‘Improving Juvenile Justice Systems in Europe: Training for Professionals’, led by the International Juvenile Justice Observatory.

Structure of the Manual

The Manual focuses on promising practices and techniques related to child-friendly justice. The aim of this publication is to disseminate knowledge on, and promote respect for, the rights of the child in conflict with the law. It covers the following topics:

- International and European standards in juvenile justice and adolescent development.
- General requirements: specific proceedings for children in conflict with the law, the role of legal or other assistance and the role of parents in juvenile justice.
- Effective participation: the right to information and the right to be heard.
- Communication skills: how to communicate effectively with children in conflict with the law.
- Follow-up and support: incorporating the views of children in conflict with the law in decisions and clarifying decisions.

In every chapter the implementation of the relevant international and European standards in practice is attended to. Basic requirements are given as to how to implement the standards in the different phases of the juvenile justice process. The phases that will be distinguished are: the phase of arrest and police interrogation; the phase of court proceedings and trial; the phase of disposition; and the phase of pre- and post-trial detention.

Good practices are presented in the Manual that relate to the topics discussed in that particular chapter. These practices serve as illustrations of how certain principles or legal provisions can be implemented in practice and were provided by the partner organisations. Therefore, these examples come from the countries of the partner organisations taking part in this project. These countries are: Austria, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Finland, France, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Portugal and Spain. The partner organisations participating in this project are all members of the European Council for Juvenile Justice.
Toolkit in EN and PT:  http://www.oijj.org/en/improvingjjstoolkit  “Can anyone hear me?”

Improving juvenile justice systems in Europe: A toolkit for the training of professionals

The Toolkit ‘Can anyone hear me? Improving juvenile justice systems in Europe: A toolkit for the training of professionals’ focuses on promising practices and techniques related to child-friendly justice. The Toolkit and Manual aim to contribute to the dissemination of knowledge on and respect for the rights of the child in conflict with the law, both in informal and restorative justice procedures, as well as in formal procedures, such as court proceedings.

This publication has been prepared by the Department of Child Law of Leiden University and published by the International Juvenile Justice Observatory, as part of the project ‘Improving Juvenile Justice Systems in Europe: Training for Professionals’ led by the IJJO.

The Toolkit acts as a practical guide for the trainer in shaping and executing the training programme. The structure of the Toolkit and Manual is largely the same, but in the Toolkit extra information is added for the trainers. Every chapter in the Toolkit starts with the following topics:

Learning objectives of the chapter.
Preparation: the kind of substantive and practical preparation that is needed from the trainer.
Summary of the chapter.
Time schedule of the training session covering the chapter.

The Toolkit presents questions and exercises in each section of the different chapters focusing on the most important substantive and procedural issues addressed in that particular section. The questions are accompanied by model answers. The questions can be discussed with the participants during the training session or they can be worked on individually, for example as part of homework assignments. The exercises include interactive components requiring active involvement of the participants.

In 1978, the Council of Europe published a resolution on ‘the prevention of juvenile delinquency and the social integration of the young’. Since then, despite over ten recommendations relating to youth justice by the CoE, few concerted attempts have been made to meet them. Many EU countries do not fully implement the youth justice standards, the situation becomes all the more concerning during a time of economic turmoil. The UNCRC frequently expresses its concern that international standards on youth justice have not been fully implemented at EU level. Indications exist suggesting that the majority of European countries do not have a clear picture of the extent to which they are training their staff on juvenile justice standards and communication with children.

1. Objectives and activities

The project “Improving juvenile justice in Europe: training for professionals” intends to provide, at a EU level, information, knowledge and training to juvenile justice national authorities and staff working with juvenile offenders, to promote a better implementation of international standards concerning children in conflict with the law. The project is based on the recommendations of the IJJO White Paper on "Improving youth justice systems during a time of economic crisis".

The project will consist of the creation of training modules on Child Friendly justice and will follow a two part approach with a multiplier effect:

- training of trainers ( partners and national Juvenile Justice stakeholders),

- national interdisciplinary workshops on child-friendly justice (defender, social, health, care professionals, penitentiary staff, staff of centre for children deprived of liberty etc).

One of the main objectives of this project will be to improve the EU youth justice systems and to understand where they can be made more efficient and more child-friendly, focusing on a better implementation of the Guidelines of the Council of Europe on Child Friendly Justice and international standards.

To achieve this goal the project will be structured as follow:

- Creation of a training toolkit and a manual drafted by a group of experts on juvenile justice and children's rights. A focus-group will be organised with children in conflict with the law in order to identify their needs and create case-management stories (communication with children, and gender perspective, etc).
- National workshops organised by project partners for practitioners and professionals dealing with children in residential care or detention. These workshops will focus on the priorities developed in the IJJO White paper (prevention, diversion, community sanctions and detention as last resort) respecting the principles of interdisciplinarity and child participation.

- Evaluation of the training sessions and adaptation of the toolkit and the manual on an online course through the IJJO e-learning Platform (International School of Juvenile Justice).

- Final conference in Brussels to present the results of the project.

The training of trainers will focus on capacity building for partners and juvenile justice stakeholders and the content of national workshops will follow the IJJO White Paper ‘Improving youth justice systems during a time of economic crisis’ recommendations (2013), in particular how and why assess the need of children in conflict with the law deprived of liberty with a special interest in promoting restorative approaches. The accent will be given to the importance of developing individualised programs for children in conflict with the law, and specific knowledge for professionals concerning children rights, International and European standards, communication with children in order to foster their social reintegration.

Coram Children’s Legal Centre – unlocking children’s rights: strengthening the capacity of professionals in the EU to fulfil the rights of vulnerable children – grant €386,000.00 - 10 MS (UK, BG, CZ, EE, GR, HU, IT, IE, PL, SK) – residential care and detention – JUST/2013/FRC/AG

Unlocking Children’s Rights enables professionals and practitioners working with children to:

- Strengthen their skills and knowledge of children’s rights
- Enable children and young people to express their views
- Communicate effectively and sensitively with children and young people in a professional context
- Ensure children participate meaningfully in decisions affecting them

The modules are all available for download:

- Module 1: Introduction to child rights
- Module 2: Introduction to child development and communication
- Module 3: Communication skills
- Module 4: The child-friendly justice guidelines

1. Objectives

Our project aims to increase the knowledge, skills and capacity of professionals who work with vulnerable children, to ensure that their rights are respected, protected and fulfilled and that these children are able to participate in decisions affecting them. The project will result in the development of a comprehensive learning system, including face-to-face training modules, e-learning packages and an online knowledge-sharing resource for professionals who work with children in residential care facilities, detention centres and justice systems across the EU.

2. Activities

The project will work with partners in 10 diverse EU countries (Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Estonia, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Poland, Slovakia and the UK) to create an innovative system and resources for professionals that are replicable and capable of being easily adapted across all of the EU Member States. An accompanying advocacy and dissemination guide will be developed to identify how training can be integrated into existing sector training, registration and accreditation systems. Training modules will be developed according to international and European rights standards and current understandings of good practice following a desk review and data collection in the 10 countries.

It is expected that modules will be developed on the following inter-disciplinary topics: 1. Understanding child development; 2. Communication skills with children and young people; 3. Understanding rights and issues faced by children in the relevant context (residential care; detention; Justice systems); 4. How to explain rights to children in an age-appropriate manner; 5. Understanding the needs of particularly vulnerable groups of children (Roma children; migrant children; children with mental health conditions; children with disabilities); and 6. Skills on how to be child-led, including how to understand a child's wishes and feelings and how to create a process that takes these views and feelings into account. An additional module will be developed for justice professionals (police, prosecutors, counsel, judges/magistrates, probation officers, advocates and social workers) on how to make justice processes child-friendly, in accordance with the Guidelines on Child Friendly Justice. The training modules will be developed by an inter-disciplinary team of key experts, including lawyers, sociologists, psychologists, pedagogues and social welfare specialists, and will be developed through a participatory process with groups of young people in the 10 countries.

Training modules will be delivered by key experts to 1,000 professionals who work with children in residential care and detention and those involved in justice processes across the 10 partner countries. The modules will undergo a two-stage piloting and review process in these countries, in order to ensure that the modules are replicable across the EU and able to be used in the diverse contexts of all Member States. The project will work with sector training, registration and accreditation systems and organisations in each country so that the training can be integrated into existing State structures to ensure its sustainability. The project will also undertake an EU-wide analysis of training and accreditation structures to identify the best ways to integrate the training into existing structures across the EU. Training modules will include standardised skills-based content, as well as tailored content relevant to professions in each of the 3 sectors (residential care; detention; justice systems). They will include facilitators' guides, participants' handbooks, PowerPoint slides and sample tools that professionals can adapt for use in their work with children. They will involve participatory and interactive delivery methods. Training modules will be disseminated through an innovative web-based tool, which will also include e-learning courses with certifications, and a guide on how to integrate the training into existing systems.

THE PROTECTION OF CHILDREN IN MIGRATION

2011-2012 selected projects

European Council On Refugees And Exiles- Right To Justice: Quality Legal Assistance For Unaccompanied Children – 7 MS (BE, AT, BG, DK, UK, IT, ES) - grant €167.424,00 - JUST/ 2011-2012/FRC/AG

See project results and outputs: ECRE: Quality legal assistance for unaccompanied children (2014) and http://www.ecre.org/publications/ (tab "women and children")

1. Objectives
The project aims to contribute to a common approach to guarantee unaccompanied children’s right to justice. The project focuses on access to quality legal assistance as it is essential to ensure fair access to justice in all legal procedures that can affect unaccompanied children. EU legislation provides for the appointment of a “representative” for unaccompanied children but not necessarily for legal assistance. Though in some cases, the representative is a lawyer, there is no common understanding at European level of the qualifications and powers of this representative. General Comment no 6 of the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child states that unaccompanied children should be provided with legal representation in addition to a guardian when referred to asylum procedures or other administrative and judicial proceedings (paras 21 and 36). Therefore, proper legal assistance, by a lawyer or legal adviser with specific knowledge in issues related to unaccompanied children should be ensured in order to safeguard the right to effective remedies, the right to be heard and having the best interests of the child as the primary consideration. The project therefore seeks to raise awareness, develop recommendations and promote good practices on legal assistance to unaccompanied children among legal advisers and professionals working with separated children.

2. Activities

To achieve this, the project will be implemented during 18 months and include 3 main activities:

- A comparative study in 7 Member states (AT, BE, BG, DK, ES, GB and IT) on access to and quality of legal assistance to unaccompanied children during the border and accelerated procedures, the age determination procedures, the asylum procedure and the return procedure. It will look at conditions and availability of legal assistance, training and qualifications of the legal advisers, as well as how the child’s views are taken into account. The study will include a set of recommendations informed by the findings and the good practices identified. An executive summary and the recommendations will be translated in the languages of the countries covered in the project.
- A workshop of experts to exchange information, good practices and challenges, as well as discuss the draft recommendations to be included in the final study
- An international conference where the study findings and recommendations will be presented to EU and national practitioners and policy makers.

The project will be coordinated by ECRE who will take the lead in the methodology and the drafting of the final report and recommendations. Five national partners (Asylkoordination (AT); Legal Clinic for Refugees and Immigrants (BG); the Danish Refugee Council (DK); the British Refugee Council (GB) and the Italian Council for Refugee (IT)), ECRE (BE) and one consultant (ES) will carry out the research in 7 countries through desk research and qualitative interviews with legal practitioners, professional working with children, policy makers and unaccompanied children. ECRE and the national partners will receive support and feedback from an advisory board composed of Save the Children EU Office, the Separated Children in Europe Programme (SCEP), the Immigration Law Practitioners’ Association (ILPA) and UNHCR.

JUST/2014/RCHI/AP/PROF

• Implement the training – offered directly in the participating Member States (NL, BE, DK, DE, CZ and made available through a subcontracting partner in IT, UK and SE) and in two sessions to non-project partner actors from other Member States in a central train the trainer session
• Disseminate the training methodology, make the training materials accessible through website and online support

3. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project
• The target group consists of professionals and practitioners who support, train, assist and empower families that provide alternative care to unaccompanied and separated children. The practice of providing alternative care to unaccompanied and separated children (opposed to providing institutional care only) is well documented in the ERF project Reception and Living in Families (Community Actions 2012) and added value of this training described in detail.
• The beneficiaries are unaccompanied and separated children living in alternative family care. The countries the project will reach represent the majority of unaccompanied and separated children living in reception and care in the EU. The total potential number of beneficiaries must be several 10.000s. To reach a significant part of the target group, the training will have to be offered by bodies with national reach into local and regional youth care, or specialized national bodies. The project partners and stakeholders suitable for subcontracting have access to the networks to provide such reach. As the project trains trainers, professionals and practitioners, who in their turn guide a number of families (between several up to 20 per professional), there is a multiplier.

4. Expected results
The project will directly:
• collect and spread practical knowledge about providing alternative family care for the specific target group of unaccompanied and separated children
• Improve alternative family care in Member States where it is currently already (scattered) practice throughout the country (NL, UK, SE, DK, UK, BE)
• Give an incentive to further use within countries where local good practices exist (IT, DE)
• Provide the possibility to set up alternative family care as a reasonable alternative to institutional care where it hardly exists, but opportunities and will for development are there (AT, CZ)
• As a spinoff, reach added value in non-EU states that have an interest (NO, SWI)

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced
• Training handbook “Alternative Family Care”, 8 languages, and training assistance tools (tip sheets, a board game and/or psychoeducational materials) and used in 9 or more member states
• 5 national training sessions, and an international train the trainer session for 20 trainers, professionals and practitioners each
• E-learning supportive package
• Dissemination brochures
• Recommendation report “further developing Alternative Family Care”
• The training is included in the yearly programme of certified training institutions

The templates and training modules will enable a much wider group of persons to benefit from training developed based on the knowledge of shared and experience gained from the other activities.
   • The ultimate beneficiaries will of course be the children themselves.

Abstract:
Guardianship for unaccompanied children should be, and is ready to be a part of every European national system. To achieve this, a formal European network and a European system of accreditation are needed.

This European network – which is supported in its objectives by the European Commission and its agencies – can assist the transformation of all steps taken in the past decade into firmer establishment of professional guardianship in national systems in the EU.

The project will enable Member States to further professionalise their work and the protection systems they are part of, thus further improving the outcome for the children in the system.

In connection with priority 2 ProGuard will

- deliver a toolkit including a train-the-trainer methodology and recommendations (including input of children) to further implement,

- strengthen and professionalise guardianship in Europe in general and in the countries of the project partners specifically, amongst others by using the FRA handbook in daily practice and rolling out and delivering previously tried and tested training modules and tools in a structured way.

Two levels of responsibility will be involved ensuring sustainable and long term outputs and impacts:

- ensuring a child-centred and child-rights based approach on the level of daily practice and ensuring a closer involvement of child protection authorities

- and interagency and multidisciplinary cooperation at national and transnational level.

On top of that, a pilot on accreditation of guardianship institutions will be developed, based on the experiences within ENGI. The first step in accreditation is the start of a quality system that can serve well for further growth in the professionalisation and specialisation of guardianship, thus improving the outcome for the children in the system. A broad partnership not only makes these results realistic and achievable in connection to the goals of the commission, but will also contribute substantially to dissemination and mainstreaming.

764239 - ALFACA II – Implementing sustainable alternative family care for unaccompanied children – grant requested €264,504.00 – Stichting Nidos (NL)

Abstract:
Overall, the project aims to improve reception and care for unaccompanied children by structurally increasing the quality and quantity of family based care (FBC) for them. It will collect and spread practical knowledge about the state of the art on providing FBC for them in the participating countries (BE, IT, CY, EL, HR). It will improve FBC where it is currently already (scattered) practice and provide the possibility to set it up as a reasonable alternative to institutional care where it hardly exists, but opportunities and will for development are there.

Activities will be a situational analysis (supported by field consultations) to collect and spread practical knowledge about the state of the art on FBC in IT, EL, BE, HR, CY, writing of country reports (including SWOT-analysis) and recommendations on next steps to take in order to reach a sustainable system (including an action plan), offering the ALFACA-training; follow up on the action plans and dissemination of outputs in MS.

At least 200 professionals from 10 Member States will directly be trained, thus becoming more specialised in providing FBC and guidance to the families. The improvement of the sustainability of systems on FBC will enable hundreds of professionals to ameliorate the care they provide.

The beneficiaries are unaccompanied children living in FBC. On the medium term, 3-5 years, the project expects to have influenced positively the lives of thousands of them, either as they live in FBC instead of institutional care, or as they live in improved and sustainable FBC.

The outputs to be produced are the following:

- 5 situational analysis on the current state of the art on FBC in IT, EL, BE, HR, CY;
- 5 expert meetings;
- 5 country reports, including recommendations and SWOT-analysis;
- 5 action plans on sustainable implementation;
- 5 ALFACA-trainings for professionals in participating countries;
- 5 ALFACA-trainings by ‘Training Response Team’ in different Member States;
- 1 network;
- 3 presentations

2013 selected projects

Missing Children Europe Aisbl – Minimizing violence through quality control: monitoring & evaluating 116000 hotlines - €376.525,33 – 8 MS (BE, GR, IT, PT, UK, EE, CY, LV) – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

1. Objectives

The overall objective is to improve the quality of the 116 000 service across Europe and find effective ways to prevent & stop situations of violence linked to children who go missing. To reach its goal, the project will:

1) Set up an accreditation mechanism based on monitoring & evaluating 116 000 hotlines
2) Evaluate all operational hotlines against the defined mechanism
3) Define together with each hotline a strategy to improve their services

2. Activities

Activities undertaken will be organized in 3 phases:

1) Standards & Indicators – 8 months

The accreditation mechanism will be developed on the basis of indicators, starting from the Practical Guide for hotline operators (Annex 10), which will be reviewed to assess whether its criteria still are up to date. It is fundamental that the indicators are agreed upon by all hotlines, as they will be asked to be evaluated against those indicators. Main beneficiaries of the service as well as funders will also contribute to the definition of the indicators through an online survey.

2) Accreditation mechanism – 4 months

After the revision of the indicators, an accreditation mechanism will be developed, including the definition of standards, procedures, channels & life cycle for the evaluation and monitoring of hotlines' strategy, operational management and service delivery. The mechanism will be designed by the project taskforce, composed of 8 hotlines, academics, analyst, MCE.

3) Pilot evaluation & Recommendations – 12 months

A 1st round of evaluations will take place in the 3rd phase of the project: each hotline will be Assessed and helped to develop a strategy & action plan to improve its services. Exchange of good practices among hotlines & peer learning will be encouraged on the basis of the evaluation’s results.

Foundation for Missing And Sexually Exploited Children (Child Focus) - Establishing Processes for Integrated Child protection in Belgium (EPIC) - grant € 99.980,80 – MS (BE) - JUST/2015/RDAP/AG/0116

1. Objectives
   - Foundation for Missing And Sexually Exploited Children Belgium
   - Establishing Processes for Integrated Child protection in Belgium - EPIC Belgium
   - EUR 99.980,80 not released
   - Integrating the 116000 approach of cases of runaways into the Belgian system of child protection.
• Integrating the 116000 approach of cases of international child abduction into the Belgian system of child protection

2. Activities
WS1
• Preliminary evaluation of the needs of young runaways
• Mapping the social landscape
• Setting up the collaboration structure in 2 provinces (1 Dutch/1 French speaking) Pilot
• Evaluation
• 2 Round Tables for stakeholders in Belgium (1 Dutch/1 French speaking) to disseminate conclusions, good practices and recommendations

WS2
• Training of case managers to refer parents to mediation and set up a mediation setting & structure, taking into account the specific legal requirements of an international child abduction;
• Setup of a Pre-Mediation Service within Child Focus Pre-Mediation Service;
• Training of the Belgian Central Authority and judiciary (judges from Ghent & Brussels) on the use of mediation in (Hague) child abduction cases;
• Pilot of a mediation referral system in collaboration with the Belgian Central Authority and the judiciary to refer parents to mediation in 2 Belgian courts dealing with Hague Child Abduction cases (Ghent for the Flemish part, Brussels for the French speaking part of Belgium)
• Evaluation
• 2 Round Tables for Belgian stakeholders (one Dutch/one French speaking) to disseminate conclusions/good practices & recommendations

3. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project
WS1
• Child Focus deals with approximately 1000 runaway cases annually. In first instance, this project proposal will benefit runaways in 2 provinces, minimum 1/5 of runaways will be addressed, but since some provinces have a higher rate of runaways then others, this proportion will probably be considerably higher.
• Child Focus hopes to expend the scope of this pilot to all other Belgian provinces after the finalization of this project

WS2
• Approximately 250 parental child abduction cases are dealt with annually at Child Focus. Another 150 prevention cases are treated every year. The creation of this Pre-Mediation Service can be beneficial to most child abduction cases.
• Additionally, mediation can have a positive impact on all family conflicts, often at the basis of a parental child abduction but also runaway situations.
• Research – national, European as well as international has proven that runaways & child exploitation are also often linked to family problems.

Titan Partnership Ltd. – EUBULLY – Addressing bullying in the physical and virtual classroom incorporating cyber bullying - €531.652,06 – 4 MS (UK, GR, RO, IE) – CVBS-JUST/2013/DAP/AG EUBULLY will operate in England, Wales, Ireland and Greece and have a specific focus on creating safe and secure environments in both physical and virtual environments so that young people aged 5-18, parents, teachers and other support staff in schools can discuss bullying in the open. At least 5000 young people from primary, secondary and special schools, 2000 parents/carers, 500 teachers and other school and supports staff will benefit from the project. Other countries are involved with an expert from Hungary supporting developments in drama and the European Head Teachers Association reaching over 86,000 head teachers from across 30 countries. EUBULLY offers a blended approach - creating... innovation in the virtual world alongside transfer and roll out of best practice in the use of drama in the physical world, both providing safe and secure environments for bullying to be addressed openly. Many anti-bullying initiatives are built upon the core philosophy of the Whole School Approach: on the assumption that bullying is a systemic problem, and, by implication, an intervention must be directed at the entire school not just at individual bullies and victims (Smith, Schneider, Smith, & Ananiadou, 2004, p. 548). EUBULLY reflects this, but wider by working with young people who are most vulnerable (Roma, travellers, ethnic/faith minorities, young people in care, disabled, risk of offending, those living in poverty) and recognising their lives include additional support staff (in residential homes, health care systems, specialist associations supporting these groups in the schools and community).

The High-Level Expert Meeting “Tackling Violence in Schools” held in Oslo in June 2011 identified that children, and often their families, feel frightened to speak up and conceal incidents of violence, particularly when perpetrated by a teacher or staff in school. It is often difficult to get staff to commit to addressing bullying as so much of it happens under the radar. EUBULLY supports teachers and school staff to be more proactive in bringing bullying out into the open for victim, offender and bystander using the new app to be developed for mobile technologies and new skills linked to drama in education. This will be supported a pack of training and support carried out with young people, teachers, parents, support staff in and out of school. Drama is sometimes used in bullying management, but rarely as part of a coherent, whole-school scheme. Added value within EUBULLY is the development of an app to be downloaded onto mobile (handheld) technologies for use within the curriculum in schools as part of ICT key learning strategies but also impact in the wider community in that it can be accessed outside of the physical classroom and become a tool in the wider virtual world of all our young people. The new app for mobile technologies will provide real time support and empower the victim to both log the event, with the content identified and report it. Other project results will include: the database on which the logs from victims can be hosted, providing real time research data on cyber bullying and held on ESHA's web site reaching 86,000 head teachers in 30 countries; the app can become part of ICT teaching content in schools so sustaining it as part of a mainstream teaching resource; A new play to be translated and adapted by partners which can be filmed for inclusion on web sites for wider dissemination and use as an educational resource; a dissemination event in Brussels in the European parliament/ European Commission in 2016. One focused national event in each partner country (UK, Ireland, Greece) with at least 3 presentations at 3 additional national events in each country.

EUN Partnership – ENABLE – European Network Against Bullying in Learning and Leisure Environments – grant €799,269.89 – 5 MS (BE, GR, UK, HR, DK) – CVBS – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

ENABLE (European Network Against Bullying in Learning and Leisure Environments) aims to combat bullying and contribute to the well-being of children through a holistic approach that tackles bullying not only in school but also in outside contexts that impact on wellbeing, engages students, parents and key actors in schools, and builds on an empirical understanding of the causes and effects of bullying and effective counter-measures.

The two-year project is built on three axes:

a) Fostering socio-emotional development, by increasing empathy and self-esteem through social and emotional learning (SEAL) modules easily integrated into the curriculum. Teachers and parents will be trained through online courses and communities;

b) Enhancing young people’s self-awareness, their ability to objectively reflect on their behaviour and how their actions impact on others (meta-cognition) using self-monitoring techniques, such as diaries, logs and peer reviewing others’ photo/video productions;

c) Providing better routes to help for young people through a training module for professionals working with young people, policy-making support for schools in dealing with incidents often initiated outside school, and innovative digital tools to reduce the impact of bullying. Training and peer support for parents ensures a 360 degree approach.

Young people are at the heart of the process through skills- and attitude-building and peer advocacy. Project partners will work with teachers, school psychologists and national helplines (child protection, internet safety etc.) to define high-risk environments, vulnerable profiles and successful interventions to address bullying. Surveys will be conducted and the resulting data analysed to highlight factors underlying bullying. Building on this, ENABLE will create and aggregate awareness raising tools and activities to increase young people’s understanding of what bullying is, its negative impacts and their role in countering it.

1. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project

Beneficiaries and targets:
• Young people 11-14: direct 5000 including 1000 ‘at risk’, indirect: more than 6 million
• Teachers: direct: 1500, indirect: more than 2 million
• Schools: direct: 30, indirect: 200 000
• Parents: direct 2000, indirect: 2 million
• Ministries of education: indirect: 30
• Industry, social media, developers: direct 3, indirect 35.

ENABLE will be advised by a Think Tank of 10 leading public and private sector experts (7 fixed and 3 guests) which will also act as anti-bullying ambassadors and raise awareness on the problem within the wide public.

2. Expected results

The expected results are reduced levels of bullying in schools, raised awareness in stakeholders of effective solutions to bullying, improved availability of resources for young people, and models for effective peer to peer advocacy for children, teachers and parents.

3. Type and number of outputs to be produced

Key outputs:
• A systematic review of anti-bullying methodologies, published on structured data sheets
• An accessible book on bullying and anti-bullying methodologies
• SEAL lesson plans and modules, applying, easily integrated into school curricula
• Peer training resources and courses for pupils and parents and other key influencers
• Adaptable courses and peer training for teachers, school staff, young people
• Training sessions for parents
• Training material and training for helplines and school psychologists
• Innovative on- and offline applications for youth to reflect on and counter bullying

Dissemination and awareness raising activities lay the foundations for sustainability and include international conferences and workshops, the use of partners’ networks and social media channels, and publication of resources under open licence. Associate partners (e.g. Facebook, Ask.fm…) support the peer advocacy approach in ENABLE and will use project outputs to reduce the risk of bullying by users of their products and services, having a potentially massive impact and contributing toward a better internet.

The project will design and implement a new anti-bullying programme in schools from 5 EU countries. It draws on the experience of existing programmes and practices originated by the project partners in different cultural contexts and will provide further evidence of effective approaches to the reduction of bullying in schools that will inform the development of improved child centred, whole school strategies for adoption at European level. The project will build on and combine the strengths of the each of the partners previous experiences and, together with recent innovative developments in solution focused, learning behaviour methodology and strategy, it will result in a coordinated range of leadership training materials applying a child centred, whole school approach to the effective reduction of bullying in schools. The project will develop an on-line school review instrument for the monitoring of bullying and the evaluation of the effectiveness of the school organisation for the reduction of bullying. This review instrument will be used for the thorough evaluation of the programme and as an ongoing tool for schools to use in the school improvement cycle.

1. Objectives:
The specific objectives of the project are:

e. Raised awareness of all members of the school community - children & young people, parents and school staff about the harm that bullying causes and how children & young people can be protected, including solutions to the problem of rising incidents of cyber bullying in connection with the use of social networks. Indicators of results: 6000 young people; 180 school staff; about 4000 parents will be aware of solutions to protecting children & young people from bullying.
f. Reduced number of incidents and impact of violence against children at school, resulting from an improved safe and secure whole school environment of cohabitation.
g. Improved strategies and responses to incidences of bullying that will address the causes of bullying and help avoid any recurrence.
h. Cascaded leadership training in the empowerment of all school staff and parents as change agents in reducing bullying and in the education of children and young people in peer led strategies.
i. Further cooperation between schools and schools with NGOs, local school administration and other outside agencies in the reduction of bullying by adopting an improved programme and a system of exchange of best practices.
j. The development of a school review instrument for monitoring bullying and evaluating the school organisation for bullying reduction, resulting in improved knowledge on effective programmes for the reduction of bullying at school.
k. Wide dissemination of the resulting programme.

The project is divided into four phases:
1) Research and analysis to combine the experience and existing successful practice in the partner countries. Initial focus group interviews and consultations with the schools to clarify the needs of children and young people in each country. Design of the cascade training process and development of training materials and the on-line school self-review instrument.
2) Training leaders of bullying reduction in each school and support as they implement the review instrument, develop a school action plan and implement changes in their schools.
3) Repeated applications of the review instrument to assess improvements in school organisation and reductions in bullying; further school action plans for ongoing improvements; evaluation of the programme.
4) Improvement of programme materials in the light of the review and wide dissemination of the Results

2. Expected results
Main deliverables will be:
- a consolidated school leadership programme to reduce bullying in schools
- a comprehensive training pack and materials for use in schools

Starkmacher E.V. – Joining Forces to Combat Cyber Bullying in Schools – grant €557,271.41 - 5 MS (DE, SI, PL, IT, HU) – CVBS – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

The project addresses the issue of cyber violence in schools since this is a rapidly growing problem in most European countries, as well as the latest technological developments, grouped as ‘web 2.0 technologies’ incl. Social Networking Services (SNSs), have created a breeding ground for subtle forms of media violence, which has become more pervasive and intense in the last years. Against this background, the action pursues the following key objectives:
- to enhance young people’s understanding of how new social media work and to equip them with necessary media techniques as well social and conflict resolution skills that ensure their respectful, responsible, safe and creative usage.
to empower schools to foster and maintain a healthy and positive school climate which greatly reduces and prevents behaviour related problems such as bullying and cyber bullying.

- to increasingly empower educational staff and parents in their use and understanding of social and their inherent risks for children and youngsters.

- to enlarge the knowledgebase on cyber violence in the school setting and to promote the development of tools for effective prevention and reduction.

- to increase public awareness about the prevalence and effects of cyber violence in the European schools.

The project will be carried out by 8 NGOs from 5 EU Member States (DE, IT, PL, SI, HU) which will all closely cooperate with local partner schools. Implementation starts with training of NGO staff from partner organisations in Conflict Resolution, Training of Trainers as well as new Social Media Management. The second strand is capacity building in schools which will be executed by the trained multipliers from partner organisation. This includes information and awareness raising with teachers/educators, school management, pupils and parents in order to raise their awareness for the issue of cyber bullying and to increase new media know-how and critical awareness. It is also intended to conduct local trainings on conflict resolution and social media competence with pupils and teachers, who will later create mediation clubs in each partner school that shall provide trainings as well as peer mediation. Second year’s focus will be on individual empowerment of youth through creative social media. Organising Int’l Media Camps and local Creativity Groups shall not only familiarise youngsters with respectful and safe media usage, but also unlock hidden potentials, helping to promote a mentality of non-violence and respect in partner schools. After the 1st int’l workshop, the partner will initiate a local creativity contests for youngsters to produce new artworks and the winners will be invited to the second int’l workshop. The final stage will concentrate on awareness raising through a youth led social media campaign helping to spread anti-cyber violence messages to a widest possible public audience and especially younger people. The official launch will be on 20th November 2015, which marks the Universal Children’s Day.

The project will also produce a wide range of didactic materials and devices for teachers, parents and youngsters (manuals, guidelines, self-learning videos, multimedia text book), which will be translated in all partner languages and English and disseminated via an online resource and with social media (apps for iphone/ipad/android, eBook, Facebook channels, YouTube). Mutual learning, exchange of good practices as well as training activities will directly involve 60 NGO staff, 600 teachers, educators and school managers as well as 6,000 pupils. Awareness raising is expect to reach a far large audience, approximately 20,000 young people inside and even outside of Europe, 1,000 teachers, trainers and educators and 20,000 other interested citizens.

Amnesty International Italy – Stop Bullying! A human rights based aproach to tackling discrimination in schools – grant €473,528,93 – 4 MS (IT, IE, PL, PT) – CVBS – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

Stop Bullying! A human rights based approach to tackling discrimination in schools seeks to engage school communities and empower them to take action against bullying in Europe. The initiative will not only enable a deeper and informed understanding of bullying and discrimination by members of school communities, but will also empower young people to use human rights to create solutions. Recent researches in Italy, Ireland, Poland and Portugal shows how bullying is a widespread phenomenon and how it is inter-connected to the issue of discrimination. The experience of Amnesty International has taught partner Sections that a human rights based approach can be the ideal tool in tackling discrimination, violence and human rights abuses.

1. Objectives
The overall objective of this project is to reduce occurrences of bullying discrimination - through the integration of human rights in all areas of school life in Italy, Ireland, Poland and Portugal. The specific objectives of the project are:

- to raise awareness and inform debate about the existing link between bullying and discrimination in school communities in four European countries,
• promoting human rights values and principles and anti-bullying/anti-discrimination attitudes;
• to facilitate the creation of a safe school environment in four European countries where anti-bullying/anti-discrimination policies and practices as well as human rights are upheld by all school members;
• to empower young people in four European countries to promote non-discrimination and to take action against bullying in and outside schools for human rights change.

To tackle the phenomenon of bullying at school, Amnesty International intends to work holistically with different stakeholders of the school community in 17 post primary and secondary institutes in Italy, Ireland, Poland and Portugal, with the following expected results.

2. Expected results

• Expected result 1/SO1 - Individuals and school communities in four European countries are equipped with knowledge and skills to prevent bullying and discrimination, to protect victims and to promote human rights. The action will result in 730 multipliers and 17 schools in the four member States reporting increased knowledge and skills to prevent bullying and discrimination, to protect victims and to promote human rights.
• Expected result 1/SO2 - The school environment in four European countries show a higher degree of human rights friendliness and becomes a place where equality, non-discrimination, inclusion, respect and dignity are more respected. This action will result in 17 schools communities engaging themselves to create in a safer school environment protected from discrimination.
• Expected result 2/SO2 - Human rights and non-discrimination principles in four European countries are reflected in the policies on which operations and practices of the schools with regards to child protection, anti-bullying and equality are based. This action will target and work with 17 schools in four member States to develop and adopt policies and practices with regards to child-protection, anti-bullying and equality.
• Expected Result 1/SO3 - Young people in schools in four European countries are committed to take action against bullying and discrimination in and outside schools. By the end of the action, 33% of young people participating in the training events report behavioural change and take action against bullying and discrimination. In addition, schools communities will be able to act as multipliers with other schools through their networks at national level.

Integrating human rights into all areas of school life will be a gradual process and it will be structured in work-streams clustered around the following:
WS1 - Awareness raising and training;
WS2 - School governance and participation;
WS3 - Young commitment, activism and networking.

Mannerheim League for Child Welfare – Peer Support and youth Participation in Bullying Prevention – grant €329,668,00 – 4 MS (FI, HU, SE, EE) – CVBS – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

1. Objectives
The overall aim of the project is to empower and activate the whole school community to participate in the work against school bullying, and especially its extensions in online environments. The project focuses into three target groups and their collaboration: school staff, students and parents. Based on the project participants’ well-established peer support work and evaluated training methods, the project will supplement the existing anti-bullying strategies from the perspectives of youth participation and cyberbullying. A cumulating body of scientific evidence shows that existing bullying prevention strategies among young people need to be accompanied with youth participation and peer-to-peer approach in order to effectively fight school bullying and especially its extensions in online environments, where adults are seldom present. Project participants comprise a network of five NGOs dedicated to coordinate peer support and youth participation in bullying prevention in schools. Based on their extensive experience in developing peer-to-peer work in schools, and a review of recent research on peer-to-peer programs and cyberbullying, the partners will combine their knowledge to develop updated and new methods and trainings to be tested and evaluated in the project pilot schools. The
The project will work with pilot schools in all project countries. The process in pilot schools will begin with participative data gathering. The school-specific data about pupils’ perceptions on (cyber) bullying and the effective means to prevent it will provide a basis for updating and designing the bullying prevention strategies and actions in each school. The dialogic process will include workshops with pupil representatives as well as an action group including a headmaster and representatives from parents, pupils, teachers, and school welfare staff. The implementation in schools will include training school staff, training for peer supporters and their coordinators, and thereafter peer education sessions for pupils. In addition, the schools will organize a workshop for parents together with the peer supporters in order to realize the different roles of pupils, parents and school staff and their collaboration in cyberbullying prevention. After the pilot phase, an evaluative post-survey will be conducted in the pilot schools.

The national dissemination of the project results is guaranteed by project participants’ permanent work in the coordination of peer support work in schools. Methods and trainings developed will be integrated in partners’ training programs and online materials delivered for free use in schools. In order to deliver the results to other European countries, the project will publish a methodology material in English, organize an international conference, and disseminate the results via the European and International networks where project partners are involved (INSAFE, IBPA, CHI, COFACE, EUROCHILD, etc.). In addition, the dissemination will be reinforced via a targeted booklet for schools using the KiVa Programme. Further, the project will create a European network for peer-to-peer and youth participation approaches in bullying prevention. After the project, the project website can be used as a portal for the network.

Centre for the Advancement of Research and Development in Educational Technology (CARDET) - Combat Bullying: A Whole School Programme (ComBuS) – grant €299,083,55 - 6 MS (CY, RO, ES, GR, IT, IE) – JUST/2014/RDAP/AG/BULL

Toolkit (blended learning modules for school leaders teachers and parnts, experimental workshops for students, peer to peer support guidelines, in-class activities/lesson plans, reading against bullying, material for thematic school days/weeks, evaluation rubrics, ComBuS toolkit implementation guidelines, combt Bullying Whole School Program

1. Objectives

The aim of the project “Combat Bullying: A Whole School Program”(ComBuS) is to develop a whole school programmhat will empower students, teachers, school staff, school leaders, and parents to combat bullying and create healthy and safe school communities, using blended (F2F, online and mobile) methodologies, tools, and activities.

ComBuS will develop and implement activities and a comprehensive anti-bullying policy and programs targeting all stakeholders in schools and their local communities. The project will involve students, parents, teachers, school leaders, and staff in a participatory and empowering manner. We aim to reach directly at least 2040 students, 480 teachers, 120 school leaders, 120 school staff and 600 parents in the 6 partner countries, while more than 10000 members of the abovementioned target groups, from all EU, will be reached via implementation and dissemination activities. Our project proposal envisions a blended approach to fighting bullying in face-to-face, online and mobile encounters including experiential workshops, online learning platforms, networking sites and mobile applications.

Recent research has shed light on the multifaceted and pervasive nature of bullying in school contexts (Olweus & Limber, 2007; Craig & Harel 2004), its linkages with antisocial and criminal behaviour, and children’s engagement with education generally (Boulton et al, 2012). In addition, recent research on cyberbullying (Mark and Ratcliffe, 2011) has shown that bullying remains a pervasive problem which continues to plague schools and requires interventions which involve all school stakeholders, and are grounded in the curriculum.

The former Daphne project “Designing evidence-based strategies and actions to face bullying by considering socio-ethnic diversities in school populations” (2011) report, argues that a dynamic, adaptable and ‘whole-school’ approach to combatting bullying is required. One of the primary targets of such a program should be the school-leaders, putting them at the forefront of the anti-bullying policies and interventions.

The overall objectives of the ComBuS are to increase the capacity and raise awareness in combating bullying among the abovementioned target groups, by providing them multifunctional and multidimensional tools and practices based on the 2007 EU Guidelines on the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of the Child that focus on combating all forms of violence against children, the EU agenda for the rights of the child, and the 2012/29/EU Directives on the rights of victims.

The specific objectives of ComBuS are to:

- Conduct a needs analysis to investigate the nature and extent of bullying in the partner countries and EU, and the capacity building needs in combating bullying among school leaders, students, parents, teachers, and school staff through questionnaires and focus groups.
- Review the literature, other programs, anti-bullying initiatives and collect lessons learned from design, development and implementation of similar programs.
- Build a whole school programme (ComBuS Toolkit) that will engage school leaders, students, teachers, school staff and parents in detecting and combating bullying of various forms including: 1) face-to-face, 2) online, 3) mobile, carried out individually or in groups. The Toolkit will consist of activities such as:
  - ComBuS Online Platform and Digital Tools.
  - ComBuS Mobile Application.
  - Blended Learning Modules for School Leaders, Teachers, School Staff and Parents.
  - Experiential Workshops for Students.
  - Peer to Peer Support Guidelines.
  - ComBuS in Class Activities.
  - Reading Against Bullying.
  - Material for thematic school days.
  - ComBuS Evaluation Rubrics.
  - ComBuS Implementation Guidelines.
  - Localization and adaptation in national contexts.
  - Implement the programme in at least 2 schools per country.
  - Disseminate the model widely, and ensure its flexibility and adaptability for different contexts securing its long term sustainability.
  - Host a European conference on bullying.

1. Objectives
   - Raise knowledge on arising possibilities in terms of online support for victims of crime.
   - Adapt victim support services’ response to victims’ current needs and expectations on victim support.
   - Make victim support services accessible for victims who cannot reach regular traditional model services.

2. Activities

Survey to victim support organisations (VSOs) on the online support they already provide and if and how such tools could be beneficial;

Production of a handbook on online support to victims of crime, gathering the information collected through desk research and survey analysis, giving practical advice and promoting best practices;

Study visit by the partners and associate partners to a key organisation identified as best practice in the field;

Development of an online direct support tool and implementation of pilot online direct support tool in three partner countries;

Focus group with selected group of victims to test if the solutions and methods of the tool developed respond to their needs, in the three partner countries that shall implement the tool;

Development of procedures and guidelines for victim support workers providing support through the created online support tool;

Pilot training for victim support workers on the online support tool created in the three partner countries that shall implement this tool (to be attended by the nonimplementing partner);

Meeting with key stakeholders in one of the nonimplementing partner countries (i.e. Lithuania) to ensure further increase of victim support through awareness raising on the possibilities of online support;

Online dissemination campaign.

3. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project

Victim support workers will be given more tools and knowledge to provide support to crime victims from different platforms. Not only 45 victim support workers will be the direct beneficiaries of the pilot training, but also many more will be able to see their capacity build on in the future by the creation of procedures and guidelines. These shall be included in the partner VSOs’ training programmes, after this project tests their appropriateness to the reality (via group discussion with victims, pilot training and online tool implementation).

Victims of crime will be the end beneficiaries of this project. More profound knowledge of the possibilities for online support in the victim support field will arise from the creation of the handbook. This increased knowledge will guarantee a more suited response to victims’ needs. The online tool will be implemented as a pilot to be extended and become a tool for the VSOs after the results of the project are known and it will be widely disseminated to increase the number of victims who access it.

4. Expected results

Regarding to knowledge, map the existing methodologies and practices in terms of online support and identify best practices, focusing in particular on what is already provided in the EU in the field of victim support;

Regarding to capacity building, create guidelines for online support and train professionals to implement an online support tool, capable of meeting the needs of many victims of crime, especially those living in remote areas or with particular frailties;

Regarding to practical support, implementing an online support tool (direct chat support w/ possibility of audio and video chat).

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced

2014 selected projects

European Network of Ombudspersons for Children – MS (FR) - grant €93,100,00 - JUST/2014/RDAP-RCHI/OG

In 2014, ENOC decided to focus on one major thematic issue concerning the impact of austerity on children's lives, and on safeguarding their basic rights, needs and well-being. The working theme is addressed at two cross-cutting levels: at children and young people's level and at Ombudspersons for Children's level. At children and young people’s level, ENOC is seeking the views of children and young people who are directly, indirectly or potentially affected by austerity measures in their respective countries through a number of short audio/visual films created from moving images and audio representations of their experiences and views. These will combine to form a unique maze-like, multi-screen exhibition. Part of the funding sought by the present application will be allocated to the first physical exhibition at the ENOC Annual Conference in October 2014 in Edinburgh, while the balance of funding will support an "exhibition tour" in three more EU countries. Eight ENOC member institutions will participate in the realisation of the child participation project by identifying relevant children within their jurisdictions and liaising with the professional creative organisation that has been contracted to project manage. Four ENOC/EU countries will be involved in the dissemination and promotion of the outcomes of the project by hosting the exhibition, featuring 32 short audio and visual stories of children and young people affected by austerity.

At Ombudspersons for Children's level, all ENOC members will be mobilised around the central issue and called onto share their experiences of how and to what extent austerity measures are affecting children's lives and the realisation of their rights. The common findings and suggested solutions (policy recommendations) will be reflected in an ENOC position statement. Similarly to previous years, ENOC members will be assisted with expertise and methodology by an independent external advisor. The outcomes of the parallel activities will be presented, adopted and released to the public at the ENOC Annual Conference and General Assembly, to be held on 22-24 October in Edinburgh. It is expected that this important ENOC annual event will provide further opportunities for ENOC to communicate and disseminate the results of its thematic work to external stakeholders: especially to relevant EU, Council of Europe and UN authorities, but also to NGOs other organisations working for children, and to the general public. All ENOC delegates will consider the children’s stories through the exhibition experience at the outset of the ENOC 18th Annual Conference. The impact on and learning from the delegates’ exhibition experience will then be immediately shared and explored in a workshop designed and led by young people with significant experience of workshop facilitation at this level. The young people facilitating the workshop will capture the impact on delegates and create a physical representation of that impact. This will then be displayed prominently at the conference venue as an aide-memoire to all. If EU funding is secured, it is planned to renew the experience, in appropriate venues and on relevant occasions in three more EU countries (Nov-Dec 2014). The permanent ENOC Secretariat will continue to play a vital role in the internal and external coordination and communication policy of the Network and in the implementation of its annual programme. With the support and assistance of the ENOC Secretariat, the ENOC Chair and the ENOC Bureau will be provided with the means to ensure better and stronger representation of ENOC in key child rights-related initiatives with a European or international dimension.

- European Union:
  Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

- 1 CHI General Assembly
- 12 Awareness movies for child helplines in 12 EU member states

Local Health Unit n° 9 Treviso (Italy) - SAVE - Solutions Against Violence in Europe – against €457,609,12 – (IT, ES, DE, GR, SI, RO) - SVV- JUST/2013/DAP/AG

The SAVE project aims to improve the quality of the systems of prevention, detection of cases of violence on children in Europe and limit its effects on victims in a medium / long term period, through an innovative modular Model of Intervention based on hypothesis of public / private partnerships for cost – effective solutions and including fieldwork actions as well as ICT tools, with the direct involvement as target groups of abused children or adults victims of violence in minor age, as well as parents and teachers, considered educational figures of reference for the young. The SAVE project intends to respond to the most important challenges at EU level related to violence on children: from the underestimation of the number of cases (due to shame, fear, omerta) to the low awareness about the real danger of the phenomena, from the lack of resources necessary to ensure a complete quality support to victims to the lack of knowledge-exchange between different systems, from the low involvement of crucial actors in local strategies (parents and teachers in particular) to a general low level of innovation in the sector (ICT and new media tools are underexploited).

Improving the prevention, detection systems as well as delivering the necessary social and psychological support not only as soon as the violence occurred, but also after a long period of time (when the negative effects of the violence come out again, for example with suicide attempts, social diseases, etc…). In order to answer this need, a mixed partnership representing 6 different EU countries (IT, ES, SI, GR, RO and DE) composed by Local /Regional Authorities, Public and Private research centres on social policies and NGOs, supported by European Networks as associated partner, decide to create a team of experts working for 24 months on the realization of: 6 Local Situation Analysis (WS1.1) and 1 EU Synthesis Report (WS1.2), focused in particular on existing Successful models in the 3 areas identified, new methodologies for case detection (ICT and social networks, young adults language analysis, etc…) and example of PPPs in social services; this action is the knowledgebase for the creation of a preliminary Model of Intervention (WS2), focused on 3 areas of intervention (prevention, detection and management of the cases) and 2 milestones(mix between on-field ICT-based tools and public-private partnership approach), with the aim of designing and testing cost-effective solutions for an efficient global approach to violence able to be deployed in local territory with a “modular approach”, by giving the possibility to local decision makers and stakeholders to choose which part of the SAVE model are better to transfer to their local systems.

Ten months of experimentation (WS3.2) of the preliminary model are foreseen in each country involved, with a previous action of “capacity building” for local operator (WS3.1). Last but not least, the final objective of the SAVE project is also to pave the way for a further Model implementation on each territory, far beyond the end of the EU funding, thanks to a punctual structured involvement of decision makers at local EU level and thanks to a precise monitoring of local, national and European funding lines. All the activities, achievements and results will be disseminated all around Europe, in order not only to widespread information about the project, but also to raising awareness about the topic. Within the 24 months of implementation, the SAVE project intends to reach at least 60 policy-makers at local, regional, national or EU level(in particular with the PES), at least 180 among operators and stakeholders in the field of SVV with 7 reports of analysis, 2 study visits, 1 Model of Intervention with a related training path for operators (at least 60 trained), 5 international meeting (among which 2 public events)and 6 Local Information Campaigns, accompanied by 1 promo video and 2 educational theatre performance.

INTIMATE PARTNER VIOLENCE

2013 selected projects

PEABODY Donation Fund – Safe at home: preventing violence against women, young people and children in the housing sector – grant €290.625,66 – MS (UK) – PiVP – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

It is notoriously difficult to carry out preventative perpetrator interventions when violence against women, young people and children occurs in the home, behind closed doors. Housing providers have unique entry to the ‘hidden’ spaces occupied by perpetrators and victims, as they have privileged access to the homes and estates on which their residents live. Housing providers are often seen as more approachable than state agencies, and have regular contact with residents through community development activities (e.g. training and employment services, benefits advice) as well as tenancy-related communications.

This, along with the options available to landlords for requesting and enforcing injunctions against perpetrators, presents an opportunity to ‘fill a gap’ that other agencies – statutory and voluntary – cannot fill. However, this opportunity is currently being missed, for three key reasons, which this project will address:

1. Housing providers do not prioritise domestic violence on their estates.
2. Housing associations lack the skills and capacity to address domestic abuse.
3. Multi-sectorial approaches (policy and practice) to preventing and responding to domestic abuse currently exclude housing providers.

In short, housing providers have the opportunity to enforce protection / restraining orders and to prevent further violence against women, but lack the awareness, capacity and mandate to do so.

The following case study illustrates the impact trained housing professionals can have in identifying and responding to domestic abuse:

One of Peabody’s contractors visited a flat to carry out a routine repair. While he was working there, he heard the female resident ask her husband’s permission to use the toilet. This was an immediate ‘red flag’ for the contractor, who reported the incident to Peabody’s Community Safety Team straight away, adding that the woman seemed withdrawn when he spoke to her.

The Community Safety Team contacted the police to carry out background checks on the male resident, and it transpired that he was known to the police and social services. However, neither of these agencies had any contact with the man or his wife, and both were unaware that there might be any recurrence of violence. Working with both of these organisations, Peabody was able to develop a joint action plan to ensure the woman’s safety and to prevent further abuse.

Over 24 months, Peabody and Kadera will work in the UK and Netherlands to address these issues, with the ultimate aim of preventing further violence by identified perpetrators against women, young people and children.

To achieve this, we will:

- Raise awareness of domestic abuse amongst 25 housing providers in the UK and Netherlands.
- Train 1,680 frontline staff, employed by 25 housing providers to address domestic abuse on their properties.
- Provide recommendations to improve policy and practice in the area of collaborative working with enforcement agencies.
- Share learning, good practice and practical knowledge with stakeholders in the UK, Netherlands and beyond.

European Anti-Violence Network (Greece) - Gender Equality Awareness Raising against Intimate Partner Violence - II (GEAR against IPV - II) – grant €468.198,88 – 5 MS (CY, HR, RO, ES, GR) – CVWV- JUST/2013/DAP/AG

1. Objectives and expected results
The GEAR against IPV-II project aims to contribute to primary & secondary prevention of Intimate Partner/Dating/Sexual Violence (IPV/DV/SV) among teens. Priority 2.2.3 is addressed because main beneficiaries are teens (12-16 years old) who are victims/perpetrators of IPV/DV/SV or at risk (teens’ general population) & at high risk (abused/neglected/vulnerable children 12+ years old) of becoming victims/perpetrators in the future. Target-groups are school teachers & teachers/professionals working with high-risk teens. The proposed GEAR against IPV approach has been pilot-tested & evaluated during a former DAPHNE III project (JLS/2008/DAP3/AG/1258); it is child-centered as teens are not taught but, instead, guided (exclusively via experiential activities) to explore their own attitudes, their impact to their lives & to ‘discover’ & exercise life skills enabling development of violent-free intimate relationships.

The expected result is teens empowered in ways promoting zero-tolerance & equipped with ‘protection skills’ that will enable them to avoid being victimized &/or to appropriately & safely react to IPV/DV/SV as victims or bystanders. Moreover, all teens will be equipped with valuable life skills for breaking the cycle of violence & building healthy relationships.

The objectives set, the methodology of the activities for their achievement, along with their expected deliverables & outputs are:
Mapping of preventive & supportive initiatives for IPV/DV/SV in teens in 5 MS, via desk research that will result in 5 Country Reports (CY-ES-GR-HR-RO).

- Develop material appropriate for preventive projects with teens in 5 MS & at EU level.
- Provide an updated ‘Guidance Material’ (Master Package) that can be used for the development of culturally appropriate National Packages in each EU MS.
- Develop, pilot-test & evaluate culturally adapted material (5 National Packages) for 3 MS (CY-ES-RO) & update the existing material for 2 MS (GR-HR); the method for the evaluation will be experts evaluation & focus groups with teachers & students, the results of which will be presented in 7 Evaluation Reports.

On the basis of the methodology described & with the material provided in separate booklets of the National Packages:

- Build teachers’ capacity to implement preventive interventions, as well as to screen, support & protect victimized teens; ~290 teachers & professionals working with high-risk groups trained in 11 Seminars; their implementation & evaluation results will be presented in 5 Country Reports & summarized in 6 Policy briefs/Factsheets (5 National & 1 EU), that will also include recommendations on the basis of the experience gained.
- Conduct IPV/DV/SV preventive interventions with teens from the general population & from high-risk groups; ~1,300 teens will participate in 70 Workshops (50 with students & 20 with high-risk teens), implemented by trained teachers/professionals; their implementation & evaluation results will be presented in 5 Country Reports (in English & national language) & summarized in 5 National & 1 EU Policy briefs/Factsheets.
- Sensitize Teens’ general population via peer-dissemination: 5 e-campaigns (using a compilation of artistic products each Workshop will create for conveying preventive messages to teens) will be conducted in 5 MS; in total, 140 teens will present in 5 National Conferences their experience from the Workshop.

Apart from teens’ sensitization, the dissemination strategy includes activities, aiming to promote:
- the project’s methodology, materials & activities
- future implementation of Workshops in schools after the project’s life
- the development of new National Packages for all MS

Towards these aims will contribute, along with the aforementioned, the following deliverables & outputs:

HARMFUL PRACTICES INCLUDING FGM/EARLY OR FORCED MARRIAGE

2013 selected projects
Folkuniversitetet, Foundation At Uppsala University (Sweden) - FATIMA - Preventing Honour Related Violence by education and dialogue through Immigrant NGOs – grant €508.560,00 – 5 MS (SE, GR, PT, UK, SE) - VHP – JUST/2013/DAP/AG

Website and deliverables: http://www.human-right.net/fatima/index.php?lang=en

According to European Parliament the problem of Honour Related Violence (HRV) is increasing in European Union and not decreasing which is alarming considering the basic values on human rights that govern the societies in the Union. Many member states have taken action to protect the victims through social care, civic sector, legislation and training of different stakeholders. However, the preventive actions are few and under-developed. One reason is that the target group with patriarchal values live dominantly in segregated areas, out of reach for awareness rising actions by authorities and the civic sector. One group of NGOs with natural communication channels, immigrant NGOs, are more or less excluded in the strategies of combating HRV. The reasons behind this inclusion are many but the main ones are:
1. Lack of knowledge and expertise in the immigrant NGOs.
2. Lack of training materials at immigrant NGOs regarding the human rights and the right of women and children.
3. Lack of sustainable structure for cooperation between the stakeholders from the host country (authorities and civic sectors) and immigrants NGOs.

The proposed project aim to address above shortcomings by:
1. Developing structures for cooperation between the stakeholders from the host country (authorities and civic sectors) and immigrants NGOs by inclusion of these NGOs in the strategies for combating HRV.
2. Capacity building with the immigrant NGO sector by developing training materials adapted to their needs and to the target groups based on conventions on Human rights and the right of women child approved by European Council.
3. Awareness rising among public and civic sectors concerning the role and responsibilities of immigrant NGOS concerning combating HRV in the national strategy for HRV.

Further the project aims to establish a European network among immigrant NGOs in different member states in order to:
1. Facilitate better and more efficient exchange of knowledge and experiences regarding European conventions on human rights and the right of women and children
2. Exchange of ideas, knowledge and experiences regarding HRV and the consequences for the victim and the offenders.
3. Finally the project aims to be a further step in general awareness rising effort to highlight the importance to take preventive measures against HRV.

People's University of Kočevje (Slovenia) - Early Marriage - Culture Or Abuse? - grant €460.155,02 – 3 MS (SI, BG, IT) - VHP- JUST/2013/DAP/AG

1. Objectives
Objectives comply with the priority of the call “Violence linked to harmful practices”. The main objectives are: to explore the sociological aspect of the Roma view on early marriage, to early detect the problems in the Roma community and to educate teachers, Roma representatives, experts in the field of social work, counselling and health care, NGO’s and the police on how to act as a mediator at the occurrence of early / forced marriage.

To achieve those objectives the project will have the following work-streams:
- Sociological research "Early Marriage: Culture or Abuse"
- Training on mediation and "door to door" visits
- Prevention programs for schoolchildren
- Dissemination and promotion

2. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project
- The main target group are members of the Roma community, especially parents. Their children in particular girls of 12-14 years are the main beneficiaries of these activities. The target group are also public services on local level (schools, social services, health community centres, police and others) and NGO’s and Roma activists.
- The project uses “door to door” method of field work in order to have reliable picture about the problem. The project applies a method of coordination and participatory approach and ensures coordinated work of responsible institutions, NGO's and Roma authorities for preventing early / forced marriages. As a result members of the Roma community and others will develop higher awareness on the topic and be presented with the notion that early / forced marriage is not a cultural norm and getting education and marring later is more favourable practice that does not violate Roma culture but contributes to its development.
- Schoolchildren will receive knowledge on reproductive health, sexual education and family planning, encouragement to learn and acquire skills for constructive solving of conflict situations; awareness of cultural diversity and modernization of Roma culture.
- Roma mediator will be trained and have the experience to detect problems. Public services on local level (schools, social services, health community centres, police, others) and NGO’s will gain necessary knowledge on how to act as a mediator.

3. Type and number of outputs to be produced
Most important outputs and deliverables are tools and results of the sociological research, prepared and executed training programme for mediators, employed Roma mediators who will carry out “door to door” visits in Roma settlements, organized thematic discussion of interdepartmental teams, implementation of prevention programs in primary schools with educational film, discussions in the community, discussions in the group and guidelines with research findings and tested recommendations for the prevention of early / forced marriages to be sent to decision-makers in all project partners countries.

Dissemination strategy includes work with mass media, project website, promotion in elementary schools, publication of the programme for mediators, publication of prevention programme for schoolchildren and final conference in Ljubljana.

Ghent University – ICRH (Belgium) - Towards a better estimation of prevalence of female genital mutilation in the European Union - (FGM-PREV) - Grant €428,783,00 – 2 MS (FR, IT) - VHP- JUST/2013/DAP/AG

See report mapping research on prevalence:
http://icrhb.org/sites/default/files/Towards%20a%20better%20estimation%20of%20prevalence%20of%20FGM%20in%20the%20EU%202014.pdf

1. Objectives
The prevalence of FGM in the European Union is unknown, as there are no standardized methods to estimate the magnitude of the problem in each Member States by producing comparable data. The general aim of this project is to develop a common definition on FGM prevalence and a common methodology to estimate FGM prevalence that can be used throughout the EU, as was recommended by the report “Female genital mutilation in the European Union and Croatia” (EIGE, 2013). By providing a common methodology that can produce comparable and reliable data on the magnitude of the problem of FGM in the EU, it will support a number of initiatives developed to fight and prevent this specific form of violence. It will guide policy making, contribute to better target resources, plan interventions, substantiate claims for funds, monitor progress and assess trends.

Target groups include civil society organisations, health care providers, child protection, police, school teachers, policy makers (both at international and Member State level). Ultimately, this will be to the benefit of the final beneficiaries of the project, i.e. the women and girls affected by FGM. The project addresses priority area “Violence linked to harmful practices”, in particular female genital mutilation.

In order to achieve the objective of providing a common methodology and definition, the project will use a research-based, peer-review approach, and it will run for 24 months in 3 countries (BE, FR, IT).

2. Activities
It consists of 4 work-streams: 1. situation analysis that will map current prevalence studies in the EU, analyse their definitions, methodologies and outcomes using the SWOT method. 2. Design of a pilot prevalence study, based on the outcome of the situation analysis, that will include a common definition and methodology to assess comparable and reliable prevalence data of FGM in the EU. 3. Testing of the suggested methodology in two EU countries, i.e. France and Italy, in order to optimize and validate the common methodology. 4. Dissemination of the new methodology at international and Member State level, in order to provide recommendations for estimating prevalence of FGM to key stake holders.

3. Type and number of outputs to be produced
The project will produce the following outputs: a situation analysis including a SWOT analysis of definitions, methodologies, and outcomes of existing prevalence studies in the EU, 3 face to face meetings where critical feedback will be given on the outputs by peers, a common methodology to estimate FGM prevalence in the 28 member states, 2 pilot studies that will produce valuable input for finalizing the common methodology and finally, the dissemination of the knowledge gained at international, and member state level. Major milestones include: 1 research report on the situation analysis, 3 reports of the face-to-face meetings, 1 study protocol, 2 country reports of the piloting of the common methodology, 1A1 publication, 1 conference report and several updates in websites and newsletters of partners. The dissemination of the method and recommendations for estimating the prevalence of FGM will be done at policy and academic level and towards civil society organisations.
In order to meet the above mentioned objectives, expected outcomes and deliverables within the given timeframe and budget, sound overall management and coordination of the project is assured through a number of monitoring and evaluation instruments.

Gams Belgium (Belgium) - Men Speak Out: Engaging Men in Female Genital Mutilation Prevention in Europe – grant €357,853,00 – 3 MS (UK, NL, BE) - VHP - JUST/2013/DAP/AG“

Project website: http://menspeakout.eu/

The new report published by UNICEF on July 22, 2013 shows that more than 125 million girls and women alive today in 29 countries in Africa and the Middle East have undergone some form of (FGM). Thirty million more are at risk over the next ten years. The WHO and experts around the world agree that FGM can have serious consequences on women and girls’ physical and mental health. Different organizations around Europe (END FGM CAMPAIGN) have developed strategies against FGM. Awareness through the support and the protection of women and girls has always been the centre of NGO activities. The majority of sensitisation work, particularly in Europe, is carried out by women and there is a lack of male involvement in combating the practice. Today, FGM is seen as a “women's affair”. Men hardly interfere on the issue and are badly informed about what this practice really is. However, since the issue of FGM concerns all members of the community, men can play an important role in the process of ending FGM. Men's involvement in the fight against FGM is crucial and can accelerate the process to a complete abandonment of the practice in Europe, and by extension in the countries of origin.

1. Objectives
"Men Speak Out” is a 2-year partnership (October 2014 - September 2016) between GAMS Belgium, FORWARD UK, HIMILO foundation in the Netherlands, and the Institute of Tropical Medicine in Antwerp that responds to Daphne III priority area of harmful traditional practices. With this project, we aim to engage men in the process of ending FGM and, on a larger scale, to end violence against women and promote gender equality through a human rights’ approach.

2. Activities
A quantitative and qualitative research study will be conducted in Belgium, UK and the Netherlands to increase knowledge on the men’s role in the perpetuation of the practice. Four key problems would be addressed in this research: (1) Men’s inadequate understanding of FGM, health risks and human rights violations, (2) Lack of communication between women and men about the practice of FGM, (3) Misconceptions about men’s opinions about FGM, (4) Lack of male involvement in the decision making process to end the practice. Peers educators will be trained in the 3 countries and specific tools (posters, booklet, video, TV and radio program) addressing FGM with a human right and gender approach will be developed for men. When the training and the tools are finalised, a campaign to engage Men in FGM prevention will be launched at European level with a press conference on 25th November 2015. Education tools will be disseminated in schools and migrant's associations and outreach activities will be organised by the male peer educators. National events will be held in the 3 countries with men AND women from the community. Men will be invited to speak out and to engage the dialogue with women about FGM. A pro-active dissemination of the results and tools will be organised at EU level during the last semester of the project. Guidelines and tools produced during the project will be send to several EU key stakeholders involved in Human Right, Gender, Migration or Health issues. International organisations such as UNICEF, UNFPA, UNIFEM, WHO will be also the target of the dissemination. Every opportunity will be used to transfer good practices and results.
"Men Speak Out” will deliver the first comparative report of men perception on FGM in UK, Belgium and Netherlands, a training manual for male peer educator training, an educational booklet to promote the dialogue on FGM between men and women, 9 different posters with men portraits, video spots and a documentary for awareness campaign. A total of 45 male peer educators will be trained and active after the end of the project and 6000 men, women and youth will be reached by the outreach activities of the project.

5. Type and number of outputs to be produced:
• 1 Working paper of existing national guides on forced/early marriage; identification of gaps in English
1. Objectives

The project addresses the problem of early marriage involving girls, aged between 9 and 15 years, in Roma communities in Romania, Bulgaria, Croatia, Austria, Italy. These are countries both of origin and where Roma live today, carrying on this patriarchal tradition of violence. Combined child marriage is a cultural tradition, aggravated by economic difficulties and social segregation.

It prevents normal growth in a large number of girls who are deprived of the right to education, work, choice of partner and personal development. The psychological, physical and economic consequences are far reaching.

2. Activities

The project lasts 18 months and has two workstreams: Community work, for awareness raising, and Recommendations and dissemination, to impact on policies.

Community work (15 months) – Common working method will be established through an exchange (initial staff training in Montenegro) with Associate Partners with expertise on the issue. The operators will organize meetings to raise awareness and provide information on the physical and psychological risks and economic impact arising from early marriage. Special focus is on rural and segregated areas. Both adults and community leaders are targeted, and children and youth, encouraging them to continue schooling. It is the start of a long path, that aims to trigger a change of cultural attitudes. The work is based on informal meetings, theatrical performances, movies and progressive role models. Experiences, materials and documents form the basis of evaluation and discussion among partners (meeting in Romania).

Recommendations and dissemination (8 months) Analyses and methods from Community Work will be processed into the Red Notebook, with practical and policy recommendations on European, national and local level. It is a call to action for eradication of child marriage, so far inexistent as issue in policies and strategies for Roma integration. Red Notebook with indications on how to frame legislation, policies and support, will be presented to policy makers and stakeholders in a conference in Bruxelles and in 5 national conferences.

3. Type and number of persons benefitting from the project

The direct beneficiaries are Roma girls and their families and communities, 30 in 5 countries.

At least 7,200 individuals will be engaged through direct contact.

The other main target group are policy makers on European and national level of 5 countries.
• Indirect beneficiaries are stakeholders working with and for Roma communities inclusion: public institutions on local level, school and health authorities and workers, social services and mediators, NGOs working for Roma communities.

4. Expected Results

• Obtain a new awareness in institutions and civil society organization at EU and national level, about the dimension and severity of the problem and the need to insert it as a transversal priority in Roma inclusion strategies.

• Initiate a cultural change in the attitude towards the forced child marriage, mainly within the Roma communities but also in general public.

• Forge a strong partnership of Roma women organizations with capacity to pursue this work as a priority.

• Formulate practical and policy recommendations.

Actionaid International Italia Onlus (Italy) - AFTER Against FGM/C Through Empowerment and Rejection Network – grant €719.114,00 – 5 MS (IT, ES, BE, SE, IE) - Harm – JUST/2014/RDAP/AG/HARM

Project website: http://www.afterwomen.eu/project

The project deals with Female genital mutilation/cutting (FGM/C) which reflect a deeprooted inequality between the sexes and constitutes an extreme form of discrimination against girls and women. It stands out as a relevant form of violence against girls and its a violation of women’s human rights to life, dignity and health

1. Activities
The core activities of the AFTER project in fact are empowerment and sensitization activities directly targeting migrant women and girls and their communities living in the EU – including men and religious leaders & local policy and decision makers – with the aim to mobilise them to reject FGM/C practices. This will be done by:

1) replicating in Europe effective participatory methodologies (viz. ReflectAction methodology http://www.reflectaction.org/womensrights) successfully implemented in communities in Africa and
2) involving women, girls, opinion makers and religious leaders coming directly from African communities in Europe so to witness how the FGM/C practice is becoming unpopular & banned also among many African people as well.

Activities include:
- Mobilise migrant women & girls living in the EU to reject and challenge FGM/C.
- Mobilise migrant communities – in particular men and religious leaders to reject FGM/C.
- Build alliances among migrant communities in the EU and communities in countries of origin to prevent and fight FGM/C.
- Build a network of local administrators committed to take concrete actions to prevent FGM/C and to support FGM victims, also in terms of community service offered.
- Broadly disseminate information on existing social and healthcare services and protection measures related to FGM/C among migrant communities.
- Sensitize a wider audience of European citizens on FGM/C.

2. Type and number of persons benefiting from the project
- The main target group of the project are migrant women and girls from FGM/C affected communities living in the EU who will participate in the empowerment activities foreseen in work stream 2.

3. Expected results
- The overall expected result is that they will be more empowered and willing to reject FGM/C and to take action to change cultural behaviours and beliefs that tolerate FGM/C in their communities.
- In particular women and girls after the completion of the project will have improved knowledge of their rights relating to women’s sexual autonomy and bodily integrity and on the consequences of FGM/C on the lives of women and girls who undergo the practice.
- They will know more about existing international and national laws and policies aimed at protecting girls and women from harmful traditional practices and in particular FGM/C and preventing the practice and about relevant support and protection services available in the country and city they live in.
- Through testimonies and meetings with women, girls and religious leaders involved in FGM/C prevention programmes in Africa they will have increased awareness of success stories regarding women and girls’ struggles to challenge and reject FGM/C.
- Men and religious leaders from FGM/C affected communities living in the EU are also target groups of activities but not beneficiaries. After the completion of the project they will have increased awareness on women’s rights, on the consequences of FGM/C and on the social, health and cultural services FGM victims or potential victims will require.
- EU policy makers and national governments are target groups of dissemination activities under WS4. They will benefit from expected project results as they will have increased knowledge and tools on possible effective FGM/C prevention strategies and FGM supportive measures that include direct involvement of affected communities.

4. Type and number of outputs to be produced
Outputs to be produced: Review Report; Mapping and Gapping Assessment; Database of local stakeholders, Champions for Change Network, a Twitter campaign, a RA revised method for immigrants living in northern countries, a training for the trainers (contents + materials), promotional materials for empowering paths, an FGM documentary, 10 videos etc
