Experiencing research: explanation and illustration by business sector representatives of the various daily research applications, paying a particular attention to the fun character of the activities and the provision of examples close to each citizen's daily life and own experience, allowing the audience to implement hands on experiments in close connection with the topics evoked

Playing with researchers: game named 'reSEARCHers': attendants will have to find who is the researcher amongst a selected group of 14 participants (researchers and other professionals) , taking part in a quiz show conducted by a master of ceremony; each participant will make a short speech about the normal day of a researcher, where 7 of the participants will be "impostors",; the public divided into 3 teams will have the opportunity to make a question to each researcher in order to discover who is the "real researcher".
