EXAMPLE OF A MEASURE SUPPORTED BY THE YOUTH EMPLOYMENT INITIATIVE

Targeted subsidised employment

Implemented by the Public Employment Service (Servicio Público de Empleo Estatal), under the YEI-funded project of targeted subsidised employment for youth (Tarifa Joven) employers receive a EUR 300/month reduction of their social security contribution for a period of six months if they offer a permanent contract to a young person registered with the Youth Guarantee programme. In the case of a part-time contract, the reduction will range from EUR 150 to 225/month. The employer is required to maintain or increase the company's employment level while receiving the bonus to avoid replacement effects. This is compatible with other hiring incentives as long as the company's social security contributions are not negative.

The project ran from 5 July 2014 to 30 June 2016 and supported an estimated 4,500 young people. The total budget was EUR 1.43 million, with an YEI/ESF contribution of EUR 1.31 million.
