

Sabine Wahl

Sabine Wahl is working for PwC in Brussels as a transfer pricing director. Prior to joining PwC in Brussels, she worked for sanofi in Paris as transfer pricing director. In 2002, she moved to France from the United States where she was working as a tax lawyer specialized in transfer pricing. She also worked with the Advance Pricing Agreement Program in the United States. Her wide-ranging experience as a consultant, a representative of a tax administration and as a corporation transfer pricing specialist has given her first hand knowledge of the transfer pricing challenges faced by companies across the globe. She was a business member in the last mandate of the EU Joint TP Forum (2007-2011).

Professional Affiliations

Sabine is a member of the ABA, the ICC, and the BIAC. She actively participates to work done by the OECD including participation to OECD consultations, a six month internship, participation to its Outreach program and as a speaker to OECD conferences.

Career

Sabine worked for Coopers and Lybrand in the United States from 1987 to 1992 prior to joining the United States Internal Revenue Service's Office of Associate Chief Counsel (International) in 1994 where she worked for five years as a team leader in the Advance Pricing Agreement Program. After that she worked for U.S. based consulting firms as a transfer pricing specialist. She moved back to France in 2002, to work as a transfer pricing specialist for the U.S. desk of Ernst & Young in Paris. She joined sanofi in October 2005 as the head of transfer pricing until June 2010 when she became the Associate VP responsible for transfer pricing controversy. She joined the Brussels office of PwC in September 2011 as a director in the TP practice where she assists clients with tax-optimized value chain transformations and tax controversy dispute resolution (e.g, advance pricing agreements).

Bar Admission

New York State Bar

Education

Sabine has a master of law from University of Paris I, Paris (France); a Certificate of Studies in International Trade from UCLA, CA (U.S.); a DESS in International Taxation from Paris X-HEC (France); and a L.L.M. from Duke Law School, NC (U.S.).

Languages

French, English