ANNEX I and the gateway's information requirements

Meeting the information requirements in the single digital gateway Regulation

Annex I to the single digital gateway Regulation lists the information areas that the gateway should provide access to, that is “information on rights, obligations and rules laid down in Union and national law that are applicable to users exercising or intending to exercise their rights derived from Union law in the field of the internal market” (Article 2).

The Regulation and Annex I do not propose a concrete information architecture; Your Europe, other EU websites and national websites should however cooperate to minimise unnecessary duplications: “Member States and the Commission should aim to [...] avoid confusion among the users as a result of different or fully or partly duplicative sources of the same information” (Recital 55).

It is also in the interest of Commission and Member States to optimise use of resources and avoid duplication of efforts.

That is why the gateway coordination group should “discuss and recommend actions to the competent authorities and the Commission with a view to avoiding or eliminating unnecessary duplication of the services available through the gateway” (Article 30).

Creating a shared information architecture

This document proposes a first approach to creating a shared information architecture.

It does so by looking at Annex I, matching each line to one of three categories, and outlining a possible distribution of content across Commission-managed websites (mainly Your Europe) and national websites participating in the gateway.

Information required by Annex I can be assigned to three broad categories and specific approaches:

- EU level information: rights and obligations in the area are harmonised throughout the EU, with little or no national variation; the legal framework is often set in regulations directly applicable everywhere in the EU (e.g. on passenger rights). In most cases, this content should be presented exclusively on Your Europe. National websites can complement this information with country-specific details on implementation, contacts of relevant authorities.
- Shared EU / national information: the broad legal framework is set in EU law, typically directives (e.g. on residence rights), but the concrete rights and obligations for citizens and businesses in specific countries may differ. Usually, Your Europe content on the EU legal framework needs to be complemented by national content to ensure users identify their concrete rights and obligations.
- Primarily national information: these topics were identified as relevant for Annex I as they are important information for citizens and businesses looking for opportunities across borders; there are however no EU-wide rights and obligations. Your Europe can provide access to national content.

Member States will be responsible for publishing “a sufficiently comprehensive, clear and user-friendly explanation of [online and offline procedures ... in order to enable users to exercise the rights and comply with the obligations and rules in the field of the internal market in the areas listed in Annex I]” (Articles 10 and 2 (b)): users should be provided with all relevant information to enjoy rights and comply with obligations in areas identified in Annex I.

This approach is a proposal, to be discussed and validated with Member States. It will always stay open to updates based on experience, user feedback and usability evidence.

New and updated chapters are marked as such. Minor updates are highlighted in the text.

It is up to each Member State to decide whether information for each chapter and specific line should be covered in a single, central portal, or across websites managed by different administrations. A coordinated approach is usually user-friendlier and arguably easier to manage for national coordinators.

Travel within the Union: documents required of Union citizens, their family members who are not Union citizens, minors travelling alone, non-Union citizens when travelling across borders within the Union (ID card, visa, passport)

Approach: Your Europe to provide information on general rules for travel throughout the EU; national information required on travel documents for minors, travelling with lost and expired passports.

Documents for minors travelling in the EU

Minors may be required to carry specific documents and/or authorisations when travelling in the EU, whether alone, with an adult who is not their legal guardian, or with one parent only.

There are no EU rules on the types of documents minors are required to carry when travelling in the EU; these requirements are defined by national law.

Information relevant for coverage:

- The specific documents and/or authorisations minors are required to have when travelling to and from their home country (within the EU)
- Information on how and where these documents can be obtained and/or any special procedure that must be followed (including any relevant deadlines)
- Whether authorisations are required each time the minor travels.
- Whether minors from other EU countries are subject to the same requirements when entering, leaving or transiting the country.
- Information (who and where) on any checks that are carried out and any consequences if the minor does not have the required documents / authorisations.

On Your Europe:

Travel documents for minors

Expired passport or identity card

There are no EU rules on travelling with an expired passport or identity card (ID), national rules and procedures apply in this case. Although EU nationals do not need to show a passport or national identity card when travelling and crossing borders inside the Schengen area, national rules may still require EU nationals to carry a valid passport or ID card at all times.

Information relevant for coverage:

- If nationals can enter and / or leave their home country on an expired passport or ID card
- Whether there are consequences or penalties if they do
- Whether the same rules apply to nationals of other EU countries entering / leaving or transiting
- Whether there are special arrangements / exceptions for some EU / EEA countries if travelling on an expired passport or ID card

Lost passport or identity card

There are no EU rules on the procedure to follow if an EU citizen loses or has their passport or ID card stolen, national rules apply. Although EU nationals do not need to show a passport or national identity card (ID) when travelling and crossing borders inside the Schengen area, national rules may still require EU nationals to carry a valid passport or ID card at all times.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Whether there is a special procedure to follow if a citizen loses or has their passport or ID card stolen at home or in another EU country
 - If yes, provide information on the procedure and indicate any relevant deadlines
- Whether the same rule applies to visiting nationals from other EU countries
- Whether visiting nationals from other EU countries are allowed to leave / transit if their passport or ID card has been lost or stolen
- Whether it is possible to get an emergency travel document (ETD)
 - If yes, what the conditions and procedures are to get one
- Whether there are special arrangements / exceptions for nationals of some EU / EEA countries if they lose or have their passport / ID card stolen

AREA B.3, N.3

Work and retirement within the Union: recognition of qualifications with a view to employment in another Member State

Services: recognition of professional qualifications, including vocational education and training

Approach:

- Your Europe to provide information on general recognition of professional qualifications and the European Professional Card
- Users should already be able to identify which professions are regulated in any Member State via the Regulated Professions Database: <https://ec.europa.eu/growth/tools-databases/regprof/index.cfm> ³
- Via the Regulated Professions Database Member States should also provide specific information on the various requirements they have introduced for regulated professions in their territory.⁴
- On a national level, Member States are already required to provide a central entry point which gives access to information on each regulated profession on their Point of Single Contact website⁵. This information should cover the information referred to in the Services Directive⁶ and specific information listed in the Professional Qualifications Directive⁷, including the information on fees, documents to be submitted, and details on how to appeal.
- National coordinators to ensure the Regulated Professions Database and the information provided on their Points of Single Contact is kept up to date and the standards on quality and completeness of this information as required under the gateway Regulation are respected. The pages on the PSCs should then only be translated into English to meet the requirements of the gateway Regulation.
- National information required on any further conditions to recognise vocational education and training followed in other Member States

³ See Art. 59 of Directive 2005/36/EC as regards obligations to update the information in the Regulated Professions Database.

⁴ As required under Article 59(5) of Directive 2005/36/EC

⁵ As required in Article 57 of Directive 2005/36/EC.

⁶ Article 7(1) and 7(3) of Directive 2006/123/EC to the extent this relates to regulated professions.

⁷ Articles 57(1) of Directive 2005/36/EC.

AREA B.4

Work and retirement within the Union: taxation in another Member State

Approach: Exclusively national competence, hence national information required for each Member State.

Personal income taxes

There are no EU-wide rules on how the income of EU nationals who live, work or spend time outside their home countries should be taxed.

However, the authorities in the country of residence for tax purposes can usually tax an individual's total worldwide income. This includes wages, pensions, benefits, income from property or from any other sources, or capital gains from the sales of property, from all countries worldwide.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Information on tax-residence: who qualifies as tax resident and under what conditions
- Information on personal income tax rates
- Information on submitting a tax return form: deadlines, online procedure
- Information on paying tax: pay-as-you-earn or one-off-payments, deadlines
- Any specific information for employees, self-employed persons, posted workers from other EU countries
- Information on how to appeal a tax assessment

Specific information for cross-border commuters working in one country and living in another

- Information on tax-residence for cross-border commuters
- Information on specific rules for commuters from all neighbouring EU countries (where a country borders several Member States)
- Information on the impact of being a cross-border commuter may have on income tax rates
- Information on the impact on submitting a tax return form, deadlines, online procedure
- Information on how to appeal a tax assessment

Specific information for pensioners that live in one EU country but receive their pension from another

- Information on tax-residence for resident pensioners from other EU countries
- Information on taxation of pensions received from other EU countries
- Information on specific conditions for pensioners from other EU countries
- Information on any impact on income tax rates
- Information on any impact on submitting a tax return form, deadlines, online procedure
- Information on how to appeal a tax assessment

Double taxation agreements

There is a risk that two countries may have the right to tax the same income, examples include cross-border commuters, posted workers, pensioners resident in one EU country receiving a pension from another. Most countries have however concluded agreements to avoid double taxation.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Information on any bilateral agreements in place to avoid double taxation
- Any specific rules that apply to:
 - cross-border commuters, working as employees or self-employed persons
 - posted workers
 - company directors or board members
 - employees working in one EU country for a company based in another
 - mobile artists or sports professionals
 - civil servants in another EU country
 - unemployed persons looking for a job in another EU country
 - pensioners living in one EU country but receiving a pension from another

Employees: rules on staff representation

Approach:

- Your Europe to provide information about EU anti-discrimination rules;
- National information required on any additional rights and obligations in each Member State. Part of this information is already collected by the European Commission and published on the EURES portal; it is available in English, French and German and should be updated once a year
- National coordinators to verify that the information on EURES meets the gateway requirements, and complement via the EURES network or national portals if required.

Available on EURES:

- Information on the representation of workers and of trade unions
- Information on who to contact in case of labour disputes

Other information relevant for coverage, not available on EURES:

- Measures available to employees who may be victims of racism, sexism, harassment, etc. at the work place; who to contact and any available remedies

Work and retirement within the Union: health and safety obligations in relation to different types of activity

Health and safety at work: health and safety obligations in relation to different types of activity, including prevention of risks, information and training

Approach: Your Europe to provide information on general EU measures to encourage improvements in the safety and health of employees at work; national information required on the specific national requirements, in each Member State.

Requirements for risk assessment and preventive measures

Employers must evaluate all the risks employees may be exposed to and put in place preventive and protective measures. Sometimes, they might have to take additional measures, for example, to prevent dangerous situations occurring and provide training on first aid, fire-fighting and evacuation of workers. There are no EU rules that describe exactly how employers should conduct risk assessments, however, in some countries, national rules may include more detailed requirements concerning the content and form of risk assessments.

Information relevant for coverage:

- What the employer's responsibilities are when it comes to the health and safety of workers
- Whether there are any specific rules or formats to conduct risk assessments, for different risks
- For different risks, whether business owners can conduct assessments on their own or if they require a third party (such as from a fire safety expert, a health and safety expert, or similar)
- What health and safety measures are compulsory for all businesses
- What health and safety measures are only compulsory for particular sectors
- Whether there are special occupational safety and health rules that apply when employing young workers
- Whether there are specific conditions and procedures for SMEs

Authorities and reporting accidents

Information relevant for coverage:

- National authority competent for health and safety of workers
- Whether specific sectors have their own competent authorities
- In case of risks established, where complaints can be filed and what the procedure is
- When and how to report accidents, injuries, near-misses or work-related illnesses; whether reporting is compulsory

Vehicles in the Union: taking a motor vehicle temporarily or permanently to another Member State; acquiring and renewing a driving licence; taking out mandatory motor insurance; buying and selling a motor vehicle in another Member State

Approach: Your Europe to provide information on general EU rules; national information required on acquiring a driving licence, driving a vehicle registered in another country or registering a vehicle, taking out mandatory insurance in each Member State.

Buying, registering and selling a vehicle

EU citizens that move to another EU country with their car may need to register it there; if they buy a vehicle in their host country, they will need exhaustive information on rules they are not familiar with. Specific conditions apply to car registration depending on the length of the stay and national rules in the host country.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Requirements to register a vehicle originally registered in another EU country
- Rules and exceptions for registration of company cars from another EU country
- Residence requirements for registering a vehicle from another EU country
- Information on penalties or fines for not complying with registration rules
- Any special conditions or requirements for registering a vehicle for:
 - students from other EU countries
 - second-home owners from other EU countries
 - cross-border commuters from other EU countries
- Information on procedures connected with buying and registering a new vehicle
- Information on procedures and documents needed to register a second hand vehicle registered in the same EU country
- Information on procedures and documents needed to re-register a vehicle already registered in another EU country
- Information on paying vehicle registration tax for permanent residents, temporary residents, students, second home-owners, and cross-border commuters
- Information on paying road tax for permanent residents, temporary residents, students, second home-owners, and cross-border commuters
- Information on periodic roadworthiness tests for vehicles
- Information on procedures and documents to de-register a vehicle sold abroad (export)
- Information on procedures when moving abroad with the vehicle (de-registration procedure, export plate, vehicle taxation related questions – how long does the owner have to pay the tax after having moved abroad with his/her vehicle)

- Information on the procedure and documents needed to de-register a vehicle at end-of-life

Driving licences

Obtaining a driving licence

To get a driving licence in an EU country, requirements usually include residence, minimum age, meeting the compulsory level of medical fitness, passing a driving test.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Age requirements for obtaining a driving licence category A, A1, A2 and B
- Residence requirements for foreign EU nationals to obtain a driving licence
- Information on driver's training and driving licence exams
- Information about accredited driving schools
- Information on driving test centres
- Information on any compulsory medical checks to prove fitness to drive
- Information on the validity of the driving licence
- Information on the validity of the driving licence for elderly drivers
- Information on the accepted formats of driving licences in addition to the EU wide standard format issued since 2013
- Information on and conditions for the use of provisional driving licences

Recognition of driving licences

- Information on the recognition of driving licences issued in other EU countries
- Information on the recognition of driving licences issued in non- EU countries
- Information on the recognition of EU driving licences issued in other EU countries in exchange for a non-EU licence
- Contact details of the responsible authority
- Information on the documents an EU citizen needs to submit to get their licence recognised including any time limits

Obligatory exchange of driving licences

- Information on any obligations to exchange a non-EU driving licence for an EU one
- Contact details of the responsible authority

Renewing or exchanging a driving licence in another Member State

Only one EU driving licence may be held at any one time. This licence is issued by the authorities of the EU country of residence.

If an EU citizen moves to another EU country and their driving licence is lost, stolen, damaged or expired, they should renew or exchange it in the country where they usually reside.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Residence requirements for renewing a driving licence for foreign EU nationals
- Age requirements (if any) for renewing a driving licence category A, A1, A2 and B
- Deadlines for renewing a driving licence if it has expired
- Information on any compulsory medical checks to prove fitness to drive
- Information on the documents an EU citizen needs to submit to get their licence exchanged
- Information on exchanging a non-EU driving licence for an EU licence and any deadlines to be respected

- Information on the documents a non-EU citizen needs to submit to get their licence exchanged

Vehicle insurance

When registering a car in any EU country, the owner must take out third party liability insurance. This compulsory insurance is valid in all other EU countries and provides cover for any damage to property or injury caused to persons other than the driver.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Information on how to dispute a decision taken by the vehicle insurer
- Information on if and how claims history, including from other countries, is taken into account to determine insurance premiums
- Information on if and how claims history from other countries can be verified
- Information on the contact details of the relevant authority

Vehicle insurance cover in another Member State

In the case of accidents abroad, the law of the country where the accident took place applies. This means that the process for claiming compensation might be different.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Information on the procedure in case of an accident involving vehicles
 - Obligation to use the official accident declaration form
 - Obligation to call the police
- Information on any penalties if the accident procedure is not respected
- Information on the procedure for claiming compensation from the other driver's insurer
- Information on the procedure for filing an accident declaration

AREA C.5

Vehicles in the Union: national traffic rules and requirements for drivers, including general rules for the use of the national road infrastructure: time-based charges (vignette), distance-based charges (toll), emission stickers

Approach: exclusively national information, partially already available on DG MOVE's website:

http://ec.europa.eu/transport/road_safety/going_abroad/index_en.htm

The European Commission collects this information from national authorities as required by EU law⁸, and publishes it in a user-friendly format, in all official EU languages.

- National coordinators to verify this information updated, and complement it on national websites with:

Information on tolls and vignettes

The European Electronic Toll Service Directive (EETS)⁹ covers exchange of information on the failure to pay road fees, including on (toll-based) UVARs, but does not cover other measures such as low-emission zones. The Eurovignette Directive (1999/62/EC as amended) sets rules for tolls and user charges (it currently applies only to Heavy Goods Vehicles (HGVs) but should be extended to other vehicle categories). Its revision is currently being discussed in the Council.

- Information on tolls, roads / areas:
 - where they are located, incl. possibly a toll map
 - local name of the scheme
 - enforcement used including how they operate: manned or automatic
 - information on which vehicles are affected including tariffs: for different classes of vehicles; whether the tariffs are different for locals (such as discounts for frequent users)
 - hours of operation including differing tariffs depending on day and time
- How to pay, including options to pay tolls in advance and any need to register in advance
- Any obligations to pay tolls after using the road infrastructure: how long after, and by when (deadlines); consequences of not paying, including penalty/fee and amount of possible fine
- Information on vignettes to access the road infrastructure:
 - where they are required, incl. possibly a map
 - how to obtain them: where to buy them, incl. if possible online
- Alternative transport options
- Any exemptions

Information on urban traffic restrictions and emission stickers

⁸ Directive (EU) 2015/413 facilitating cross-border exchange of information on road-safety-related traffic offences, Art. 8

⁹ Directive (EU) 2019/520 on the interoperability of electronic road toll systems and facilitating cross-border exchange of information on the failure to pay road fees in the Union

Urban mobility, including Urban Vehicle Access Regulations (UVARs) is the responsibility of local authorities, in line with the subsidiarity principle and subject to applicable EU rules.

- Information on low emission zones, congestion charging and urban traffic restrictions
- Local name of the scheme
- Information on any emission sticker conceived to regulate access to areas, regions and cities
- Enforcement used, such as through cameras, or manually
- Information on areas, regions and cities where an emission sticker is required to enter
- Information on which vehicles are affected: including emission class, retrofitted vehicles, etc
- Consequences of entering a restricted area without an emission sticker, incl. penalty/fee and amount of possible fine
- Cost and conditions (duration, limitation to one or more restricted areas) for use of vignette / emission sticker
- Hours of operation
- How to obtain emission stickers: where to buy vignettes / emission stickers; whether it is possible to buy them online; how to pay and any need for registering in advance
- Information on whether tourists / visitors / non-residents are obliged to have an emission sticker and procedures to obtain them, incl. possible pre-registration
- Alternative transport options
- Any exemptions

Residence in another Member State: moving temporarily or permanently to another Member State; requirements for residence documents for Union citizens and their family members, including family members who are not Union citizens

Approach: Your Europe to provide information on EU residence rights; national information required on documents required to stay, reporting presence, registering residence in each Member State.

IDs and passports

If you are an EU national, you do not need to show your national ID card or passport when you are crossing internal borders in the Schengen area. However, national rules may still require EU nationals to carry a valid ID or passport at all times.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Whether EU citizens and their family members need to carry a valid ID or passport or another identification document at all times.
- Whether EU citizens and their family members who do not carry a valid ID or passport at all times can incur fines or other consequences.

Reporting presence

The host EU country cannot require foreign EU nationals to register their residence during the first three months of their stay: request a residence document while proving they have found employment, are in education or training, have their own resources to live on etc. Host countries can however require foreign EU nationals to simply report their presence to the relevant authorities.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Whether EU citizens and their family members need to report their presence after arrival
 - If yes, the relevant deadline
 - If yes, where EU citizens and their family members can report their presence
- Documents to be submitted when reporting presence

Registering residence

After three months the host country can require foreign EU nationals to register their residence and prove they have found employment, are in education or training, have their own resources to live on etc. Not all EU countries impose this requirement.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Whether EU citizens and their family members need to register their residence
 - If yes, the relevant deadline (cannot be within three months of arrival)
 - If yes, where EU citizens can register their residence
- Whether the procedure to register residence is available online
- What documents inactive citizens (pensioners, self-sufficient persons) must present as proof of having sufficient financial resources
- What documents are required to show there is a family relationship for spouses, (grand)children, (grand)parents, parents-in-law, extended family members, non-registered partners, registered partners
- What documents are required to prove that a family member is economically dependent
- For how many years a registration certificate is valid
- Whether EU citizens and their family members can incur fines or other consequences for not registering their residence
- Whether EU citizens are required to have their registration certificate with them at all times
- Whether EU citizens and their family members can incur fines or other consequences for not carrying a registration certificate
- Which authorities are responsible for registering residence

Permanent residence

EU nationals and their family members acquire the right of permanent residence in another EU country after living there legally for a continuous period of 5 years.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Where and how to apply for permanent residence
- Whether the procedure is available online
- What documents are required to start the procedure

Request to leave and deportation

EU citizens may live in another EU country as long as they continue to meet the conditions for residence. If they no longer meet these requirements, national authorities may require them to leave. In exceptional cases, the host country can deport them on grounds of public policy or public security - but only if it can prove they represent a serious threat.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Conditions that determine a request to leave the country or a deportation decision
- Information on any appeal procedure

Deregistering your residence

Information relevant for coverage:

- Whether EU citizens leaving the country need to deregister their residence
 - If yes, the relevant deadline
 - If yes, the relevant procedure
- Whether the procedure can be completed online

Cross-border citizens and family rights, obligations and rules:

birth, custody for minor children, parental responsibilities, rules on surrogacy and adoptions, including second-parent adoption, maintenance obligations in relation to children in a cross-border family situation; living in a couple with different nationalities, including same-sex couples (marriage, civil or registered partnership, separation, divorce, marital property rights, the rights of cohabitants); rules on gender recognition; rights and obligations in relation to succession in another Member State, including tax rules; rights and rules in case of cross-border parental child abduction.

Approach:

The Commission covers on Your Europe information on Union law dealing with the matters listed below. National information on these matters has already been provided by Member States and is available on the European e-Justice Portal: <https://e-justice.europa.eu/>:

- Custody for minor children
- Parental responsibilities
- Rights and rules in case of cross-border parental child abduction
- Maintenance obligations in relation to children in a cross-border family situation
- Separation, divorce
- Marital property rights
- Rights to successions (excluding tax aspects)

National coordinators to verify that the information provided on e-Justice is kept up to date and meets the quality standards required under the gateway Regulation.

No Union law exists on the matters listed below; national coordinators will ensure that information on these matters is provided on national portals:

- Rules on registration and recognition of birth
- Rules on marriage and recognition of marriage
- Rules on registered partnerships and recognition of such partnerships
- Rules and requirements for adoption, including second parent adoption
- Rules and requirements for surrogacy
- Rules on gender recognition

Consumer rights: connection to utilities, such as gas, electricity, water, household waste disposal, telecom and internet

Approach: Your Europe to provide information for EU rules on universal service provision for telecoms, internet and electricity; national information required on specific utilities in each Member State, including at local level (e.g. for waste disposal).

Information relevant for coverage – for each type of utility:

- Whether consumers always have a right to be connected; if there is a universal service provision
- If so, how consumers find out the name of the universal service provider and contact them
- Whether consumers have to pay to get connected
- What if someone moves to a house where there's already a connection
- What if someone needs a new connection (newly constructed house, renovation, etc.)
- Whether and how consumers can change suppliers
- Any official website where citizens can compare prices from different suppliers
- What people do if they have a problem or a complaint; who they contact and how
- What people should do if they can't pay their bill; any assistance available for low-income households
- Any special assistance services available for customers with disabilities (braille readers, for example)
- For household waste disposal (most likely local information):
 - How waste collection/disposal is organised
 - What systems are in place for recycling household waste – how often it is collected, and where people can take their rubbish for recycling or disposal?
 - How to pay for rubbish collection/disposal, and what is the cost

AREA H.5

Consumer rights: consumer rights and guarantees related to buying goods and services, including procedures for consumer dispute resolution and compensation

Approach: Your Europe to provide information on general EU consumer rights and guarantees; national information required on concrete conditions in each Member State.

Legal guarantee of conformity for goods

EU consumers always have the right to a minimum 2-year guarantee at no cost, regardless of whether they bought their goods online, in a shop or by mail order. If goods bought in the EU turn out to be faulty or do not look or work as advertised, the seller must repair or replace them free of charge or give customers a price reduction or a full refund. Consumers can usually only ask for a partial or full refund when it is not possible to repair or replace the goods.

Second-hand goods bought from a trader are also covered by the legal guarantee. However, goods bought from private individuals are not covered and national rules may also exclude goods sold at public auction. In some EU countries, when consumers buy second-hand goods they can agree with the trader on a guarantee period of less than 2 years. However, it must be no shorter than 1 year and should be made clear at the time of purchase.

The 2-year guarantee is the minimum right, national rules may give extra protection.

Information relevant for coverage:

- How long is the legal guarantee for new and second-hand goods
- When there is a lack of conformity with the sale contract, including a defect, who is responsible for putting things right
- Whether the consumer has to notify the seller of the defect within specific time, and by when
- Who has to prove the presence/absence of a defect at the time of delivery and how long from when the goods were delivered they have to do this
- What solutions (remedies - replacement, repair, price reduction, contract termination) have to be offered by the seller, at what stage of the legal guarantee, and under which conditions - whether there is a hierarchy of remedies
- Whether there are third party testing bodies that can help to provide proof about the defect
- Whether there are any other legal guarantees laid down in national law alongside the legal guarantee of conformity

Commercial warranty/guarantee

Shops or manufacturers will often offer additional commercial guarantees (also called “warranties”), either included in the price of the good or at an extra cost. This can give consumers better protection but can never replace or reduce the minimum 2-year guarantee, which consumers always have under EU rules.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Who is responsible for the application of the commercial guarantee
- On average, what is the duration of a commercial guarantee
- Who determines the duration of the commercial guarantee
- Whether the commercial guarantee is offered free of charge (included in the price of the goods) or is an extra payment required
- Whether it has to be confirmed in writing; if yes, in what format (online, paper?)
- What information has to be provided to the consumer

Right of withdrawal

Under EU law, consumers have the right to withdraw from a distance (e.g. online) or off-premises contract (i.e. contract concluded outside regular shops such as at doorstep) within 14 days of signing the service contract or 14 days from delivery of goods (also referred to as “cancellation” right or “cooling off” period). There are some specific exceptions, for example, perishable goods, goods that have been unsealed and cannot be returned for health or hygiene reasons, and service contracts after the service has been fully performed where the consumer has given their prior agreement to start the performance immediately and acknowledged losing their withdrawal right when the service is fully performed.

EU countries may also decide not to apply these rules to low-value off-premises contracts for which customers are paying no more than €50. National rules may also set a lower value.

EU countries may however also decide to extend these rules, for instance to on-premises sales.

If customers conclude a contract by telephone, national rules might require them to sign the offer or send written consent before the contract is valid.

National rules can also provide that for off-premises contracts the trader can't ask customers to pay during a given period after the conclusion of contract, e.g. until after the 14 day withdrawal period.

Information relevant for coverage:

- Whether the right of withdrawal only applies to off-premises contracts, or it has been extended to on-premises purchases
- Whether the right of withdrawal has been extended in time
- Whether low-value off-premises contracts are covered by national rules on the right of withdrawal
 - If not, what the limit set in national legislation is

- Whether contracts made by telephone are required to have written consent
 - If yes, whether this has to be done in a specific format (email, letter, etc.)
- Whether a trader can ask for payment during the 14-day withdrawal period after the consumer signs an off-premises contract

Consumer dispute resolution (for goods and services)

If the customer continues to have a problem with a product or service that they bought, they can try to settle the dispute out of court using an alternative dispute resolution procedure.

Alternative dispute resolution bodies have to meet strict EU quality criteria, which guarantee that they handle your dispute in an effective, fair, independent and transparent way. Most of them can help customers free of charge or at a low cost. They usually reach an outcome within 90 days. Under EU law, customers can use these bodies to handle all contractual disputes you may have with a trader established in the EU.

If the dispute relates to a product or service bought online, customers can also submit their complaint online via the EU's online dispute resolution (ODR) website.

Information relevant for coverage:

- What remedies consumers are entitled to free of charge
- Whether there is a deadline for implementing the solution
- Whether the repaired/replaced product is covered by a new guarantee
- Whether the consumer can take action against the importer or any intermediary in the supply chain up to and including the producer
- If no amicable solution can be found, what the deadline is for taking the case to court

Approach: Your Europe to provide information on EU rules on access to procurement procedures; national information required on concrete conditions in each Member State, including at local level if relevant

Participating in public tenders: rules and procedures

- What the different types of public procurement procedures are
- Whether there are any thresholds that determine different rules (below EU thresholds)
- Whether there are different rules depending on the type of tender
- When a bidder can be excluded from bidding on a call for tender
- How long the bidders have to submit their bid (from the date the tender was published)
- What documents a bidder should include in their application
- Where public tenders (including tenders below thresholds if applicable) can be found
- How electronic invoices should be submitted
- Any national sources of help with procurement procedures
- Any sources of information about procurement planning
- Any sources of information for carrying out procurement procedures, including awarding contracts and their implementation

Submitting a bid online in response to a public call for tender

- Any specific technical requirements for submitting a bid
- Whether eSignatures are mandatory and, if so, explain the requirements.
- Whether there are specific portals used to submit a bid for a public tender
- Any tutorials on submitting a bid

Reporting irregularities in relation to the tender process

- What the rules are on placing complaints/reviewing public procurement procedures
- How and to whom an irregularity in the tendering process can be reported
- Who can submit a complaint
- What the time constraints/limitations are for submitting a complaint
