Article 99 of the Treaty calls on Member States to treat their economic policies as a matter of common concern and to coordinate them. Economic theory is in broad agreement that policy coordination offers a means to eliminate harmful spillover and promote stability-oriented macroeconomic policy and structural reform in factor and product markets. The main objective of the study is to provide plausible estimates of the magnitude of economic spillover and the impact of economic policy coordination on economic performance in the euro area. The first half of the study will focus on the comparative importance of different types of budgetary spillover. The second half will examine the benefits of stability-oriented macroeconomic policy and structural reform in capital, labour and product markets.
