

Digital Single Market

Zaryn Dentzel

Tuenti

Zaryn Dentzel is the founder and CEO of Tuenti [1], Spain's largest social network and most trafficked website, now launching a global beta version in 12 languages comprised of a web application (www.tuenti.com [2]), a web app optimized for mobile (m.tuenti.com [3]), and native applications for Android, BlackBerry, iPhone and Windows Phone (Tuenti Social Messenger [3]). Zaryn studied at UC Santa Barbara and Occidental College, graduating with a degree in Spanish Literature, and Diplomacy and World Affairs. Since creating Tuenti over six years ago, Zaryn has built the company into a leading online social network and a multi-platform social communications company with over 15 million registered users. Tuenti is now a leading technology company in Europe, with a team of more than 250 professionals from over 20 nationalities based in Madrid and Barcelona.

In 2010 Telefónica became Tuenti's principal shareholder, investing in the expansion of Tuenti beyond Spain and the development of a new mobile service provider. Tuenti's MVNO service (Tuenti Móvil [4]) has established itself as the first "social mobile phone company", focused on promoting smartphones as tools for providing "total connectivity".

As a member of the cabinet of advisors to Crown Prince Felipe for the Principe de Girona Foundation, Zaryn is also involved in helping to promote education and entrepreneurship among young people in Spain.

- Website [2]
- Twitter [5]

Team responsible

DG CONNECT [6]

Published:

Thursday, 21 March, 2013

Last update:

Tuesday, 9 May, 2017

Share this page

Source URL: <https://ec.europa.eu/digital-single-market/en/content/zaryn-dentzel>

Links

[1] <http://tuenti.com/>

[2] <http://www.tuenti.com/>

[3] <http://m.tuenti.com/>

[4] <http://www.tuenti.com/movil>

[5] <https://twitter.com/zaryn>

[6] https://ec.europa.eu/info/departments/communications-networks-content-and-technology_en