Italy Best Practice competition and Call for Ideas open until 31st March 2013

The Italian Institute of Urban Planning has launched a competition to identify best practices in the field of Urban Management of public spaces (by Public Administrations and third sector organisations)

A "call for ideas" is open until 31st March 2013 to investigate the correlation between physical public space and virtual networks: the objective of the call is to identify emerging BPs stemming from the use of social networks, co-working, crowd-sourcing and community hubs specifically on "social cities" and open source cities".

Participation is called for architects, designers, researchers, sociologists, communication experts and Public Administrations officials.
