Report on the results of the public consultation on the "Future Joint Technology Initiative(s) on electronic components and embedded systems"

The consultation was launched on the institutional platform (IPM) of the European Commission on 20th July 2012. It consisted of 21 questions covering the policy and economic context, the current ENIAC and ARTEMIS initiatives, the possible improvements and model for future initiative(s) under Horizon 2020 and the related performance indicators. The aim of the consultation was to receive feedback on the need for action and on the direction to take to tackle the challenges faced by the electronic components and systems sector.
