

Digital Single Market

News Article

09/05/2012 to 31/05/2012

Call for papers - European Journal of ePractice issue: New Business Models in eGovernment

This issue whose submission deadline is 31 May 2012 focuses on possible new business models for eGovernment. Welcome submissions include real-world eGovernment modifications to business models in both the European Union and internationally, including the necessary supporting legal and regulatory frameworks, and public accountability and reassurance (trust) mechanisms; examples of alternative eGovernment business models, such as gains-sharing – including benefits-funded models and shared savings models; enablers and barriers, and cost-benefit analysis of new business models in eGovernment.

Read full text [1]

[2]

Share this page

Source URL: <https://ec.europa.eu/digital-single-market/en/news/call-papers-european-journal-epractice-issue-new-business-models-egovernment>

Links

[1] <http://epractice.eu/en/node/5339846>

[2] <mailto:>