The UDeusto Ageing&Wellbeing Interdisciplinary research platform has been involved in the First Conference on the Social Impact of Research organized by the University of Deusto. The event took place at the Campus of Bilbao (Sala Gárate) on 20 March 2017 and on 27 March 2017 at the Campus of San Sebastian (Aula Digital).

In alignment with the European debate on how to combine scientific excellence with open science and social impact, the event aimed at discussing how Deusto’s research activities contribute to social transformation and lead to fairer and more diverse societies, where inclusive social development and welfare are enhanced.

Concrete examples of the social impact of Deusto’s research were showed. Researchers and social players (business, public administration entities, NGOs, school students and professors, among others) presented their experiences, showing how interdisciplinarity and intersectoral cooperation is crucial to develop research with impact.
