Biofuels	The Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) supports the government's policy on reducing greenhouse gas emissions from vehicles and places a legal requirement on transport fuel suppliers to ensure that a percentage of the fuel they supply comes from renewable and sustainable sources. Fuel suppliers who supply at least 450,000 litres of fuel a year are required to comply. In the UK, pure biofuels are not sold: all purchases are of blended fuels. There is no excise duty reduction or exemption for biofuel blends.
