

Get inspiration from the Green Spider Network

The Green Spider Network (GSN) is a network of information and communication professionals working in environment ministries and national environmental agencies in Europe. An important objective of the network is to provide a platform for exchange of information and experience in the field of environmental communication. In order to support this, a new feature has been introduced on the network's website: A library of best practice within environmental communication.

The introduction of the best practise library is part of a complete redesign of the GSN website. The library gives GSN members as well as anybody else working with environmental communication easy access to best practise examples from the network members.

The library consists of campaigns and other communication initiatives carried out by members of the GSN in recent years. The information given on each initiative includes:

- The title and subject of the communication initiative
- The target groups
- The media used
- The languages in which the initiative is available
- The owner of the initiative
- Link to more details and contact information on the GSN website

You can get access to the library from the new GSN website at:

http://ec.europa.eu/environment/networks/greenspider/index_en.htm

This newsflash is issued by the EECN which is DG Environment's support structure for European Environmental Communication Networks.

Visit the web site of the EECN on:

http://ec.europa.eu/environment/networks/index_en.htm to learn more about the activities of the networks and read newsflashes previously released.

