

EPALE editorial policy statement

The editorial policy statement outlines EPALE's values and standards. It applies to all content on the EPALE site and across its wider online presence.

Accuracy

EPALE is committed to giving adult learning professionals high-quality, accurate and original content. News and blogs will always be up-to-date and relevant to the needs and concerns of the users. EPALE's articles will always be factually correct, and free from defamatory material.

Tolerance

While we welcome comments and opinions, users must respect the opinions of others, and refrain from using offensive or harmful language. Failure to do so will result in the removal of users from the site.

Accessibility

EPALE will adhere to European information providers' guidance to make the site accessible by users. Content and design on the site will be presented in a simple, easy-to-read way.

Engagement

We want to improve the standards of adult education across Europe, and for users to share their experience and knowledge. The opinions and experience of EPALE's users will always be respected on the site, and suggestions on how to improve will be welcomed.

Independence

The editorial direction of the site will be governed by its users. Content will be a true reflection of the adult learning sector across Europe, with stories and articles free from bias.
