Founded in 1978, CESEP is a publicly recognized association that offers adult education including training, research, creation of educational tools and analyses.

For more than 30 years, CESEP has offered job seekers the chance to gain knowledge of IT tools for use in different sectors.

Our training courses are known for their content tailored to the job market, their active pedagogy, state of the art computer equipment, a pleasant environment, and constant attention to positive group dynamics. Throughout our training courses we prepare for real-life situations by simulating job-related scenarios.

Cesep’s core business is specialised training for workers in the non-profit sector.

We believe that training is above all about revealing everyone’s knowledge before adding new knowledge. The learning process is a fusion of these two elements that make people stronger, more active participants in their lives and in society. We have therefore developed an active pedagogy with the participant occupying a central place in the training system.

Cesep develops many different training courses for the non-profit sector. These courses cover multiple themes, from organizational systems to the administrative and financial management of non-profit associations, including, for example, project management, meeting efficiency, managing stress, conducting cultural and social projects, conflict resolution, use of free software.

Our international operations are focused on our traditional strengths: further education and social and professional integration. We exchange know-how of our practices with those of other countries, to integrate best practice from elsewhere and to inspire our partners.

Travel broadens the mind; it also trains our trainers and strengthen our practices.

Cesep also has the wherewithal to organise events in Brussels, the heart of Europe.
