

Table of Contents

Abstract	3
EN.....	3
DE.....	3
FR.....	4
Authors	5
Acknowledgments	5
1. Introduction.....	7
1.1 Background	7
1.2 Rationale behind the Labour Market Areas: better data from a statistical perspective	8
2. Legal and policy framework.....	9
2.1 The amended NUTS Regulation on territorial typologies	9
2.2 Potential policy use of harmonised Labour Market Areas	10
3. The European method for delineation of harmonised Labour Market Areas ...	13
4. Challenges.....	16
4.1 Building block sensitivity.....	16
4.2 Sensitivity of the parameters	19
4.3 Needs of input data for future updates	24
4.4 National vs European Labour Market Areas.....	26
4.5 Cross-border Labour Market Areas	27
4.6 Statistical data production at the level of Labour Market Areas	31
5. Use cases of Labour Market Area.....	41
5.1 Labour Market Areas as industrial districts	41
5.2 Alternative Labour Market Areas for commuters sharing specific characteristics ...	42
5.3 Labour Market Areas as Housing Market Areas	45
5.4 Usage of the LMAs' algorithm for production of other functional geographies	47
6. Territorial classifications.....	48
6.1 Link to the urban-rural typology and degree of urbanisation.....	48
6.2 Link to the Functional Urban Areas and the metropolitan typology	59
7. Conclusions and recommendations for the future.....	62
8. References	64
Abbreviations.....	67