1. Introduction

Consumption is the focus of the Household Budget Survey (HBS) and the majority of the variables that the countries collect are at household level. However, the advantage that the HBS has over other sources of consumption is, that by being a survey at household level, it can get information about the characteristics of the household and its members. The collection of these additional characteristics at EU level allows further consumption analysis according to these characteristics.

1.1. Micro-data versus Aggregated/Tabular data

Countries are encouraged to send micro-data instead of the aggregated tables (Tabular Data). This reflects the high demand for information on consumption expenditure from Policy Makers and researchers. In view of the fact that this survey is so rich in information, one cannot foresee all the potential tables which can be deduced. Moreover, to ask for all the possible tables to be sent to EUROSTAT would be impractical.

1.2. Structure of the document

This document will keep the same layout as its predecessor(s) and is split into parts:

- Chapters 2 and 3 describe the format and content of the micro-data files to be transmitted to Eurostat.
- Chapter 4 describes the data transmission procedure.
- Chapter 5 documentation.

2. PROPOSED LIST OF VARIABLES FOR MICRO-DATA FILES

The following lists contain the variables proposed by Eurostat for the micro-data files of the HBS Wave 2020. These lists have been proposed after an analysis of the variables actually used to satisfy the information needs of the users of the HBS information at a European level during the last few years, the expected uses during the next years and to align this survey with the List of Social Statistics Standard Variables (SV) as endorsed by the Directors of Social Statistics (See Annex 4 for Definitions and Guidelines).

In this edition the distinction between 'Household' and 'Members' files is retained by having two separate groups of files with a common Household Reference Number Variable in all, for relationship-building purposes. Additional file types exist, namely the one containing the 'Derived' variables and another containing household consumption 'Quantity' variables.

The amounts (Income (HH012, HH023, HH032, HH095, HH099 and MF099), Expenditure, Quantities) reported to Eurostat should be annualised (temporal weighting); the weighting of the sample is provided separately (HA10) to be applied by Eurostat.

Eurostat proposes that only the derived variables, which will be used to produce tables for Eurostat's website, will be calculated by each country. The others will be calculated accordingly on an ad hoc basis.

The list of variables and their possible values are given below:

2.1. Basic variables at the household level

These variables give information about single households and come from the information collected in the surveys.

2.1.2. [HE] Household's consumption expenditure

Household's consumption expenditure will be supplied broken down by the ECOICOP 5-Digit classification (4 levels with up to 5-digit codes).

The List of HE variables are in Annex 1.

Note: All identifiers have the same numeric Format of: INT 14

The Expenditure variables reported to Eurostat should be annualised (temporal weighting); the weighting of the sample is provided separately (HA10) to be applied by Eurostat.

In order to be able to give a more complete overview of the structure of consumption, in particular in the food sector and the area of benefits-in-kind, consumption expenditure is to be classified into two categories. Each of them indicated by a different suffix which is added to the original HExx identifier:

"A" = expenditure effected in monetary form

"B" = expenditure effected in non-monetary form

So, for example: HE00 = HE00A + HE00B

It is important in the micro-data files to make clear the distinction between the expenditure items the households declined to report and those for which zero expenditure was reported, during the reference period.

Eurostat recommends that

- a '0' is to be used for any expenditure categories for which the Household reported zero expenditure during the reference period, and
- a '.' (a dot) for categories that the Household declined to provide any value for (i.e. the value is missing).

2.1.3. [HJ] Cross border consumption expenditure

These variables concern the part of the household's consumption expenditure effected abroad.

The List of HQ variables are in Annex 2.

The Quantity variables reported to Eurostat should be annualised (temporal weighting); the weighting of the sample is provided separately (HA10) to be applied by Eurostat.
