

Tõnu Kollo is a Senior researcher and Professor Emeritus at the University of Tartu, Estonia. He has been Dean of the Faculty of Mathematics and Computer Science, a member of the Statistical Council of Estonia from 2011 to 2018, and from 2015 Head of the Council.

He is an elected member of the International Statistical Institute, member of Bernoulli Society on Probability and Statistics and the Estonian Statistical Society. He is a member of different committees and is involved in several international research projects.

He has given more than twenty different courses on various topics of statistics, has carried out research in several areas of statistics and actuarial mathematics in cooperation with colleagues from other countries with special interest in multivariate statistics. He is the author of more than one hundred publications, among them two monographs. In 2007, he received the Estonian state prize for research results in exact sciences.