

Glossary: Apparent labour productivity - SBS

Statistics Explained

Apparent labour productivity is defined as value added at factor costs divided by the number of persons employed. This ratio is generally presented in thousands of euros per person employed.

Related concepts

- Structural business statistics

Statistical data

- Structural business statistics overview