

Published on Visserij (<https://ec.europa.eu/fisheries>)

Seafood Expo Global

26/04/2016 to 28/04/2016

Mediterranean fish stocks keep declining. To reverse the trend and to bring more and more stocks towards sustainable levels, the EU is launching a new political campaign to be announced for the first time at the exhibition.

Venue:

Brussels, Belgium

Seafood Expo Global - Fisheries - European Commission

European Commission stand at Hall 7 - 1411

EU focusses on the Mediterranean Sea

Mediterranean fish stocks keep declining. To reverse the trend and to bring more and more stocks towards sustainable levels, the EU is launching a new political campaign to be announced for the first time at the exhibition.

On Wednesday 27 April, European Commissioner for Environment, Maritime Affairs and Fisheries, Karmenu Vella, will present goals and rationale of the new initiative. He will then hold a debate with some key partners from both Europe and beyond.

The debate will take place from 13:00 to 14:00 (27 April).

Improving consumer information

Visit the European Commission stand to meet our team of experts and take part in short information sessions that will be held each day on the following issues:

- Research and innovation to boost aquaculture
- Sanitary conditions and procedures to import into the EU
- Latest development in EU trade policies regarding fisheries
- European Observatory for markets and trade flows
- Fisheries Local Action Groups

Programme of the information sessions [1]  [357 KB]

For more information and to register to the event and the information sessions please send an email to the mailbox [2]

Source URL: https://ec.europa.eu/fisheries/seafood-expo-global_nl

Links

[1] http://ec.europa.eu/newsroom/mare/document.cfm?action=display&doc_id=17439

[2] <mailto:MARE-COMMUNICATION@ec.europa.eu>