Recommendation for a

COUNCIL DECISION

authorising the opening of negotiations for a cooperation agreement between the European Union and the International Criminal Police Organisation (ICPO-INTERPOL)

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1. CONTEXT OF THE RECOMMENDATION

Terrorism and serious and organised crime are now increasingly dynamic, globalised, and complex phenomena that require a robust and coordinated response by the European Union's law enforcement authorities. In addition, terrorism and serious crime are becoming increasingly mobile, transnational and cross-border phenomena. This requires engaging in deeper and more effective cooperation with international bodies, such as Interpol, that can provide a bridge between the EU and international law enforcement communities.

Context of the current EU-Interpol cooperation

The International Criminal Police Organisation (Interpol)¹ is the largest global criminal police inter-governmental organisation, with 194 member countries. It facilitates law enforcement cooperation, for example by enabling the sharing of and access to law enforcement-related data. Interpol has multiple cooperation agreements with a range of international organisations, in areas of mutual interest. All EU Member States are members of Interpol.

Since the adoption of its first Rules of Processing of Police Information in 1983, Interpol has updated its procedures over the years under the principle that respect for the privacy of individuals is core to information sharing in the context of law enforcement. Interpol's current rules on processing personal data were recently updated in 2019.²

The EU and Interpol already have long-standing and deep cooperation in a range of law enforcement-related areas. Interpol is a key partner for the EU in the field of internal and external security, including countering terrorism and organised crime, as well as in integrated border management.

For instance, Council Common Position 2005/69/JHA³ calls on Member States to take the measures necessary to improve cooperation between their competent law enforcement authorities and between them and such authorities in third countries by exchanging passport data⁴ with Interpol in order to prevent and combat serious and organised crime, including terrorism.

Interpol also participates actively in the operational implementation of the EU policy cycle/EMPACT⁵ by supporting the operational actions of the Member States in cooperation with EU Justice and Home Affairs Agencies⁶, which work closely with Interpol based on a

³ Council Common Position 2005/69/JHA of 24 January 2005 on exchanging certain data with Interpol, OJ L 27, 29.1.2005, p. 61.

⁶ Justice and Home Affairs Agencies are EU agencies established on the basis of Title V Area of freedom, security and justice of the TFEU. The European Union Agency for Law Enforcement Cooperation (Europol), the European Border and Coast Guard Agency (Frontex), the European Union Agency for Criminal Justice Cooperation (Eurojust), the European Monitoring Centre for Drugs and Drug Addiction (EMCDDA), the European Union Agency for Law Enforcement Training (CEPOL) and the European number of agreements or arrangements⁷. When the European Public Prosecutor's Office (the EPPO)⁸ was set up in 2017, a further EU body was created in the area of cross-border investigation and prosecution. Cooperation between the EPPO and Interpol needs to be set up and regulated, as the EPPO is due to become operational shortly.

Lastly, the EU is one of the largest donor of funds to Interpol. These funds are allocated to projects implemented by Interpol, or where Interpol is a project partner. In particular they are for information exchange, law enforcement, including border management cooperation and capacity building activities, and projects and programmes targeting a range of terrorism and serious crime areas, with a regional focus mostly on Africa, Asia and Latin America.

The need for a cooperation agreement between the EU and Interpol

The 2020 EU Security Union strategy⁹ calls on the Member States to step up cooperation between the EU and Interpol, as essential to enhance cooperation and information exchange. The strategy recognises that Interpol, one of the largest inter-governmental criminal police organisations, has an important role to play in this respect. The Commission will therefore look at ways to step up cooperation with Interpol, including possible access to Interpol databases and strengthening operational and strategic cooperation. Furthermore, the 2020 EU Counter Terrorism Agenda¹⁰ acknowledges that Interpol is a key partner on counterterrorism, for example due to their expertise in foreign terrorist fighters, that there are areas where cooperation should be set up or increased, and that several EU bodies are faced with the operational need to have access to Interpol databases to perform their tasks.

Despite existing cooperation with Interpol, there are areas where cooperation could and should be stepped up or even set up in new areas to address a series of indispensable operational needs and to implement existing legal acts, the aim being to better support Member States in preventing and combating terrorism and organised crime. These operational needs require concluding a cooperation agreement with Interpol.

The following paragraphs specify these needs in detail.

First there is a need for a new cooperation agreement between the European Union Agency for Law Enforcement Cooperation (Europol¹¹) and Interpol. Europol already has a cooperation agreement with Interpol that provides for the exchange of personal data, Union Agency for the Operational Management of Large-Scale IT Systems in the Area of Freedom, Security and Justice (eu-LISA) are JHA agencies.

⁷ The cooperation agreement between Interpol and Europol was signed on 05-11-2001. The memorandum of understanding on cooperation between Eurojust and Interpol was signed on 15-07-2013. The working arrangement between Interpol and Frontex was signed on 27-05-2009. The working arrangement between CEPOL and the General Secretariat of Interpol was signed on 06-12-2017. The cooperation agreement between Interpol and EMCDDA was signed on 25-09-2001.

concluded in 2001¹², well before the Europol Regulation came into force on 1 May 2017. However, this agreement does not give direct or indirect access by Europol to information and Interpol's databases, in particular its Notices containing information on terrorists.¹³ In addition, the Agency only exchanges information with Interpol and accesses Interpol's databases for the performance of the Agency's tasks through Interpol's Liaison Officer at Europol or the Agency's Liaison Officer at Interpol. A new agreement¹⁴ governing relations between the Agency and Interpol is therefore needed both to take into account the latest developments in combating terrorism and cross-border and transnational serious organised crime and to manage present-day operational needs, Europol's mandate¹⁵, and the EU's latest data protection regime¹⁶.

Second, there is a need to ensure interoperability. The EU and Interpol have held exploratory talks on the need to enter into a cooperation agreement following the adoption of regulations¹⁷ on interoperability between EU information systems in the fields of borders and

¹³ Interpol Notices are international requests for cooperation or alerts allowing law enforcement to share critical crime-related information, including information on terrorism. Notices include warnings about persons' criminal activities -where these people are considered to be a potential threat to public safety-, warnings of events, people, objects or processes representing a serious and imminent threat to public safety, as well as information on modus operandi, objects, devices and concealment methods used by criminals.

¹⁴ Article 25 of the Europol regulation provides that the Commission must assess the provisions contained in cooperation agreements concluded before the entry into force of the Europol regulation, such as the agreement with Interpol. The Commission must inform the European Parliament and the Council about the outcome of that assessment, and may, if appropriate, submit to the Council a recommendation for a decision authorising the opening of negotiations to conclude international agreements pursuant to Article 218 TFEU, adducing adequate safeguards with respect to the protection of privacy and fundamental rights and freedoms of individuals.

¹⁵ Since the conclusion of the cooperation agreement between Europol and Interpol, Europol's mandate has changed twice, in 2009 and then in 2017 (Council Decision 2009/371/JHA, Regulation (EU) 2016/794). On 9 December 2020 the Commission proposed extending the mandate for Europol [Brussels, 09.12.2020, COM(2020) 796 final].

visa and of police and judicial cooperation, asylum and migration, and the Regulation on the European Travel Information Authorisation System (ETIAS)¹⁸.

The interoperability and European Travel Information Authorisation System Regulations provide controlled access to two Interpol databases¹⁹ by an EU Member State or an EU agency, via the European Search Portal (ESP). The two Interpol databases are the Stolen and Lost Travel Documents (SLTD) and the Travel Documents Associated with Notices (TDAWN) databases. These databases contain a large volume of data on third-country nationals' travel documents. Using the databases can minimise information gaps, maximise positive matches and subsequently improve the operational results of the European Travel Information Authorisation System.

The above two regulations state that queries of Interpol databases must be carried out in a way that no information is revealed to the owner of the Interpol alert. A cooperation agreement with Interpol will provide the required legal basis, including data protection safeguards and guarantees, and authorising the European Search Portal to connect with Interpol databases. A cooperation agreement will also provide scope to establish a secure connection of the European Search Portal and the European Travel Information Authorisation System with Interpol's IT infrastructure, enabling access to Interpol's databases. The aim is to help prevent and investigate terrorist offences.

In the same context, the Commission issued a proposal²⁰ in 2018 to revise the Visa Information System Regulation²¹, which – similarly to the European Travel Information Authorisation System – will authorise automated queries of EU systems for border management and security, and of Interpol databases. In December 2020 the European Parliament and the Council reached a political agreement on this proposal; the formal adoption will follow in the coming months. The political agreement includes a similar provision as the provision contained in the European Travel Information Authorisation System Regulation. The revision of the Visa Information System regulation should therefore also be taken into account in the negotiations with Interpol for the conclusion of a cooperation agreement. This will also help prevent and investigate terrorist offences.

Third, law enforcement and judicial authorities need up-to-date information on criminals and crimes. Interpol manages a wide range of databases containing this information at a global scale, contributed by Interpol's 194 member countries. Interpol's 18 databases²² contain over 100 million law enforcement records with information on individuals such as names and fingerprints, stolen property such as passports and vehicles, weapons and firearms.

¹⁸ Regulation (EU) 2018/1240 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 September 2018 establishing a European Travel Information and Authorisation System (ETIAS) and amending Regulations (EU) No 1077/2011, (EU) No 515/2014, (EU) 2016/399, (EU) 2016/1624 and (EU) 2017/2226 (OJ L 236, 19.9.2018, p. 1).

This information is valuable for Europol, Frontex²³, Eurojust and the EPPO to carry out their tasks in line with their mandates. It increases their effectiveness by providing operational added value, especially when supporting Member States in detecting, preventing and combating terrorism and other serious crimes. These sources of information enable the agencies and the EPPO to improve the accuracy and quality of information already available to them, to identify connections or other links between information, to close information gaps and thus to provide holistic and unified intelligence to the Member States. However, although the databases are directly accessible by EU Member States as member countries of Interpol, Frontex, Eurojust and the EPPO currently do not have access in line with their mandates (either direct access or on a hit/no-hit basis), due to the lack of an agreement with Interpol²⁴.

Agency-specific issues are detailed below.

Europol

The Agency currently exchanges information with Interpol and accesses Interpol databases to carry out its tasks via Interpol's Liaison Officer at Europol or the Agency's Liaison Officer at Interpol, as part of the cooperation agreement in force between Europol and Interpol²⁵. However, practice has shown that this procedure should be improved, accelerated and streamlined to facilitate swift access to this information, especially information in Interpol databases related to countering terrorism, notably its Notices containing information on terrorists. This would allow the operational support provided by Europol to the Member States – especially its analytical capability – to draw on information held by Interpol. Access to Interpol databases, either direct or indirect, would therefore improve operational cooperation, whilst duly taking into account of the restrictions imposed by the data owners.

Frontex

Frontex has the mandate to ensure integrated border management at the EU's external borders, with a view to managing those borders efficiently and in full compliance with fundamental rights²⁶. One of the components of the European integrated border management border control includes measures to facilitate legitimate border crossings and, where appropriate, measures related to preventing and detecting cross-border crime at external borders, in particular terrorism, migrant smuggling and trafficking in human beings²⁷. In this context, there is an operational need for category 1 staff (*statutory staff*²⁸) of the Frontex

²³ Frontex refers to the European Border and Coast Guard Agency. Regulation (EU) 2019/1896 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 November 2019 on the European Border and Coast Guard and repealing Regulations (EU) No 1052/2013 and (EU) 2016/1624 (OJ L 295, 14.11.2019, p. 1–131).

²⁵ Article 3 of the 2009 Memorandum of Understanding as mentioned in Article 4(1) of the 2001 Agreement between Interpol and Europol foresees that the Liaison Officer to the other party is responsible for facilitating the practical exchange of information.

²⁶ Article 1 of Regulation (EU) 2019/1896.

²⁷ Article 3(1)(a) of Regulation (EU) 2019/1896.

²⁸ According to Article 54 of Regulation (EU) 2019/1896, the European Border and Coast Guard standing corps must be composed of four categories of operational staff. Category 1 includes statutory staff deployed as members of the teams in operational areas in accordance with Article 55 of this Regulation. The Agency must contribute members of its statutory staff (category 1) to the standing corps to be deployed in operational areas as members of the teams with the tasks and powers provided for in Article 82 of this Regulation. Their tasks include countering cross-border crime and terrorism.

standing corps to access Interpol databases to perform their tasks. More specifically, Article 82(1) of Regulation (EU) 2019/1896 provides that the members of category 1 teams must have the authority to perform tasks and exercise powers for border control²⁹ provided for in Regulation (EU) 2016/399³⁰ (Schengen Borders Code). This includes checking third-country nationals against Interpol databases (in particular the Stolen and Lost Travel Documents database) at the external borders, under Article 8(3), subparagraph (a), point (i)³¹, 8(3), subparagraph (a), point (ii)³² and 6(1), point (e)³³ of the Schengen Borders Code. This will help prevent and investigate terrorist offences, especially in border checks at the external EU borders.

Eurojust

The Agency has an essential operational need to step up cooperation with Interpol³⁴ and acquire the legal basis to exchange personal data in order to perform its tasks³⁵. More specifically, there is a need for structured and structural involvement of Interpol in Eurojust cases, including coordination meetings, coordination centres and joint investigation teams³⁶. Especially when Eurojust's support is sought to coordinate the implementation of judicial measures and individuals have to be arrested in third countries, the involvement of Interpol would bring added value, speed up the judicial process and facilitate the work of Eurojust³⁷.

³² The above check includes verifying that the travel document is accompanied, where applicable, by the requisite visa or residence permit.

³³ The entry conditions of the third-country nationals include that they are not considered to be a threat to public policy, internal security, public health or the international relations of any of the Member States, in particular where no alert has been issued in Member States' national databases for the purposes of refusing entry on the same grounds.

³⁵ Under Article 2(1), (3) of Regulation (EU) 2018/1727, Eurojust must support and strengthen coordination and cooperation between national investigating and prosecuting authorities in relation to serious crime which Eurojust is competent to deal with, where that crime affects two or more Member States, or requires prosecution on common bases, on the basis of operations conducted and information supplied by the Member States' authorities, by Europol, by the EPPO and by OLAF. Eurojust must carry out its tasks at the request of the competent authorities of the Member States, on its own initiative or at the request of the EPPO, within the scope of the EPPO's competence.

There is also a need for Eurojust to exchange information with Interpol on suspected foreign terrorist fighters³⁸, in particular taking into account the Counter Terrorism Register³⁹ at Eurojust. Interpol channels are already used to transmit extradition requests⁴⁰ and may soon be available for transmitting requests for mutual legal assistance⁴¹.

EPPO

The EPPO is an independent EU body responsible for investigating, prosecuting and bringing to judgment the perpetrators of, and accomplices to, criminal offences affecting the financial interests of the EU. It has the authority to undertake investigations, implement prosecution orders and exercise the functions of prosecutor in the competent courts of the Member States. In this context, the operational needs of the EPPO in terms of cooperation with Interpol are the same as those of any national investigatory and prosecutorial authorities in the Member States, which includes access to information held in Interpol databases⁴² and exchanging information with Interpol and third countries via Interpol. This need has become even greater, given the cross-border nature of crimes for which the EPPO is competent and the need to cooperate with third countries. Moreover, the EPPO is expected to require the assistance of Interpol to facilitate information exchange, especially in relation to mutual legal assistance. Cooperation between the EPPO and Interpol has yet to be set up and regulated, in line with the provisions of EPPO's mandate on cooperation with international organisations, in so far as necessary for it to carry out its tasks⁴³.

The need for a cooperation agreement is also recognised and confirmed by Interpol and its members. The 88th Interpol General Assembly adopted in October 2019 Resolution 5, authorising Interpol's General Secretariat to enter into negotiations with the EU to conclude a cooperation agreement.

Other forms of cooperation

In parallel, there is a need to cover other forms of cooperation with Interpol, which the Commission in cooperation with the High Representative for CFSP aspects will aim to maintain, on behalf of the EU, as part of a separate instrument with Interpol, based on Article 220 TFEU. This cooperation will be in line with Article 220(2) TFEU in terms of outlining the overall cooperation framework and setting up a framework for structured dialogue at senior and technical level, between the EU and Interpol. This cooperation will also provide the security services of the Commission, the European External Action Service, the Council and Parliament access to specific Interpol databases for background security checks, inquiries and internal investigations on third-country nationals, and authorising the Commission to enter and to issue controlled notifications of lost, stolen and revoked EU laissez-passers in Interpol's Stolen and Lost Travel Documents database.

2. THE ENVISAGED COOPERATION AGREEMENT

The envisaged EU-Interpol cooperation agreement will pursue the following aims.

- Regulate cooperation between Europol and Interpol, taking into account the latest developments in combating terrorism, cross-border and transnational serious, organised crime, the current operational needs, Europol's mandate, and the EU's latest data protection regime.
- Provide the safeguards and guarantees needed to give controlled access to Interpol's Stolen and Lost Travel Document (SLTD) and Travel Document Associated With Notices (TDAWN) databases via the European Search Portal, by EU Member States and EU agencies, as necessary to carry out their tasks, in line with their access rights, with EU or national law covering such access and in full compliance with EU data protection requirements and with fundamental rights.
- Provide the necessary safeguards and guarantees to enable EU Member States and Frontex (its European Travel Information and Authorisation System Central Unit) to access Interpol databases via the European Search Portal in compliance with EU data protection requirements and with fundamental rights.
- Provide the necessary safeguards and guarantees to implement a revised Visa Information System Regulation enabling EU Member States to access Interpol Stolen and Lost Travel Documents (SLTD) and the Travel Documents Associated with Notices (TDAWN) databases through the European Search Portal when examining applications for visas or residence permits, in full compliance with EU data protection requirements and with fundamental rights.
- Set up and regulate cooperation between the European Public Prosecutor's Office ('the EPPO'), as established by Regulation (EU) 2017/1939 and Interpol, in line with concluded pursuant to Article 218 TFEU, appropriate safeguards for the protection of privacy and the fundamental rights and freedoms of individuals should ensure that the data protection provisions of this Regulation are complied with.'

their mandates, and in full compliance with EU data protection requirements and with fundamental rights.

- Provide the legal basis to authorise Europol, Frontex category 1 staff (statutory staff of the standing corps) and EPPO to access relevant Interpol databases⁴⁴ to carry out their tasks, in full compliance with EU data protection requirements and with fundamental rights.
- Provide the legal basis to authorise Eurojust and EPPO to exchange operational information with Interpol, in full compliance with EU data protection requirements and with fundamental rights.

All the aims listed above must fully comply with the EU data protection regime⁴⁵.

3. EU COMPETENCE

Article 3(2) TFEU provides that the EU has exclusive competence “for the conclusion of an international agreement ... in so far as its conclusion may affect common rules or alter their scope.” An international agreement may affect common rules or alter their scope where the area covered by the agreement overlaps with EU legislation or is covered to a large extent by EU law. The European Union has adopted common rules based on Articles 16, 77, 79, 85, 86, 87(1),(2) and 88 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union on the aspects to cover in the cooperation agreement.
