“The recovery plan turns the immense challenge we face into an opportunity, not only by supporting the recovery but also by investing in our future: the European Green Deal and digitalisation will boost jobs and growth, the resilience of our societies and the health of our environment. This is Europe’s moment. Our willingness to act must live up to the challenges we are all facing. With Next Generation EU we are providing an ambitious answer”

President Ursula von der Leyen

1 Investment as policy response

Building on the considerable progress that has already been made in the European Parliament and the Council, the Commission now proposes to deploy a reinforced EU budget to help repair the immediate economic and social damage brought by the coronavirus pandemic, kickstart the recovery and prepare for a better future for the next generation.

To mobilise the necessary investments, the Commission is putting forward a two-fold response:

- Next Generation EU to boost the EU budget with new financing raised on the financial markets for 2021-2024
- Reinforced long-term budget of the European Union for 2021-2027

Next Generation EU of €750 billion as well as targeted reinforcements to the long-term EU budget for 2021-2027 will bring the total financial firepower of the EU budget to €1.85 trillion.

Together with the three important safety nets for workers, businesses and sovereigns endorsed by the European Council on 23 April 2020 and amounting to a package worth €540 billion, these exceptional measures taken at the EU level would reach more €1.290 trillion.

A Budget for Europe’s future

The EU response to the coronavirus crisis will be spread between now and 2027, concentrated in the first crucial years of recovery. To ensure an effective response, which reaches out to everybody in the EU and to our global partners, the Commission is mobilising a variety of instruments.

Next Generation EU will be rolled out under three pillars:

- Supporting Member States to recover
  - Recovery and Resilience Facility
  - Recovery Assistance for Cohesion and the Territories of Europe – REACT-EU
  - Reinforced rural development programmes
  - Reinforced Just Transition Mechanism

  Within European Semester framework
  - Supporting investments and reforms
  - Supporting a just transition

- Kick-starting the economy and helping private investment
  - Solvency Support Instrument
  - Strategic Investment Facility
  - Strengthened InvestEU programme

  - Supporting key sectors and technologies
  - Investing in key value chains
  - Solvency support for viable companies

- Learning the lessons from the crisis
  - New Health programme
  - Reinforced rescEU
  - Reinforced programmes for research, innovation and external action

  - Supporting key programmes for future crises
  - Supporting global partners

Supporting Member States to recover, repair and emerge stronger from the crisis

Public investment has a vital role to play in a balanced and sustainable recovery. The bulk of the funding from Next Generation EU (more than 80%) will therefore be used to support public investment and key structural reforms in the Member States, concentrated where the crisis impact and resilience needs are greatest.

The Recovery and Resilience Facility together with cohesion policy and the Just Transition Mechanism will be instrumental in achieving these important goals. Their delivery will be embedded in the European Semester. In addition, the reinforced European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development will support rural areas in making the structural changes necessary in line with the European Green Deal.
Kick-starting the economy and mobilising private investment

Urgent action is needed to kick-start the economy and create the conditions for a recovery led by private investment in key sectors and technologies. This investment is particularly crucial to the success of Europe’s green and digital transitions. The Commission estimates that investment needs amount to at least €1.5 trillion in 2020-2021. Investment in key sectors and technologies, from 5G to artificial intelligence and from clean hydrogen to offshore renewable energy, holds the key to Europe’s future.

Healthy companies are a prerequisite for success in this investment drive, yet hundreds of thousands of companies are likely to come under severe financing pressure by the end of the year. The Commission is therefore proposing a new Solvency Support Instrument to provide urgent equity support to sound companies put at risk by the crisis. This will help them weather the storm and support their green and digital transformation. This instrument should become operational still this year.

The Commission is also proposing to strengthen InvestEU, Europe’s flagship investment programme, to mobilise investment across the Union in areas such as sustainable infrastructure and digitisation. As part of this, the Commission proposes to create a new Strategic Investment Facility to invest in key value chains crucial for Europe’s future resilience and strategic autonomy in the context of the green and digital transitions.

Learning the lessons of the crisis and addressing Europe’s strategic challenges

The crisis has both underlined the value of European cooperation and demonstrated vividly that the Union must urgently build up its capacity to respond to crises and build resilience to future shocks.

The Commission is proposing a new Health Programme to strengthen health security and prepare for future health crises. RescEU, the Union’s Civil Protection Mechanism, will be expanded and reinforced to equip the Union to prepare for and respond to future crises. Horizon Europe will be reinforced to fund vital research in health, resilience and the green and digital transitions. The EU will support its global partners through an additional €16.5 billion for external action, including humanitarian aid. Other EU programmes will be strengthened to align the future financial framework fully with recovery needs. These include the Common Agricultural Policy and the European Maritime and Fisheries Fund, to strengthen the resilience of the agri-food and fisheries sectors and to provide the necessary scope for crisis management.

More flexible emergency tools

Beyond the individual programmes, the crisis has underlined how important it is that the Union is able to react fast and flexibly to put in place a coordinated European response. This in turn requires a more flexible EU budget. Therefore, the Commission proposes to reinforce the flexibility of the EU budget and emergency tools for the period 2021-2027.
Together, these instruments would provide for a maximum of €21 billion additional emergency financing over the 2021-2027 period compared to the Commission’s proposals of 2 May 2018.

Financing the policy response

The bulk of the proposed recovery measures will be powered by a Next Generation EU with financial firepower of €750 billion. The instrument will be exceptional and temporary. The financing will be made possible by the Own Resources Decision, which will allow the Commission to exceptionally borrow up to €750 billion on behalf of the Union, through the issuance of bonds, for measures over the period 2021-2024.

The Commission will then direct the funds in pursuit of EU priorities to the specific and new financing needs that have been revealed by the crisis through grants and loans.

In this way, the Union will provide a forceful support to its Member States without putting additional pressure on their national budgets at the time when they are most strained.

To facilitate the repayment of the market finance raised and further help reduce the pressure on national budgets, the Commission will propose additional new own resources on top of those proposed in 2018 at a later stage of the financial period.
There is no time to lose

Agreement on an ambitious recovery plan with the EU budget at its heart will give the Union the best possible chance of success. It is essential to help Member States and businesses address the immediate challenges brought by the Coronavirus crisis as well as to ensure durable growth and convergence in the longer term.

The European Commission invites the European Council and the co-legislators to examine these proposals rapidly with a view to reaching a political agreement at the level of the European Council by July.

The Commission will then work closely with the European Parliament and the Council to finalise an agreement on the future framework and the accompanying sectoral programmes. Completing this work in the early autumn would mean that the new long-term budget could be up and running, and driving Europe’s recovery on 1 January 2021.
