Selected publications on demography and migration

In the framework of the European Year for Development

© European Union, 2015

Library and e-Resources Centre
September 2015
About the selection

The world’s population reached 7 billion in 2013 and experts predict that there will be 9.7 billion people on the planet by 2050; 7.8 billion of them in underdeveloped countries. As of 2014, over half of the world’s populations live in cities. Over half of the world’s 232 million or so migrants are in low or middle-income countries. Most are forced into migration by disaster and economic hardship, and around 60 million refugees and internally displaced people worldwide had no choice but to leave. Migrants can make a vibrant and productive contribution to society, yet all too often they are left unaided, vulnerable and invisible, prone to exploitation and human trafficking. In our interdependent world, international action and cooperation is vital if we are to uphold migrants’ rights. (Source: https://europa.eu/eyd2015)

The books and articles listed below come from the collection and e-collection of the Library and e-Resources Centre. Access may be restricted to Commission staff or to users at subscribing institutions.

Symbols

@ e-book or an electronic article  📖 book (paper version)  📃 article (paper version)

Demography and migration in developing countries

Indian skilled migration and development: to Europe and back / edited by Gabriela Tejada ... [et al.]. New Delhi, Springer, 2014. -- 341 p.

Demography and migration in Europe

Regional migration report: Eastern Europe / Anna Bara ... [et al.]. Florence: European University Institute, 2013. -- 478 p.

This selection of resources was compiled by the Library and e-Resources Centre of the European Commission for information purposes only. Any linked content is the sole responsibility of its author. Publications linked from this review do not represent the positions, policies, or opinions of the European Commission.