EU - WESTERN BALKANS MEDIA DAYS
TIRANA, 9 - 10 NOVEMBER 2017
#EUWBmedia
CONFERENCE BROCHURE
Freedom of expression is one of the very foundations on which the European Union is built and strong, independent press is fundamental to successful societies everywhere. In today’s world, media are playing a key role in creating and shaping public opinion and strengthening societal resilience. Independent media and professional journalism are crucial for retaining and enhancing the critical thinking of citizens.

This is why ensuring freedom of expression and media is one of the political criteria for EU accession – a must for countries willing to join the EU. The endeavours of EU candidate countries and potential candidates towards this goal take place against the backdrop of a rapid and far-reaching transformation of the media landscape and significant shifts in media consumption patterns. While opening up new opportunities for sharing information, this changing media environment brings in also certain risks: from a decline in professional standards and a loss of trust in authenticity of sources and news reports, to ever increasing economic pressures undermining the business viability of traditional media.

EU – Western Balkans Media Days will address these challenges. While building on previous Speak Up! Conferences, the Media Days will broaden the spectrum of reflection to cover also the economic sustainability of the media sector, in particular new business models, distortion of competition, advertising markets and transparent financing. This holistic approach aims to create better conditions to guarantee the freedom of expression and a more vibrant and viable media landscape in the region.

I look forward to good discussions with media professionals and stakeholders both from the region and the international community. I am confident the Media Days will result in concrete, innovative ideas to strengthen independent, sustainable and professional journalism in the Western Balkans.

WORKSHOPS

WORKSHOP 1: MEDIA & MARKET: NEW BUSINESS MODELS

Today’s media sector is very dynamic and innovative, coming up with new products and services, developing new business models and adapting to new media consumption patterns in order to remain competitive. Audience engagement, content monetisation, sustainable economic models and diversification of funding, including decreased dependency on distorted advertisement markets or state funding, are some of the main challenges that have to be faced. The discussion will explore ways to tackle these challenges and share examples of best practices.

Topics for discussion:
• How to be competitive in the tectonically changed media landscape?
• How to tap into new revenue-generating opportunities?
• New business models to lend sustainability to professional journalism and editorial independence

Moderator: David QUIN, Director of Development, Thomson Foundation
Rapporteur: Leila BICAKCIC, Executive Director, Center for Investigative Journalism
Saska CVETKOVSKA, Investigative Editor, Nova TV
Dalila LJUBICIC, Executive Director, Serbia Media Association
Dejan NIKOLIC, Founder, Content Insights
Grzegorz PIECHOTA, Senior Research Fellow, University of Oxford, Reuters Institute for the Study of Journalism

WORKSHOP 2: MEDIA IN THE DIGITAL AGE: PROFESSIONALS MASTERING THE CHANGE

The digital age brought major market disruptions but also new opportunities for the media professionals. Traditional and new media are quickly converging into a larger, predominantly-digital media environment. As technology tools continue to develop, professionals need to adapt business models and respond to users’ behaviour change while maintaining qualitative and trustworthy content. That implies equipping journalists with new skills and new knowledge allowing them to get closer to audiences and offer them a product they are ready to pay for. The workshop will explore these challenges and put forward innovative ideas to address them.

Topics for discussion:
• How to combine traditional and new media?
• How to develop “digital competence”, both among media professionals and media consumers?
• Opportunities to get closer and interact with audiences, and monetise these assets.

Moderator: Michelle FOSTER, Partner, Media Development, Newsgain
Rapporteur: Besa LUCI, Editor in Chief, Kosovo 2.0
Slobodan GEORGIEV, Editor, Balkan Investigative Reporting Network
Borjan JOVANOVSKI, Editor in Chief, Nova TV
Agon MALIQI, Creator and Co-founding Editor, Sbunker
Ardian VEBIU, Founder and Editor, Peizahe te fjale

WORKSHOP 3: PROFESSIONAL QUALITY: NEW MEDIA TRAINING NEEDS

The media landscape is changing rapidly and brings significant shifts in media consumption patterns towards digital and social media. This opens new opportunities, but also poses challenges such as the decline of professional standards in traditional mainstream media and their subsequent tabloidisation. As a result, audiences lose interest and trust in the traditional media and tend to migrate to new media channels, notably to social media, where norms of professional reporting are often a foreign concept. Such developments put in jeopardy the entirety of media output - the organisational structures, workflows and working conditions of contemporary journalists. Consequently, the journalist education and continuing training come to the fore as an instrument to cope with change. The workshop will provide a forum to exchange innovative ideas on how to enhance critical thinking in the media environment and develop professional skills necessary for quality news and story production in the modern times.

Topics for discussion:
• Quality is never black & white: quality standards, training of journalists;
• Reflecting or creating reality: media in the age of fake news and post truth;
• Quality and responsibility and free expression: what does “quality” mean and how can polarisation be overcome?
• The role of journalist self-regulation in protecting the profession in the new media environment.

Moderator: Adelheid WÖLFL, Correspondent, Standard
Rapporteur: Gordana IGRIC, Regional Network Director, Balkan Investigative Reporting Network
Vukosava CRNJANSKI SABOVIC, Director, CRA - Centre for Research, Transparency and Accountability
Biljana PETKOVSKA, Director, Media Institute, SEE Network for Media Professionalisation
Paula PETRICIJEVIC, Ombudswoman, Vijesti, Monitor
Blendi SALAJ, Vice Chairman, Media Council
Erissa ZYKAJ, Member of the Council, International Press Association / Vice-President, Brussels Press Club
WORKSHOP 4: MEDIA FREEDOM IN SOCIETIES IN TRANSITION

Media freedom is an essential pillar of a functioning democratic society and belongs to the political criteria for the EU accession. Media both in the EU and in the enlargement region face major challenges influencing their ability to operate professionally. In the Western Balkans these hardships are often amplified by political pressure, misuse of economic and financial leverage to influence media reporting, attacks against journalists, restrictive legislation and courts ruling not in full compliant with the European Human Rights Convention. Obscure media ownership often undermines the credibility of information necessary for a vibrant democracy - limiting the space for independent journalism and fostering self-censorship. The workshop will explore these challenges and share best practices and ideas on how to address the issues at stake.

Topics for discussion:
- Leverage used to curb freedom of expression in the Western Balkans and possible remedies;
- Current court practices in cases involving journalists and media outlets - the issue of "selective justice";
- Factors leading to self-censorship;
- Strong journalist professional organisations – an actor for expected change.

Moderator: Mogens BJERREGÅRD, President, European Federation of Journalism
Rapporteur: Mihailo JOVOVIĆ, Editor-in-Chief, Vijesti
Flutura KUSARI, Media Lawyer
Borka RUDIĆ, Secretary General, Journalist Association of Bosnia and Herzegovina
Tamara SKROZZA, Journalist, Member of Press Complaints Commission, Vreme weekly and Press Council
Christian SPAHR, Director of Media Program South East Europe, Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung

WORKSHOP 5: WORDS THAT HURT: MEDIA AND RECONCILIATION

The Western Balkans is the region where many journalists tend to adopt partisan positions. The contradictions and polarisation within and among the countries in the region are exacerbated by low quality journalism using cheap but striking sensationalism and ethnic nationalism to attract the attention of the audience. Quality reporting and storytelling are instrumental in dismissing grounds for animosity, which often exist only in newswires. Media professionals have a key role to play in the process of reconciliation within the region and their respective countries and can significantly contribute to shaping a non-polarised society by promoting objective reporting and opposing inflammatory rhetoric and sensationalism, which perpetuate stereotypes and old sentiments.

Topics for discussion:
- Ways to promote ethical journalism in the region;
- Is professional solidarity an answer to the polarisation in the region and within the countries?;
- Measures to commit media outlets to quality reporting;
- Public demand for quality media production: how to encourage it?

Moderator: Aidan WHITE, Director, Ethical Journalism Network
Rapporteur: Isak VORGUČIĆ, Director, RTV KiM
Agron BAJRAMI, Editor in Chief, KOHA Ditore Newspaper
Fatjona MEJDINI, Journalist, Balkan Investigative Reporting Network
Vasili POPETRESKI, Editor, Alsat M TV
Nedim SEJDINOVIĆ, President, Independent Association of Vojvodina Journalists

WORKSHOP 6: MEDIA POLICY: IMPLEMENTATION OF REFORMS

Media legislation in the Western Balkans is fairly up-to-date and aligned with the European standards. Yet, poor implementation of existing rules leads to a media environment which is not conducive to the full exercise of media freedom. In this context, the actions and the independence of the regulatory bodies deserve close attention. More effort is still needed to accelerate the stagnating reforms of public broadcasters and to ensure their independence and efficiency in news and story production. At the same time, a proactive role of professional organisations is critical for a continued and productive media policy dialogue with public authorities. Both elements are vital to the improvement of the media climate in the long term. The workshop will provide a forum to discuss the issues at stake and propose ideas how to best tackle them.

Topics for discussion:
- The stumbling blocks in the public broadcasters’ reform: how to make public media content available and attractive?;
- Transparency of the media sector as a precondition for formulating effective policy and regulation;
- Is the implementation of the existing laws and rules sufficient to improve media freedom or is additional regulation necessary?;
- Conditions for an effective policy dialogue between media professionals’ organisations and the authorities.

CULTURAL EVENING

A cultural evening inside the atomic bunker of Albania’s communist regime, with the performance of Albanian pianist and composer Robert Bisha

The performance will take place in BUNK’ART 1, a museum opened in 2014 and situated inside the atomic bunker of the ex-dictator Enver Hoxha, on the outskirts of Tirana. The museum tells the history of the Albanian communist regime and of the hardship of daily life during that period. BUNK’ART 1 is not merely the conversion of a massive bunker meant for Albania’s communist elite into a history and contemporary art museum, it also contributes to Albania’s dealing with its painful past.

Robert Bisha is an Albanian pianist, improviser and contemporary composer. Born in Shkodra, where he received his initial musical education, he was already playing his own compositions in the Albanian classical scene by the age of 12. Bisha later moved to Italy where he studied at the Girolamo Frescobaldi conservatory in Ferrara and developed a special interest in folkloristic musical studies. Robert Bisha also composes music for documentaries and movies, employing the language of folk, jazz, and contemporary European music.
