1

Youth participation as youth voice and involvement decision making^{12 13}

This involves young people expressing their views in order to influence or be involved in decision-making processes. This can refer to a range of different decision-making processes, from governmental political or policy decisions, to how a community space is used, to the running of a youth organisation.

2

Youth participation as civic action and youth activism¹⁴

This involves young people taking individual and/or collective action with the intention of making a change to the world around them. This can mean taking political actions such as organising or being involved in protests, as well social and civic activity such as community improvement initiatives at local level or volunteering for a cause or civil society organisation.
