SPECIFICATIONS

1. TITLE OF THE CONTRACT

Evaluation of the achievements of Cohesion Policy programmes and projects over the longer term in 15 selected regions (from 1989-1993 programming period to the present).

2. OVERALL PURPOSE AND CONTEXT OF THIS EVALUATION

Since 1989\(^2\) EU action through the Structural Funds under Article 175 of the TFEU\(^3\) (ex Article 159 TEC) has supported the achievement of the general objectives set out in Article 174\(^4\) (ex Article 158 TEC). In particular, the role of the Structural Funds, first under Objective 1, then under the Convergence objective, has been to promote growth-enhancing conditions and factors leading to real convergence for the least-developed Member States and regions. Under Objective 2, the role of the Structural Funds was from 1989 to 2006 to support the economic and social conversion of areas facing structural difficulties. For the programming period 2007-2013 Objective 2 has become the Regional Competitiveness and Employment Objective, aiming to strengthen regions’ competitiveness and attractiveness. In pursuing all these objectives, the Union has aimed to contribute to the harmonious, balanced and sustainable development of economic activities, the development of employment and human resources, the protection and improvement of the environment, the elimination of inequalities and the promotion of equality between men and women.

As laid down in the respective regulations\(^5\), these objectives shall be pursued in the framework of a multiannual programming system organised in several stages comprising the identification of priorities, the financing, and a system of management and control. In order to ensure that programmes contribute effectively to the objectives set out in Article 175 they are monitored and evaluated. In particular to gauge their effectiveness Structural Funds programmes are the subject of ex-ante, on-going and ex-post evaluation.

In addition to the action taken through the Structural Funds, the Cohesion Fund has provided financial contributions\(^6\) to projects in the fields of the environment and trans-

\(^3\) Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union.

\(^4\) Article 174: “In order to promote its overall harmonious development, the Union shall develop and pursue its actions leading to the strengthening of its economic, social and territorial cohesion. In particular, the Union shall aim at reducing disparities between the levels of development of the various regions and the backwardness of the least favoured regions...”.

\(^6\) Only in cohesion countries: Greece, Spain, Ireland and Portugal.
European transport infrastructure networks since 1994\(^7\). According to its regulation, the Cohesion Fund shall contribute as well as the Structural Funds to the strengthening of the economic and social cohesion.

Specific context of this contract

After more than 20 years of implementation (for the EU15) of this reformed cohesion policy some concern has been raised about the effectiveness of the policy and academic studies reach widely differing conclusions\(^8\). In the public discourse on cohesion policy, the focus on results, effectiveness and performance has grown significantly in recent years. For instance the Fifth report on Economic, Social and Territorial Cohesion\(^9\) asks for a stronger focus on performance with the aim of making the policy more results-oriented and ensuring maximum value for money. This study aims to feed this debate with empirical evidence on what has actually happened on the ground in cohesion policy over successive programming periods.

Since economic and social development in each region is the result not only of cohesion policy but also national policies and national and international contexts, cohesion policy by itself cannot fully explain regional success or failure. Nevertheless, it seems worthwhile to explore Structural Funds programme effects and when relevant those of Cohesion Fund projects in order to examine their contribution and critical success factors. While some research has been undertaken on specific programme effects in a given period, little has been done on their effects over successive programming periods. This kind of evaluation could shed some light on some issues that more traditional evaluations cannot address. For instance, an evaluation of effects through several programming periods should make it possible to capture some medium and long term effects which may not be perceived in one period and overcome the often cited criticism that ex post evaluations are undertaken too early. At the same time it could take into account the potential cumulative effect of successive Structural Funds programmes implemented in a region. For Convergence regions these could be not only regional programmes but also national/pluriregional programmes over several programming periods. This could lead to a more thorough assessment of Structural Funds achievements in the region. In addition in the cohesion countries achievements from relevant Cohesion Fund projects should also be taken into account.

Assessing the “achievement of objectives” is not straightforward. There are different kinds of objectives which are not always clearly articulated in programming documents. Specific objectives may concern the results of an intervention relative to direct beneficiaries. A global objective may correspond to the aim of the intervention. Objectives may also be intermediate. Objectives which specify outputs to be produced are sometimes called operational objectives. As far as these objectives are stated in the form of quantified targets, programme effectiveness could be evaluated simply by comparing what has been obtained with what had been planned. Even this task may not be so simple, however, as it depends crucially on the targets having been appropriately set. A further challenge is presented when objectives are of a qualitative nature and are stated in the form of descriptors.

When effectiveness is hard to assess because objectives are poorly defined or when there are many unexpected effects, an alternative or complementary way of assessing programme performance is to assess its utility. In this way programme achievements are compared against society's needs and to the socio-economic problems to be solved. Thus evaluation examines the contribution to meeting the needs and to solving problems rather than what the programme planned to do.

3. SUBJECT OF CONTRACT

- Subject: to evaluate the main achievements of cohesion policy programmes and projects and their effectiveness and utility over the longer term in 15 selected regions from 1989 (1991 in the case of Eastern Germany) up to the present.

- Scope: All programmes financed totally or partially by the ERDF and when relevant projects financed by the Cohesion Fund implemented in 15 selected regions (currently Convergence Objective or Competitiveness Objective regions) from 1989 (1991 in the case of Eastern Germany, 1994 for Cohesion Fund projects) until now. Programmes of the current programming period 2007-2013 are not excluded from the analysis, but tenderers should be aware of the relatively low rate of expenditure to date and, consequently, achievements. For each programming period in each region this scope covers not only an ERDF regional programme but also any ERDF national programme implemented in the region as well as, for Cohesion Countries, relevant Cohesion Fund projects.

The regional level of analysis will be NUTS except in federal countries where the level of analysis could be NUTS 1.

- Structure: This evaluation is structured around three main evaluation questions about the assessment of the relevance, effectiveness and utility of the programmes. Each of these main evaluation questions embraces a number of research or second level evaluation questions. In order to answer all these questions three tasks must be carried out: to develop a theoretical and methodological approach to be used in the following tasks; to carry out 15 regional case studies to analyse programme achievements; and

10 Tenderers should be aware that in the past programmes have also incorporated other Structural Funds (the European Social Fund, the European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Fund and the Financial Instrument for Fisheries Guidance). In analysing effects, these funds may make a contribution as well other developments in the programme environment.

12 For example when some parts of a transport or environmental infrastructure are financed by ERDF while others are financed by Cohesion Fund.

to carry out a cross case analysis, drawing conclusions on the effectiveness of cohesion policy and reflecting on implications for future policy.

3.1. TASKS

The objective of the evaluation gives rise to a number of tasks to be undertaken by the contractor. The core tasks which must be undertaken are listed below. The tender documentation should describe how these tasks will be carried out so that the evaluation questions are answered.

Task 1: To develop a theoretical and methodological approach to be used in the following tasks. This requires:

- To review and to take stock of existing literature on measuring programme performance: achievements, expected and unexpected effects of Structural Funds programmes in the short, medium and long term;

- To develop a method to evaluate achievements from several programmes (which could in the case of Convergence regions involve ERDF regional and national programmes as well as some Cohesion Fund projects) in order to have a comprehensive view of all ERDF interventions and when relevant Cohesion Fund;

Task 2: To carry out 15 regional case studies. This is the core task of this evaluation. In order to enable the Commission services to decide the definitive list of case studies the contractor will draw up a final proposal of 15 regional case studies. Two pilot case studies will be carried out and will be reviewed before proceeding to the remaining 13 cases. The case studies will include:

Subtask 2.1: Context analysis and regional features: To present the regional socio-economic structure in its national socio-economic context.

Subtask 2.2: Programme analysis. To identify and to analyse:

- Regional needs and problems over time;
• Programme strategies: priorities, goals, objectives, and targets;
• Financial intended and actual allocations broken down by programme priority;

Subtask 2.3: Achievements. To collect data and analyse effects observed, taking account also of opinions of managers, operators and stakeholders on:
• Reported direct achievements of programme priorities;
• Other direct but not reported achievements;
• Unexpected effects;
• Complementarities and synergies of ERDF interventions with ESF, EAGGF Guarantee Section and Guidance Section until 2006 and for 2007-2013 programing period EAFRD; and FIFG interventions where relevant in the region and with domestic regional policy interventions.

Subtask 2.4: Assessing achievements against objectives and needs.
• To assess to what extent programme achievements met the objectives and needs;
• To identify the key elements explaining programme success or failure in meeting objectives and needs;
• To evaluate the extent to which the observed changes in regional needs and problems can be imputed to ERDF programmes over time.

Task 3: To analyse programme achievements across all selected regions and, as far as it is sound and meaningful, to conclude on their effectiveness and utility:
• Based on the 15 case studies, to compare and to analyse the achievements of ERDF programmes over time, identifying critical success factors or significant weaknesses;
• To make suggestions which could improve programme design, implementation, results based management and achievements.

3.2. METHODOLOGY

The study will require a specific methodological approach, which the tenderer should explain in the tender documentation. A combination of methodologies will be used in the study. This combination of different research methods should enable a methodological and data triangulation to strengthen the credibility of the evaluation findings. For each task, the tenderer should clearly identify the methods they plan to use. The tender documents should cite the relevant literature linked to the methods for each of the tasks and subtask, in order to demonstrate in each case that the method proposed is in line with the state of the art. The methodology will be refined by the contractor in the light of the results of task 1 and the two pilot case studies.

The methodology should include:
• Documentary review and desk research;
• Sourcing and analysing administrative data. This should include analysis of data quality and reliability. Tenders should explicitly address how they will fill inevitable gaps in data availability from earlier programme periods;

• Surveys of operators and addressees about the contribution of ERDF programmes to the most significant regional changes. The tender documents should discuss feasibility and methodological issues in this regard;

• Focus groups or group discussions: to collect information and points of view and to shape and to refine them through the interaction of groups of experts (such as academics), policy makers, stakeholders, operators or beneficiaries, to shape and to refine assessments of the cohesion policy programme and projects' contribution to regional development; to check hypotheses and analyses with groups of stakeholders, operators and beneficiaries; to prompt and validate various suggestions and recommendations; At least one focus group\textsuperscript{18} must be held in each region to debate the regional case study draft final report. The Commission services reserve the right to participate at their own costs in these workshops;

• Semi-structured or in-depth interviews with programme managers, intermediate bodies and enterprises; and

• Other methodological approaches as appropriate (to be specified in the tender documentation).

3.3. PROPOSAL OF 15 REGIONAL CASE STUDIES

A tentative list of regions is displayed in appendix I. The tender documentation should propose the 15 for evaluation on the basis of the tentative list and under the criteria of:

• To select around 6 regions “A Regions” (Regions that were Objective 1 from 1989 onwards -1991 in the case of Eastern Germany - and which are currently Convergence Objective);

• To select around 6 regions “B Regions” (Regions that were Objective 1 or Objective 6 at least in one programming period but which are currently Convergence Phasing Out Objective, Competitiveness Phasing In or Competitiveness Objective);

• To select around 3 regions “C Regions” (Regions that had some areas eligible for Objective 2 from 1989 onwards - 1991 in the case of Eastern Germany - and which are currently Competitiveness Objective).

The tender will give reasons for the proposal. The definitive list will be decided by the Commission services with the successful tenderer after the signature of the contract taking due account of the proposal made in the tender.

\textsuperscript{18}  Web focus group as well as any other kind of virtual focus group will not be accepted.
3.4. Time Schedule

The duration of the contract is eighteen months starting from its signature. The deliverables and their timing are specified below.

The Commission will provide details for the layout of the reports.

The evaluator will provide presentation material for each of the reports in English (PowerPoint or equivalent application compatible with MS Office) for the use of Commission services.

All reports will be delivered in English. Tenderers should note that a high standard of written English and capacity for clear and concise expression of complex ideas is required in all deliverables. An executive summary of the final report specified above will be delivered in English, French and German.

The contractor should make provisions for the presentation of the results of the evaluation to the Member States and the Commission services (three meetings in Brussels).
The quality of the evaluation will be assessed by the Commission services using the quality criteria from the Guide to the Evaluation of Socio-Economic Development. These can be found in Part 2 of that Guide at http://ec.europa.eu/regional_policy/sources/docgener/evaluation/evalsed/index_en.htm.

The assessment of the quality will be published by the Commission.

3.6. ORGANISATION OF THE STUDY

There will be a single contract with the Directorate General for Regional Policy for this evaluation.

As part of the tender documentation, the evaluator should identify the members of the core team (experts responsible for tasks such as: horizontal tasks, support and coordination tasks of regional teams, report editing tasks, quality assurance tasks) and the members of each regional team to be involved (experts responsible mainly for carrying out task 2 in each region, with some flexibility in this depending on the regions finally selected). In this regard, the importance of effective planning and quality assurance of all deliverables is essential and this should be reflected in the days allocated to the core team as well as the regional experts (this is reflected in the award criteria for this contract). Furthermore the intellectual ownership of whole evaluation should be clearly defined and, in particular, the person responsible of the quality of the content of each deliverable (including proper editing of the text in terms of its content) should be identified. In addition the tender documentation should describe for each member of the team his/her skills and qualifications and quantify the input in terms of days and explain the distribution of tasks between the different evaluators involved. The tenderer has to prove that the teams have the capacity to work in the different fields and languages needed.

The Directorate General for Regional Policy will establish a steering group representative of the relevant Directorates of the Directorate General as well as other interested Directorates General. The evaluator will provide documentation for and attend six meetings of the steering group. It is anticipated that the meetings will take place in order to discuss the inception report, the interim reports and the final report.

The evaluator in consultation with DG REGIO will identify a maximum of 3 external experts in the fields concerned by the study who will provide additional expert input (written comments on major deliverables and oral comments in meetings) to the study. The evaluator should include in his tender the cost of 3 experts attending 4 meetings in Brussels during the course of the study.

The evaluator will be expected to attend a kick-off meeting plus six progress meetings with the Evaluation Unit of DG REGIO in Brussels reviewing the progress of the study and resolving any problems arising. These meetings will be arranged according to needs arising.

After the two pilot regional studies, the evaluator will organise a workshop with team members responsible for carrying out the remaining regional studies. This workshop will report and discuss the methodological lessons learnt; debate the methods to be used, and ensure horizontal and vertical coordination between, for instance, core team members and regional experts. The Commission will participate in this workshop at its own costs.
The Commission will provide most of the following documentation or access to: Operational Programmes, evaluations and reports (usually available in the language of the Member State concerned only) from 2000 onwards. Many of these documents (in particular those of the early programming periods) will be only available in paper format not electronically. Documentation from earlier programme periods available from the Commission will be patchy and may only be accessible to the evaluator from Member States archives if available at all. Therefore the tender should take due account of the time needed for sourcing this documentation and propose alternative solutions for cases where administrative or monitoring data cannot be sourced.

The Commission draws the attention of tenderers to the costs linked to the collection of primary data. Tenderers should specifically address this aspect in their offers and make practical suggestions.

4. PARTICIPATION IN THE TENDERING PROCEDURE

It is for the tenderer to select an exchange rate and assume the risks or the benefits deriving from any variation.

- The price quoted must include a separate estimate for travel and subsistence expenses. This estimate must be based on the standard Commission rules (published in Inforegio). It must include any travel necessary to meet the contracting authority, and represents, at all events, the maximum amount of travel and subsistence expenses payable for all services under the contract. These expenses must be included in the price quoted.

- The same principle applies to any specific expenditure incurred in the performance of the contract, such as the cost of translating reports into the languages indicated in the specification. These expenses must be included in the price quoted.

- Costs incurred in preparing and submitting tenders are borne by the tenderers and cannot be reimbursed.
