21CPR008	Promoting regional policy locally and with young people	ERDF	2.125.000,00	2.125.000,00	The action will promote EU regional policy projects through local campaigns and cooperation with schools on elementary (6-10 years) and secondary (10 – 14 years) level. By working closely with local schools, the communication actions will reach a broad and diverse audience consisting of teachers, pupils and their families (e.g. by organising dedicated EU-themed school parties for the whole school community). The pupils can serve as multiplier for their peers and families. Local projects benefit from new contacts and stronger links within their region and can attract new audiences for their EU in my regions campaigns. Providing online teaching material and training contributes to the improvement of digital skills of teachers and pupils: The action reaches out to a younger audience, currently under-represented by our communication activities. The results of the competitions and the work of the junior EU-journalists can be shared on various social media profiles (Regio, Reps, MAs).	All	Procurement	Communication and publication

21CPR105-C	Support for synergies between Horizon Europe and S3	REACT-EU	500.000,00	500.000,00	European innovation policy as a whole must place a greater emphasis on promoting innovation in less-developed regions to trigger economic dynamism to increase the competitiveness of the EU as a whole and close the innovation divide. This means improving R&I capacities, addressing territorial inequalities and improving coordination at all levels. Such an approach requires closer coordination of research, cohesion and education policies at EU level. The action should improve information on Horizon Europe results by facilitating their uptake by smart specialisation partnerships in related thematic areas. 21CPR125-C	Contribution to Media Pluralism: EU and cohesion policy course for journalism schools	REACT-EU	1.000.000,00	1.000.000,00	A course on the EU and cohesion policy targeting journalism students would increase the number of journalists specialized in EU affairs, contribute more broadly to informative coverage of EU policies and initiatives, including green investment and local actions. It would also help reduce misinformation regarding the Union and help journalists to better identify fake news and to conduct their fundamental fact-checking mission. The call will complement current efforts by the Commission to support media freedom and pluralism. While existing Commission grants support cooperation and the production of European news, the call for an EU and cohesion policy course for journalism schools will complement these actions by funding quality education in journalism and encouraging collaboration between universities and future journalists across EU countries. It is expected that such collaboration will encourage new media organisations to emerge in the future, thus enriching the media landscape. 21CPR156	EUSAIR 4 Youth	ERDF	0,00	80.000,00	The sport event and the students competition will benefit from coordination with the VII EUSAIR Annual Forum and "Tirana Youth Capital 2022". The action responds to the recommendations of the "Manifesto for Young People by Young People to shape the European Cooperation Policy" and contributes to 2020-2024 REGIO Strategic Plan, in particular with regard to the Commission priority 'A Stronger Europe in the World'. Next year the proposed competition should dare students to speak up on political issues important to them with regard to MRS and EUSAIR in particular. After their pre-selection, the top-five groups will be invited to Tirana Annual Forum, to develop their papers and learn more about EUSAIR. The competition winner will be invited for a study visit in 2022 to EU institutions in Brussels.
