V. POSSIBILITY FOR ANY CATEGORY OF SELF-EMPLOYED PERSONS TO BE COVERED BY AN UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS SYSTEM (ARTICLE 65A(1) OF REGULATION (EC) NO 883/2004) & LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE WHERE APPLICABLE

The legislation of the United Kingdom currently provides a possibility for certain categories of persons (namely share fishermen and volunteer development workers) who are either self-employed or treated as self-employed to be covered by the contributory unemployment benefits system.

A person is classed as a share fisherman if they work in the fishing industry and they:

- are not employed under a contract of service.
- are a master or a crew-member of a British fishing boat manned by more than one person.
- get all or part of their pay by sharing the profits or gross earnings of the fishing boat.

People can also count as a share fisherman if they used to work on a British fishing boat, but now work ashore in Great Britain. This could be making and mending gear or any other work for a British fishing boat.

Share fishermen are classed as self-employed earners by virtue of regulation 125(a) of the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 2001 and pay, or are allowed to pay, a special higher rate of Class 2 National Insurance contribution. Using the powers in paragraph 16 of Schedule 1 to the Jobseekers Act 1995, the normal contribution-based conditions, as detailed in section 2 of that Act, are modified to allow these Class 2 contributions to count for the purposes of contribution-based jobseeker's allowance. The modifications feature in regulation 158(2) of the Jobseeker's Allowance Regulations 1996 and regulation 69(2) of the Jobseeker's Allowance Regulations 2013.

Volunteer development workers are workers who take part in projects in developing countries, under a contract of employment with an approved organisation. If they pay no Class 1 NICs on their earnings under that contract, they are treated as self-employed earners by virtue of regulation 150 of the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 2001 and are allowed to pay a special, higher rate of Class 2 National insurance contribution. Using the powers in paragraph 16 of Schedule 1 to the Jobseekers Act 1995, the normal contribution-based conditions, as detailed in section 2 of that Act, are modified to allow these Class 2 contributions to count for the purposes of contribution-based jobseeker's allowance. The modifications feature in regulation 167 of the Jobseeker's Allowance Regulations 1996 and regulation 75 of the Jobseeker's Allowance Regulations 2013.
