Red Crescent Society now accepting applications for vocational training programme [2]

The Jordan National Red Crescent Society (JNRCS) on Sunday announced a programme to improve living conditions for underprivileged Jordanian and Syrian families in Amman and Ajloun. The JNRCS said that the programme, which will be launched in cooperation with the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies and funded by the EU Regional Trust Fund in Response to the Syrian Crisis, aims to train and create job opportunities for underprivileged Jordanians and Syrian refugees, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported.

First batch of female graduates finish UN vocational training in Amman, Zarqa [3]

After finishing job training, job placement and career direction programmes started in late 2018, 100 young unemployed Jordanian and Syrian refugee women were handed their certificates for different specialisations on Thursday. As part of a collaborative effort that targets young unemployed women residing in the governorates of Amman and Zarqa, the programme “seeks to support women’s economic empowerment” through the provision of technical trainings and career direction services, which “match the labour market’s needs”, according to a UN report made available to The Jordan Times.
